COURT TO RULE IN TAX DISPUTE

Officials At Washington Feel Tax Returns Publication Confusion Must Await Judicial Determination.

WASHINGTON Oct 25 —The question of whether congress in enacting the publicity section of the tax law intended to authorize publication of tax totals by newspapers probably will remain unanswered until it is decided by the courts it was felt in official Washington tonight

SEEK NEW 'SLUSH FUND' LEADS

WILL CONTINUE INQUIRY UNTIL ELECTION DAY

Untermeyer and Walsh Visit New York To Make Personal Investigation---New "Sensation" Awaits Substantiating Evidence.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The Borah committee rested today after two weeks of hard digging into the methods of the political financiers, but will resume the inquiry next week with the return to Washington of Samuel Untermyer and Frank P. Walsh, the attorneys who are pressing Senator Robert M. La Follette's "slush fund" charges.

Untermyer and Walsh went to New York to make some personal inquiries in following up "leads" which they intend to develop more fully during the next few days now remaining before the election. Senator William E. Borah, the committee chairman, has promised to keep the investigation in progress 'u'ntil the returns start coming in on November 4," but if sufficient evidence is not brought forward to substantiate the La Follette allegations before that date, it is expected that the committee will be asked to continue the progress "until the returns start coming in on November 4," bared.

Untermyer has one sensation to spring which he has enveloped in secrecy thus far, explaining that he does not want to lay it before the country until corroborative testimony is at hand. According to his preliminary announcement of his plans, the story, which originated in Chicago, will "cause considerable harm to the republican party."

No Let-Up Promised.

It is no secret that the La Follette attorneys are somewhat disappointed at the showing made thus far in establishing the existence of a big republican campaign fund over and above that reported by the national committee, but they promise no let-up in their efforts to this end so long as the investigating committee will examine their witnesses.

It was quite a shock for instance, to learn from one witness, a New York banker, who had waged a

HOWEY ASSERTS HE LOST MONEY

Files Answer In Suit Brought Against Him By City National Bank.

Wants Credit For Payments Made By Those Who Borrowed Money.

Loyal E. Howey, one time president of the City National bank, has filed in district court an answer in the suit brought by the bank against him and L. T. Dunn, former vice president of that institution, in which he alleges that he has been financially damaged to the extent of $40,000 by transfer of collateral he had pledged to secure loans alleged to have been negotiated by him and Mr. Dunn for several companies and which were objected to by other officers and directors of the bank.

He asks that the $1,000,000 City Trust Co. stock be applied on the contract of Dec. 3 when he agreed to advance $150,000 in collateral to insure the bank against loss in loans made to the Sheridan Park Improvement Co., Nebraska Aircraft Corporation, Standard Securities, Hebb Motors Co., and the Patriot Motors Co.

Howey claims to have given E. B. Stephenson, representative of the bank, part of his $150,000 in the form City Trust Co. stock 500 shares of capital stock on Dec 3. On February 10, according to the answer, Dunn and Howey gave more of the $300,000 they agreed to raise. On May 31, the following year, 1921, a further agreement by which the two men were to pay an additional $25,000 was made, Howey says.

The next payment, according to the petition, was made on May 17, when Howey paid $75,000 on his contracts.

He expressly denies that he turned over 1,000 shares of City Trust Co. stock as alleged, but maintains that the amount was only 500 shares, although other stock was turned in.

He claims that the agreement whereby the former officers were prevailed upon to advance the security upon the loans was secured under threat.

Howey now asks that money secured from the companies to whom they made the loans be credited to his account.

He and his partner in that affair, Oscar Yoos, both of whom pleaded guilty, will remain in the penitentiary awhile longer each having had his plea for freedom rejected.

Another of those whom the board declines to let out is William Beet-

A Sharp Note Sent Persians

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25. — The state department today dispatched a sharp note of protest to the Persian government over its failure to carry out the death sentence to Seyid Hussein, convicted ringleader of the fanatical mob which murdered American Vice Consul Robert W. Imbrie at Teheran last May, it is learned in well informed circles.

Action by the department follows the personal report of American Minister Joseph S. Kornfeld, who arrived here from Persia two days ago.

$25,000 SOUGHT IN SLANDER SUIT

Janet Williams, wife of E. P. Williams, visiting Salvation Army sergeant in Lincoln, filed suit for $25,000 damages against Clarence Mulendore Saturday afternoon charging that the defendant has maliciously slandered her and broken up her home.

She charges that Mulendore has "proclaimed untruthful, scandalous and scurrilous stories about her," to the effect that she went auto riding with strangers.

She also says that the general circulation of such stories has made her husband jealous and suspicious of her.

Mrs. Williams states that she has been doing responsible social work in Lincoln, having been in charge of jail and court supervision for unfortunates.

COURT TO RULE IN TAX DISPUTE

Officials At Washington Feel Tax Returns Publication Confusion Must Await Judicial Determination.

(United Press.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25. — The question of whether congress, in enacting the publicity section of the tax law, intended to authorize publication of tax totals by newspapers probably will remain unanswered until it is decided by the courts, it was felt in official Washington tonight.

Still disturbed by confusion accompanying the sudden baring of tax secrets, officials in the department of the treasury and justice becan to take the attitude that the confusion could not be dissipated until an authoritive ruling was obtained by judicial determination.

Atorney General Stone is expected back here Sunday night and probably will issue a formal opinion, if required to do so by either the white house or the treasury department. Final interpretation af the statute, however, can only come from the courts.

The bureau of internal revenue, which ordered collectors to allow public inspection of tax totals, continued to maintain an attitude of strict neutrality.

The wildest dicorder prevails. A constabulary detachment is being rushed from Manila to Tarlac to prevent an extension of the outbreak.

DEATH TAKES A MEMBER OF U. S. CABINET

Secretary of Agriculture Fails To Rally After Operation Ten Days Ago and Passes Away At Washington Late Saturday.

(International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture in the cabinets of Presidents Harding and Coolidge, died at naval hospital here late today, the result of complications arising from an operation ten days ago.

Death was directly due to toxemia poisoning. A frequent sufferer from rheumatism, the secretary entered the hospital October 15 for an operation which his physicians believed would relieve his condition. His appendix and gall bladder were removed, and he was on the road to recovery until Thursday night, when the poisonous condition developed. From then on he sank rapidly, becoming unconscious Friday afternoon and remaining in a state of coma until his death at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

An official bulletin, issued by Dr. Joel T. Boone, one of the white house physicians who attended him, shortly after the secretary died, stated that the end came quietly.

Mrs. Wallace and their only unmarried daughter, Ruth, a debutante of last season, were at the bedside.

"The immediate cause of death," said Dr. Boone's bulletin, "was bacteriemia and a contributory cause was cholecystitis, inflammation of the gall bladder."

White House Advised.

News of Secretary Wallace's death wwas immediately flashed to the white house, but the president and Mrs. Coolidge were at St. James church, attending the wedding of Miss Beatrice M. Beck, daughter of the solicitor general, to S. Putney Tuck, and they were not apprised of it until after the ceremony.

When informed, the president and Mrs. Coolidge motored directly to the Wardman Park hotel, where the Wallaces made their home and expressed their condolences in person to Mrs. Wallace. They extended the courtesy of the white house for the funeral services and the offer was tentatively accepted.

A presidential procıamatioin issued through the state department called for the half-masting of flags on all public buildings throughout the United States until interment and declared that all government departments in Washington be closed from 9 o'clock until 1 o'clock on the day of the funeral.

The white house announced fun-

REGISTRATION IS AT HIGHEST MARK

23,403 Lincoln Voters Qualified To Cast Ballots Next Month.

The total number of qualified voters in the city of Lincoln is 23,403, according to the figures given out by City Clerk Theo H. Berg at the close of the final day of registration Saturday evening. This is about 2,000 more than were registered in 1920. Saturday was the banner day for registration, those making themselves eligible to vote on this last available date being 1,283 in number. The former record was set in 1920, when 1,260 registered in one day.

More voters have been on the registration books before this, but that was because of an accumulation of "dead" names at the end of the four-year periods just before all names are taken off the list and every voter has to re-register.

In October, 1918, the total was 18,000, according to Mr. Berg. At the same time in 1920, it was 21,000.

Seven hundred and seventy-two were registered by 6 o'clock Saturday. Until 9 o'clock, the whole staff of the city clerk's office was on duty.

WHEELER FLAYS HIS OPPONENTS

ROCKFORD, Ill., Oct. 25.—Hammering away at the political and private records of President Coolidge and General Dawes, Senator Burton K. Wheeler, independent vice presidential candidate, tonight carried his campaign back to Illinois with a fiery address.

Wheeler reiterated his charges that President Coolidge, as governor of Massachusetts, had "permitted illegal aid to the Cosmopolitan Trust Co. with state funds."

He charged that Coolidge's campaign fund in 1920 received $6,000 from Max Mitchell, the bank's president, shortly before the institution failed.

"The law," Wheeler declared, "forbade any single contribution over $1,000."

"Coolidge was governor of Massachusetts. He knew the law."

Wheeler then launched into an attack on Dawes, citing the republican candidate's connection with the Lorimer bank case.

"General Dawes is not silent by nature," Wheeler said, "but he is silent on this subject. Mr. Coolidge is silent by nature.

"But, Mr. Coolidge, you will be judged by your silence if you longer remain silent."

Wheeler swung into a verbal attack on the "Ohio gang and Daugherty" and said the "republican machine is too black to be considered longer as a possible tool of the people."

LONG TRIP OF SHENANDOAH IS AT AN END

Big Dirigible Reaches Lakehurst "Home" After 10,000 Mile Journey To Camp Lewis, Which Consumed Seventeen Days.

BIG CROWD GREETS GREAT AIR VESSEL

LAKEHURST, N. J. Oct. 25.—The Shenandoah is home.

The big naval dirigible, sailing gracefully out of the west, arrived over Lakehurst at 10:35 p. m.

Her red and blue port lights were twinkling bravely through the dark, the big air cruiser soared over her landing mast at an altitude of 5,000 feet and then prepared to settle to earth.

A thousand people who had waited all evening for a sight of the ship, mingled their cheers with those of the ground crew which was to aid in bringing the ship back to her berth.

The Shenandoah brought back a record for dirigible flying. In the seventeen days, twelve and a half hours since she left Lakehurst for Camp Lewis, Washington, she has traveled 10,000 miles through storm and gale, over the treacherous heights of the Rockies and along the windswept shore of the far Pacific. Her average speed has been about fifty miles an hour.

At 11:30 p. m., the ship was in the hands of the ground crew ready to be walked to her place beside the deflated ZR-3 in the huge dirigible hangar here.

By 12:50 o'clock the doors of the great hangar were closed, the 300 men of the landing crew had given three cheers for the ship's crew and the latter, exhausted, were hastening to their quarters to make up for lost sleep.

REGENTS OUTLINE NEEDS OF SCHOOL

Want Fixed Levy Made For University For Next Ten Years.

Say Expansion Has Been Far Greater Than Increase In Expense.

If adequate educational facilities are to be provided students, the University of Nebraska must have, for the next ten-year period, a minimum tax levy of one-fifth of a mill, declared the board of regents in a statement just issued, which will be published soon in pamphlet form for distribution to alumni, taxpayers, and other interested persons. In a comprehensive survey of the growth from a small college to a great university, of its rapid expansion, of the service it is rendering to the state and to the taxpayers, the booklet outlines the needs of the university and suggests how these may be best taken care of. In ten years the enrollment of the university has more than doubled, while its appropriations have increased only one-third.

"Now and then it is desirable," the foreword states, "that the board of regents and the officers of the university should take stock of their own institution and acquaint its stockholders, the people of the state, with the dividends it is paying, the economy with which it is carrying on its own affairs compared with other institutions, and its needs. This stocktaking has been a revelation to the board It takes a just pride in passing these facts on to its stockholders It believes no other institution has done as much with its money as has the University of Nebraska."

The board concludes that as "a minimum sum, a levy of one-fifth of a mill for a ten-year period would admit of such expansion as is absolutely necessary and at the same time be an almost insignifican expenditure for each individual."

Omaha Spends More.

Only by the utmost economy has the university been able to get along thus far, the report says. The city of Omaha has expended more money on high school buildings than the university has spent for all the buildings of the university in fifty years. An eastern university has erected dormitories for its freshman class which cost practically as much as our university has expended for buildings in the last fifty years. The entire cost of the medical college buildings at Omaha is only a little more than Iowa has appropriated yearly for its medical buildings the last five years.

"The University of Nebraska asks nothing for itself. People sometimes speak of what the university wants. The university is an impersonal sort of thing and wants nothing. It is what you want. If your children are to have an education, the university must have equipment with which to do the work," declares the board.

The registration of the university is outlined in ten-year periods: 1871-72, 130; 1881-82, 284; 1891-92, 883; 1901-02, 2,298; 1911-12, 3,657; 1921-22, 8,196; 1923-24, 10,352.

Appropriations by the legislature as compared with number of students as shown to have been for bienniums.

	Appropriation	Students	Annual State Cost per Student
1903-05 ...	$746,500	4,475	$166
1923-25	3,258,670	21,000	155

The sums of money specified above are those actually appropriated by the legislature. The student enrollment given above represents in each case all the students in schools and colleges and extension sources of the university, with the exception of registration in the school of music, which at one time had an affiliated connection with this institution

"It seems almost unbelievable that with a registration of approximately two and a half times that of ten years ago, the appropriations have increased only a third," the pamphlet states.

While the average cost of educating a student in a collegiate course in twenty-five state educational institutions in 1923 was $281.44, Nebraska accomplished it for $159.32. Among these twenty-five institutions Nebraska, with one exception, educated its students at the lowest cost per student. Out of twenty-three state universities, Nebraska had next the largest number per instructor, the booklet reports.

The accomplishments of the university are outlined. More than 12,000 degrees have been granted, representing over 10,000 graduates, many of them leaders in their communities and some of them world famous men and women. Approximately 15,000 patients, many of them poor and needy people, have been cared for at the university hospital at the college of medicine in Omaha. The dispensary departments of the medical college have 25,000 visits a year. Experimental and extension work of the college of agriculture have increased the income of the farmers of the state more than $26,000,000 every year, or six times the total amount spent for all university buildings in the last fifty years.

For every dollar of tax money, approximately only two and one-half cents now goes to the university. The program suggested by the board of regents will be cared for with a levy of only one-fifth of a mill, an amount almost negligible to the average person, just twenty cents for each $1,000 of assessed valuation.

A partial list of buildings needed by the university follows:

For city campus, women's dormitory, library, dentistry, electrical engineering, heating and power plant, museum of natural history, school of fine arts, auditorium (one building), observatory, gymnasium.

For Medical college, Omaha, new wing to hospital, addition to nurses' home, gymnasium, building for pathology, bacteriology, public health, and out-patients.

For Agricultural college, central poultry plant, judging pavilion and livestock barns, women's dormitory, gymnasium, agronomy building, auditorium and library.

Curtis school and substations, an appropriation for miscellaneous improvements.

Additional land, purchase adjacent to agronomy far mand city campus

Believe Lost Indian Tribe Lived In Southern Nebraska; Perfect Flint Lance Found

In the southeastern part of Richardson county, about six miles southeast of Rulo, is one of the most interesting archeological ruins in Nebraska.

For some months, Mark E. Zimmermann of White Cloud, Kas., has been writing the Nebraska State Historical society about his study of northeast Kansas and southeast Nebraska.

On October 13, E. E. Blackman, curator of the Nebraska State Historical society museum and Ivan E Jones of the Nebraska State Historical society staff visted Mr. Zimmerman and his neighbor, Edward Park. These men have given this area a careful study and both have gathered large collections of artifacts found in this vicinity. Mr. Park loaned twenty-one specimens to this society for study and Mr. Zimmerman presented forty specimens to the museum. With the help of these two men the field was reviewed in two days They have been active in collecting for twelve years and have some of the most wonderful specimens ever found in the world. It is a rich area and they have thousands of chipped flints in their homes.

Rival Ohio Specimens.

The artifacts taken from the ruins in Richardson county are different from those found in other parts of the state. They compare favorably with the finest specimens found in the Ohio region and are similar in form and workmanship to the most artistic work shown by the best specimens in that state.

Most of the ruins in this state belong to the Caddoan and Siouan linguistic family, as classified by Powell in the reports of the bureau of ethnology, but this ruin shows artifacts very similar to the work done by the Iroquoian linguistic family While an ocasional specimen is distinctly Caddoan showing contact with both the Quivira coarse type and the Harahey type of finer workmanship, by far the larger bulk of the specimens the two men have are identical in workmanship and design with the specimens found in the area south of the Great Lakes where the Iroquoian linguistic family flourished before the white man's day.

Was Home of Lost Tribe.

There is a legend in the Cherokee tribe which tells of a band which branched off and went across the Mississippi river before the days of written history. Sequoia, the Cherokee half-breed who invented the only Indian alphabet, lost his life in a fruitless search for the habitat of this lost branch of the Cherokee tribe The Nebraska men are convinced, from their knowledge of artifacts that Richardson county was once the home of this lost tribe of Cherokees.

On the banks of the Nemaha, a few miles from its junction with the Missouri was probably the permanent home of this lost Cherokee tribe, not long after they branched off, becouse the artifacts are made from the same materials found in the artifacts of Kentucky and Ohio. Similar specimens, showing the same skill in chipping, are made from Nehawka flint and from materials which grew in this western area.

Finds Perfect Flint Lance.

While Mr. Park was showing his Lincoln visitors the extent of the ruin south of the Nemaha, in Richardson county he picked up the most beautiful and perfect flint lance ever seen. This lance is open to public inspection at the Historical Museum. It does not seem possible that such an implement could be made by the orthodox process of pressure chipping

Ruin Covers 600 Acres.

This village ruin covers approximately 600 acres and rests on the Nebraska-Kansas state line, about half in each state. A number of "Discoidals" have been found here, the only specimens of "Discoidal" ever found in Nebraska Some very interesting pieces are in the collections gathered here. Mr. Zimmerman has a dark grey stone pipe with a greek face artistically carved on the front. Mr Park has a perfectly formed "Monitor" pipe picked from granite, evidently a drift pebble—but the pipe is not bored —simply shaped out ready to bore. This ruin is considered the most wonderful discovery in Nebraska

Bar Association Hold First Meeting

Chief Justice A M Morrissey will speak on "Some Impressions of My Visit to the Courts of England" at the first meeting for the fall term of the Lancaster County Bar association next Saturday evening, November 1, at the Grand hotel.

COUNTY ROADS IN GOOD CONDITION

Grading and Paving Gangs Make Progress — First Street Bridge Begun.

Roads in Lancaster county are probably in the best condition now that they have ever been, is the opinion of County Engineer Arthur Edgren. The paving and grading gangs have made excellent progress in their work, he said Saturday

A force of men is now working on the nine-mile stretch from Seward to connect with the Raymond road. A large part of the grading on this stretch has been done in an effort to get a good graded road across the county from Greenwood. where it connects with the D-L-D to Seward.

Bottoms Roads Improved.

Heavy dragline work is being carried on in the salt creek bottoms and will be continued until the ground frezes. The grade is being raised through the worst sections west and south of Sprague, where road workers have been engaged for several months.

Gravel is being put on the S. Y. A. highwayg, after completion of grading work which has taken several months. It will make a good highway out of Lincoln on the northwest when the gravel becomes packed, it was stated.

Construction of the First street bridge, a 110-foot span over the Oak creek channel was begun Thursday and will be compelled in about two months

Five thousand yards of dirt will have to be hauled to build the approaches to the bridge Edgren said, and the road will be straightened.

"Now and then it is desirable," the foreword states, "that the board of regents and the officers of the university should take stock of their own institution and acquaint its stockholders, the people of the state, with the dividends it is paying, the economy with which it is carrying on its own affairs compared with other institutions, and its needs. This stocktaking has been a revelation to the board. It takes a just pride in passing these facts on to its stockholders. It believes no other institution has done as much with its money as has the University of Nebraska."

The board concludes that as "a minimum sum, a levy of one-fifth of a mill for a ten-year period would admit of such expansion as is absolutely necessary and at the same time be an almost insignifican expenditure for each individual."

Omaha Spends More.

Only by the utmost economy has the university been able to get along thus far, the report says. The city of Omaha has expended more money on high school buildings than the university has spent for all the buildings of the university in fifty years. An eastern university has erected dormitories for its freshman class which cost practically as much as our university has expended for buildings in the last fifty years. The entire cost of the medical college buildings at Omaha is only a little more than Iowa has appropriated yearly for its medical buildings the last five years.

"The University of Nebraska asks nothing for itself. People sometimes speak of what the university wants. The university is an impersonal sort of thing and wants nothing. It is what you want. If your children are to have an education, the university must have equipment with which to do the work," declares the board.

The registration of the university is outlined in ten-year periods: 1871-72, 130; 1881-82, 284; 1891-92, 883; 1901-02, 2,298; 1911-12, 3,657; 1921-22, 8,196; 1923-24, 10,352.

Appropriations by the legislature as compared with number of students as shown to have been for bienniums:

	Appropriation	Students	Annual State Cost per Student
1903-05 ...	$746,500	4,475	$166
1923-25	3,258,670	21,000	155

The sums of money specified above are those actually appropriated by the legislature. The student enrollment given above represents in each case all the students in schools and colleges and extension sources of the university, with the exception of registration in the school of music, which at one time had an affiliated connection with this institution.

"It seems almost unbelievable that with a registration of approximately two and a half times that of ten years ago, the appropriations have increased only a third," the pamphlet states.

While the average cost of educating a student in a collegiate course in twenty-five state educational institutions in 1923 was $281.44, Nebraska accomplished it for $159.32. Among these twenty-five institutions Nebraska, with one exception, educated its students at the lowest cost per student. Out of twenty-three state universities, Nebraska had next the largest number per instructor, the booklet reports.

The accomplishments of the university are outlined. More than 12,000 degrees have been granted, representing over 10,000 graduates, many of them leaders in their communities and some of them world famous men and women. Approximately 15,000 patients, many of them poor and needy people, have been cared for at the university hospital at the college of medicine in Omaha. The dispensary departments of the medical college have 25,000 visits a year. Experimental and extension work of the college of agriculture have increased the income of the farmers of the state more than $26,000,000 every year, or six times the total amount spent for all university buildings in the last fifty years.

For every dollar of tax money, approximately only two and one-half cents now goes to the university. The program suggested by the board of regents will be cared for with a levy of only one-fifth of a mill, an amount almost negligible to the average person, just twenty cents for each $1,000 of assessed valuation.

A partial list of buildings needed by the university follows:

For city campus, women's dormitory, library, dentistry, electrical engineering, heating and power plant, museum of natural history, school of fine arts, auditorium (one building), observatory, gymnasium.

For Medical college, Omaha, new wing to hospital, addition to nurses' home, gymnasium, building for pathology, bacteriology, public health, and out-patients.

For Agricultural college, central poultry plant, judging pavilion and livestock barns, women's dormitory, gymnasium, agronomy building, auditorium and library.

Curtis school and substations, an appropriation for miscellaneous improvements.

Additional land, purchase adjacent to agronomy far mand city campus.

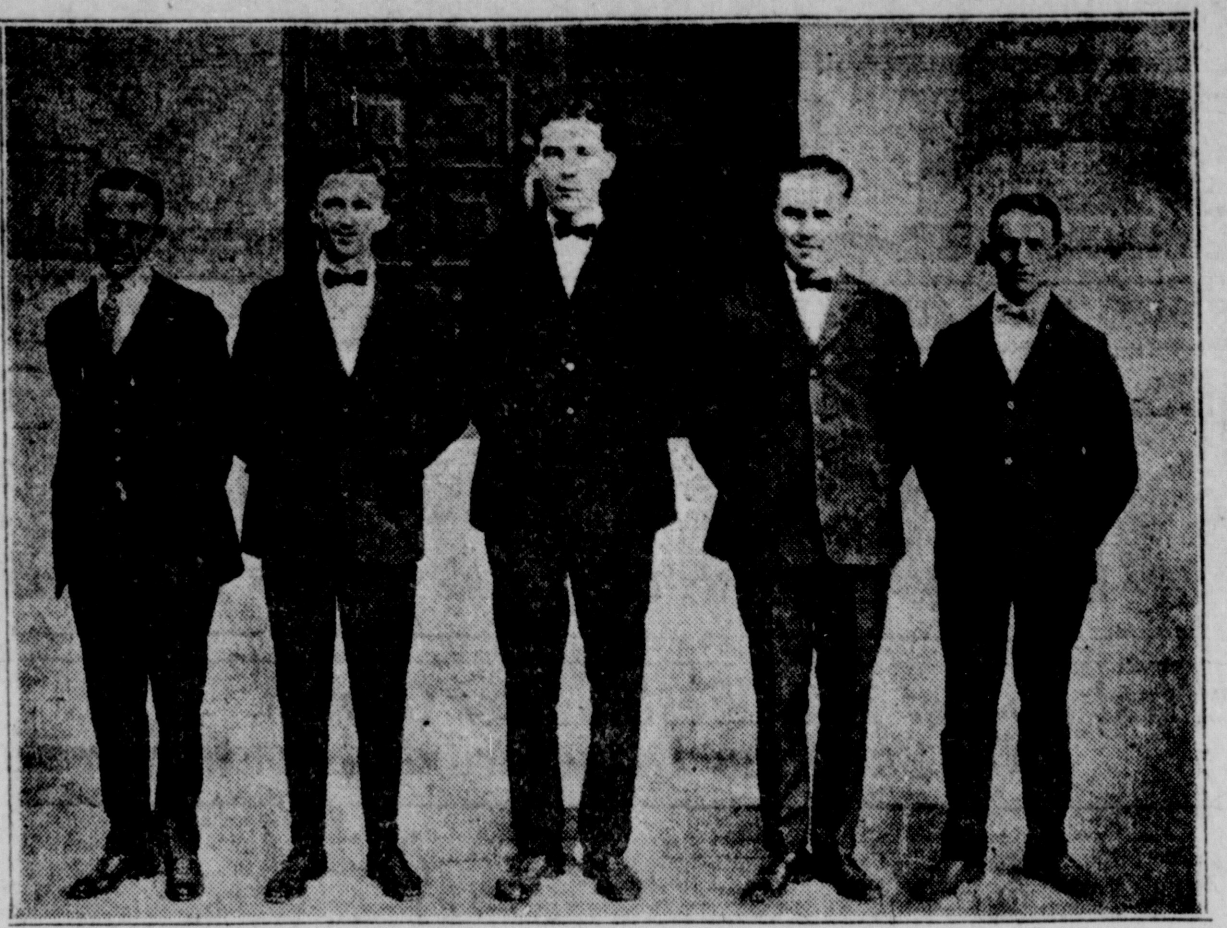
Nebraska Dairy Stock Judges Awarded Honors



In the dairy cattle judging contest held in connection with the National Dairy show at Milwaukee in September, the team representing the College of Agriculture, University of Nebraska, was awarded third place, this being the highest rank the team has attained since the war. Las year the Nebraska team was ninth and the year before it was nineteenth. Prof. Morgan, who is in charge of this department has a new system, having a junior as well as a senior team. The junior team was fourth at the national dairy congress at Waterloo, Iowa, Sept. 2. Teams outranking Nebraska at Milwaukee were Michigan first, Wisconsin second.

The Nebraska team as shown above, left to right, Prof. Ray F. Morgan, coach; R. Parsons, A. VonBergen, W. Noggle, I. King, alternate.

The individual records in judging all breeds showed Parsons fifth, Noggle tenth, and VonBergen thirty-ninth. Parsons was first in Guernseys and Noggle was fifth in Jerseys.

Believe Lost Indian Tribe Lived In Southern Nebraska; Perfect Flint Lance Found

In the southeastern part of Richardson county, about six miles southeast of Rulo, is one of the most interesting archeological ruins in Nebraska.

For some months, Mark E. Zimmermann of White Cloud, Kas., has been writing the Nebraska State Historical society about his study of northeast Kansas and southeast Nebraska.

On October 13, E. E. Blackman, curator of the Nebraska State Historical society museum and Ivan E. Jones of the Nebraska State Historical society staff visted Mr. Zimmerman and his neighbor, Edward Park. These men have given this area a careful study and both have gathered large collections of artifacts found in this vicinity. Mr. Park loaned twenty-one specimens to this society for study and Mr. Zimmerman presented forty specimens to the museum. With the help of these two men the field was reviewed in two days. They have been active in collecting for twelve years and have some of the most wonderful specimens ever found in the world. It is a rich area and they have thousands of chipped flints in their homes.

Rival Ohio Specimens.

The artifacts taken from the ruins in Richardson county are different from those found in other parts of the state. They compare favorably with the finest specimens found in the Ohio region and are similar in form and workmanship to the most artistic work shown by the best specimens in that state.

Most of the ruins in this state belong to the Caddoan and Siouan linguistic family, as classified by Powell in the reports of the bureau of ethnology, but this ruin shows artifacts very similar to the work done by the Iroquoian linguistic family. While an occasional specimen is distinctly Caddoan showing contact with both the Quivira coarse type and the Harahey type of finer workmanship, by far the larger bulk of the specimens the two men have are identical in workmanship and design with the specimens found in the area south of the Great Lakes where the Iroquoian linquistic family flourished before the white man's day.

Was Home of Lost Tribe.

There is a legend in the Cherokee tribe which tells of a band which branched off and went across the Mississippi river before the days of written history. Sequoia, the Cherokee half-breed who invented the only Indian alphabet, lost his life in a fruitless search for the habitat of this lost branch of the Cherokee tribe. The Nebraska men are convinced, from their knowledge of artifacts that Richardson county was once the home of this lost tribe of Cherokees.

On the banks of the Nemaha, a few miles from its junction with the Missouri was probably the permanent home of this lost Cherokee tribe, not long after they branched off, becouse the artifacts are made from the same materials found in the artifacts of Kentucky and Ohio. Similar specimens, showing the same skill in chipping, are made from Nehawka flint and from materials which grew in this western area.

Finds Perfect Flint Lance.

While Mr. Park was showing his Lincoln visitors the extent of the ruin south of the Nemaha, in Richardson county he picked up the most beautiful and perfect flint lance ever seen. This lance is open to public inspection at the Historical Museum. It does not seem possible that such an implement could be made by the orthodox process of pressure chipping.

Ruin Covers 600 Acres.

This village ruin covers approximately 600 acres and rests on the Nebraska-Kansas state line, about half in each state. A number of "Discoidals" have been found here, the only specimens of "Discoidal" ever found in Nebraska. Some very interesting pieces are in the collections gathered here. Mr. Zimmerman has a dark grey stone pipe with a greek face artistically carved on the front. Mr. Park has a perfectly formed "Monitor" pipe picked from granite, evidently a drift pebble—but the pipe is not bored—simply shaped out ready to bore. This ruin is considered the most wonderful discovery in Nebraska.

Bar Association Hold First Meeting

Chief Justice A. M. Morrissey will speak on "Some Impressions of My Visit to the Courts of England" at the first meeting for the fall term of the Lancaster County Bar association next Saturday evening, November 1, at the Grand hotel.

COUNTY ROADS IN GOOD CONDITION

Grading and Paving Gangs Make Progress — First Street Bridge Begun.

Roads in Lancaster county are probably in the best condition now that they have ever been, is the opinion of County Engineer Arthur Edgren. The paving and grading gangs have made excellent progress in their work, he said Saturday.

A force of men is now working on the nine-mile stretch from Seward to connect with the Raymond road. A large part of the grading o nthis stretch has been done in an effort to get a good graded road across the county from Greenwood, where it connects with the D-L-D to Seward.

Bottoms Roads Improved.

Heavy dragline work is being carried on in the salt creek bottoms and will be continued until the ground frezes. The grade is being raised through the worst sections west and south of Sprague, where road workers have been engaged for several months.

Gravel is being put on the S. Y. A. highwayg, after completion of grading work which has taken several months. It will make a good highway out of Lincoln on the northwest when the gravel becomes packed, it was stated.

Construction of the First street bridge, a 110-foot span over the Oak creek channel was begun Thursday and will be compelled in about two months.

Five thousand yards of dirt will have to be hauled to build the approaches to the bridge Edgren said, and the road will be straightened.

It's Effect On the Number of Customers

Neighbors have a habit of discussing their heating problems. The man who has a good coal does not hesitate to tell his friends so. If he uses JEWEL coal, he is in position to tell his neighbors that he gets his house warm in record time, that it is a clean coal to use, that there is comparatively little ash in a ton of it and that it is sootless and smokeless. Analyses prove this. JEWEL coal cannot help but bring new customers to

What's Your Idea of a Home?

MOST everybody wants to live in a good-looking house in a good-looking neighborhood. And it's easier to have a good-looking house than most people realize.

And when we refer to the house we include the interior as well as the exterior. Haven't you seen the magic of Paint and Varnish transform a neglected, forlorn old dwelling into a fine "new" home —a run-down community into a prosperous-looking one?

Most everybody wants the kind of home friends like to visit—they like the charm of beautifully finished furniture, attractive woodword and floors, likewise an exterior that shows a neighborhood which justifies pride.

Paint and Varnish are the best friends of the home-maker—first aids to civic betterment. They help to make the house cheerful and clean, bright and inviting, inside and out. They help to foster the spirit that turns a mere dwelling place into a real family home —and a collection of houses into an alluring community.

The returns of making your home attractive are way out of proportion to the cost, even if you count only material rewards. And "Home"—which includes your home town—is worth improving on its own account.

We are paint manufacturers and can supply your needs through our retail store or through our agents.

ROBBER PLAYING HIDE AND SEEK

Burglarizes Gilead Business Houses and Escapes In Stolen Car.

Thought May Be Same Man Who Robbed Bostwick Bank and Broke Jail.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Oct. 25.—Herbert Holmes, who robbed the Bostwick State bank at Bostwick September 20 of $1500 was jailed in Nuckolls county two days later and who broke jail at Nelson last Sunday night, after carving Roy Starr, a fellow prisoner, with his pocket knife and picking the cell lock with the knife, a piece of wire and the cell mirror, and who was reported as seen on the streets of Reynolds Monday and in the Burlington railway yards at Wymore Tuesday, has apparently been heard from again and seems to have been in hiding for the past six days in the territory immediately west of here.

Friday night the Fells Auto garage at Gilead, west of here, was burglarized and $80, the day's receipts, taken from the safe, which was not locked, a store was also broken into in the town, and a Ford auto stolen from the street where it was parked.

Armed with Rifle.

Leo Fells, proprietor of the garage, was asleep in the rear of the building and was awakened by the burglar at work and saw him through a window, but was unarmed and did not molest the man, who was armed with a rifle, supposed to be one Holmes stole from a Nelson hardware store the night he escaped. Fells says the intruder had dark red hair and gold filled teeth and generally answered the description of Holmes.

It was the third night in succession that a robbery had been committed in Gilead, the others being of such small amounts that they were considered of minor significance and not reported previously.

Thursday night some one entered a grocery store, took a few pennies from the cash drawer and some articles of food from the shelves and Wednesday night it is said the store and butcher shop in the town were entered and articles of food and some meat and bologna taken

Evidence at the railway station, which is closed at night, discloses the fact that lunches were eaten there and $6 00 was stolen from the railway ticket cash till. It is thought that Holmes, driven from cover by hunger, committed these robberies.

The Thayer county sheriff was called and raised a posse of about fifty men. The bloodhounds were taken from Beatrice and traced the burglar for some distance out of town, where it is supposed he boarded the car No trace of man or car has since been found.

GOLDEN JUBILEE IS OBSERVED BY STATE W. C. T. U.

Convention at North Platte Last Week One of Best Ever Held.

Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith Says Woman's Viewpoint Is Needed in Government.

The Golden Jubilee convention of the W. C. T. U. which was held this week at North Platte, was considered one of the best ever held in the state.

The fact that it is just fifty years ago since a small band of women from a few states met in Cleveland, Ohio, to form a national union and to name that child, lent a holy and gracious flavor to this Golden Jubilee convention. Banners, mottoes, decorations all gave color and but few speeches lacked the tone of the celebration. The banquet, the first night, was attended by many citizens of North Platte as well as by delegates to the convention. A huge birthday cake, adorned with golden candles, was lighted by the president, Mrs. Lela G. Dyar as the years were called off by "Mother Time." Year by year from 1874 to 1924 were called and response to each was made by a different woman, telling briefly the story of that year, with its efforts and achievements in the National union and in Nebraska. Mayor Crosby and the president of the North Platte union, Mrs. W. W. Andrus, gave greetings and the Maloney quartet furnished music on several occasions.

The treasurer's report, a significant pulse of the organization, was very encouraging. The new headquarters at 1617 L street, Lincoln, has stimulated the women to hearty endeavor and it is soon hoped to own it free of debt.

Woman Senator Speaks.

Senator Bell Kearney of Mississippi the first woman to be elected to the legislature of a southern state, was a guest and as Miss Kearney has often toured the state in the temperance campaigns and on the Chautauqua platform, she was greeted by many friends. She told of her campaign, in which she was successful and also of a previous campaign in which her candidacy served to elect a man to the U. S. senate, worthy to represent the state and the defeat of one who was undesirable.

Hear Mrs. Smith.

Perhaps the outstanding impression made at this convention was that of the personality and messages of Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, president of the Iowa W. C. T. U. Mrs. Smith, then Ida B Wise, will be remembered by some Lincoln people as a teacher a number of years ago in the public schools of the city.

In her more intimate talks to the women she quite as well struck fire in the practical application made of their duty to their government. She begged them to know politics in parties and out, to keep the organization free from partisan feeling, but as women to have their convictions and to know why. She declared she would never support a woman just because she is a woman, but given a woman candidate and man equally good she would stand for the woman since the woman's viewpoint is so greatly needed in government.

In her evening address she outlined some of the conditions that have followed prohibition. She declared the great reign of lawlessness had begun before prohibition came in and when we adopted the Eighteenth Amendment we wrote the Golden Rule of Christ into the Constitution.

She begged friends of prohibition to acquaint themselves with conditions that they might answer the futile arguments of those who declare it a failure $19,000,000 of fines have been collected in the Federal courts alone in the last four and one half years, to say nothing of the fines collected in state, county and municipal courts.

She made an earnest plea for good citizens to express appreciation of the efforts of good officers.

The former officers were reelected. The delegates were the guests of the city in a drive, visiting the places of interest, such as the state experiment station and the home of Buffalo Bill

Those attending the convention from Lincoln were Mrs. Bessie Johnson, Mrs C. E Burton, Mrs C S. Clayton, Mrs. Allio Jackson and Mrs. Ellen Gray. Those from University Place were, Mrs. Josie Sullivan Mrs. H. E. Nash and Mrs J L. Clofien.

RUSSIANS PLEASED.

MOSCOW, Oct. 25 — The Peking coup of Feng Yu-Hsiang signifies defeat of British and American capital in China, while leaving unchanged the favorable position of Russia, according to Izvestia, official organ. "It is a blow to Hughes, which strengthens our position and that of Japan,' the newspaper says.

MAYOR SAYS CITY WILL GROW FAST

Predicts Greatest Development In History In Next Five Years.

Highways Improving, Population Growing, and New Buildings Coming.

"In the next five years the population of Lincoln and its suburbs will easily pass the 100,000 mark, and the city will grow more and have more improvements than in any five or ten year period before in its history," said Mayor Frank C. Zehrung after returning Friday from the ceremony of starting work on the house beautiful on Rathbone road

"Houses now are springing up everywhere. I took a trip about town recently and saw them on West A street, in the northeastern sections, directly east, south, and all through the residential sections.

"The city has been held back a long time, but there is no question now but that therewill be vast improvements College View is already linked up with us by a paved boulevard; Bethany soon will be.

"More and more paved highways are leading into the city. Within a year we will be able to travel on graveled roads to Omaha, Beatrice, Seward, nearly to Nebraska City, Fremont and other nearby towns. There doesn't seem to be much doing in the city along this line, yet all of the down town streets are now in good repair, and miles are being asphalted each year.

New Burlington Depot.

"A new Burlington depot and cement O street viaduct will be built in the next five years," said the mayor. "There is no question about it, they are going to come The depot will extend north from O street two blocks. The viaduct will reach to the top of the hill at Ninth street, and eliminate the grade which those who come in from the west now have to negotiate. Another viaduct on North Fourteenth street will be built some day.

"Many new business blocks are already assured. We know they will build at Tenth and O streets, Fourteenth and O streets, Eleventh and O streets. We will have a new and modern hotel by that time. The capitol will be finished, and Fifteenth street opened up and widened to R street. Several new university buildings will have been completed"

Mayor Zehrung has lived in Lincoln for fifty years, and watched its growth from a town of 7,000 to its present size. Its prospects now seem to him the brightest in its history.

This is an old established district, having been in operation for 17 years. It embraces 489,809 acres in southeastern Missouri. It is served by six railroads and numerous state and county highways. Estimated population 20,000. At present 50% of the area of this district has been converted into successfully cultivated land.

These bonds are payable from specific taxes irrevocably levied against real property in the district in proportion to the assessed benefits and collected at the same time in the same manner as are state and county taxes.

The total bonded debt of the District averages approximately $22.75 per acre and the annual requirement for principal and interest averages about $1.90 per acre. Since the establishment of this district a substantial part of its debt has already been paid. Land values range from $50.00 to $200.00 per acre.

The law requires taxes to be levied 10% in excess of the requirements for principal and interest, and by this means the District has accumulated a sinking fund surplus of over $225,000.

We have maturities to offer with a yield of 5.20%.

Bankers Life Insurance Co.

Gentlemen:

Twenty years ago this day you issued to me a $2,000.00 policy on the twenty year settlement plan and today your agent A. A. Reichert delivered me your draft in full settlement of same. I have paid you $988.00 in premiums and the cash value now being $1,279.34. I am receiving $291.34 profit beside having been insured for twenty years. I now have another policy for $5,000.00 and am only sorry my first policy was not larger. My advice to young men is to carry as much of this kind of insurance as they can afford.

I am more than pleased with this settlement and am always ready to recommend Bankers Life to any one.

Gratefully yours,
JOHN L. DEVEREUX.

This is an old established district, having been in operation for 17 years. It embraces 489,809 acres in southeastern Missouri. It is served by six railroads and numerous state and county highways. Estimated population 20,000. At present 50% of the area of this district has been converted into successfully cultivated land.

These bonds are payable from specific taxes irrevocably levied against real property in the district in proportion to the assessed benefits and collected at the same time in the same manner as are state and county taxes.

The total bonded debt of the District averages approximately $22.75 per acre and the annual requirement for principal and interest averages about $1.90 per acre. Since the establishment of this district a substantial part of its debt has already been paid. Land values range from $50.00 to $200.00 per acre.

The law requires taxes to be levied 10% in excess of the requirements for principal and interest, and by this means the District has accumulated a sinking fund surplus of over $225,000.

We have maturities to offer with a yield of 5.20%.

Obituary

MRS. ALICE JACOBUS.

Alice Cora Buel, daughter of Edwin and Lavina Buel, was born in Hartford township, Licking county, Ohio, on April 29, 1849. By the death of her mother she was left at the age of fifteen years with the cares of the home and family. She lived in Ohio until her marriage to H. L. Mitchell on January 1, 1868. The following March they went to Cherokee county, Kansas, where they lived five years and endured the hardships of pioneers, living 150 miles from the railroad. Here they buried one son in infancy, Sally B.; one daughter, Paisy Mitchell, also died in infancy. In the fall of 1873 they came to Lancaster county in a covered wagon with their son Clyde who was four weeks old. They lived at Hickman for several years, after which they purchased the home she had lived in for forty-eight years. Mr. Mitchell died February 21, 1902.

In December, 1906, she was married to Ranson Jacobus, also of Ohio, but he is now deceased.

She was one of the few pioneer settlers of Lancaster county and remembered vividly the early conditions and the events of those days. Her maternal grandfather, George Green, was a native of France and served in George Washington's army. She, like her ancestors, was very patriotic, and in the last war did all she could for her country.

She was a lover of nature and enjoyed beautiful flowers which she always gave freely to everyone. Besides Mrs. Jacobus, there were five brothers and one sister: Friend, Curtis, George, Charles, Dora, and one brother who died in infancy. She is survived by two sons, Clyde E., and Clinton J. Mitchell, and three grand children, two brothers, Curtis Buel of Croton, Ohio, and Charlie Buel of Chicago, two half-brothers and one half-sister, all of Ohio. For many years Mrs. Jacobus was a member of the Methodist church.

She died October 15 at the home of Clinton J. Mitchell at the age of 75 years, 5 months and 16 days.

LAST RITES FOR JAMES E. EGAN

Rev. Father O'Connor Stresses Love Of Country In Funeral Sermon.

Funeral services for James Edward Egan were held at 9:30 a. m., Saturday at St. Patrick's church in Havelock. Burial was in Calvary cemetery. Father D. B. O'Connor officiated at the church, and American Legion men fired a volley at the grave. A children's choir sang mass.

Rev. O'Connor said that patriotism and religion are one, that both are founded on self sacrifice and love of one's neighbor.

The earliest form of patriotism, Rev. Father O'Connor said, was the practice of taking arms in defense of the women and children. Early Grecian states such as Sparta were celebrated for the purity and fervor of their patriotism. These countries developed patriotism as well as military discipline.

In those days, great honor was accorded mothers and soldier sons, but incomparably less than to an American mother whose son returns from his country's service, draped in his country's flag.

Rev. Father O'Connor urged the mothers of this country to teach love of country to their children as they teach them religion.

He spoke of the shock and pain caused the friends of James Egan by his death, but insisted on the inspiration and example to be gained from contemplating that it came in the service of his country.

James Egan died in an explosion on the S-2, a submarine stationed near Manila in the Philippine islands, on August 25.

Exhibit Shows Why 19 Million Letters Were Lost One Year

An exhibit giving a few of the reasons why letters, packages and other parcels, placed in the hands of the U. S. Postal service for delivery, are either delayed or lost completely, is being shown in the window of the Union Savings and Loan company at 1218 O street.

In one year, according to this exhibit, 19,238,548 letters, circulars and other light packages are received at the dead letter office.

Thousands of letters are mailed without proper addresses. Others have no return addresses. If they are lost in any way or are not accepted at marked destination there is no way of knowing where to return them.

Merchandise valued at approximately $1,023,095 also finds it final destination in the dead letter office for practically the same reasons. In some instances the failure to wrap the packages securely causes a loss.

Too much water on the stamps or on the envelope sealing often causes the envelope to open and the contents are accidently lost. Or the stamps fail to stick to the envelope.

The purpose of the exhibit is to remind people of these facts and possibly eliminate some of this great waste.

Music will be furnished by the university quartet and an orchestra. Dad's day is sponsored by the Innocents and Vikings, honorary men's societies of the school.

Plan For Sunday School Institute

A joint meeting of the Lancaster county council of Christian education and the institute program committee of the church school superintendents group was held Saturday noon at the Grand hotel. Plans were still further perfected for the three day institute for church school workers to be held November 24-26. Besides Dr. Hugh S. Magill, the committee plans to bring two other men or women of national reputation and also will make use of state leaders of specialization groups.

The frist meeting to be addressed by Dr. Magill will be a general meeting for public school and church school teachers and officers. On the second and third evenings, there will be three sections, one at the East Lincoln Christian church, one at the First Plymouth Congregational church and a third at one of the down town churches. After the inspirational address, there will be five sectional meetings for specialization, conducted by recognized leaders in the various departments, children, young people, adults and administration.

The superintendents of all the Lancaster county Sunday schools will constitute the committee on promotion, and will meet the first Monday in November. Prof. F. M. Gregg is chairman of the program committee, and Mr. C. Petrus Peterson of the Ways and Means committee.

Steaming Hot Water
Plenty of It!
If your house has only reasonably modern plumbing—there is a hot water faucet at the sink, at each bathtub, at each lavatory, and at each laundry tub. Too often, that means hot water—IF the furnace fire is going—IF the kitchen range fire is hot enough—IF a couple of baths, or a week's washing, or a big dishwashing has not used all the hot water.
Enjoy the comfort and convenience of Modern Hot Water Service. The cost is moderate. Ask one of the following reliable plumbers to tell you about the type and size of water heating equipment exactly suited to the needs of your home.

Obituary

MRS. ALICE JACOBUS.

Alice Cora Buel, daughter of Edwin and Lavina Buel, was born in Hartford township, Licking county, Ohio, on April 29, 1849. By the death of her mother she was left at the age of fifteen years with the cares of the home and family. She lived in Ohio until her marriage to H. L. Mitchell on January 1, 1968. The following March they went to Cherokee county, Kansas, where they lived five years and endured the hardships of pioneers, living 150 miles from the railroad. Here they buried one son in infancy, Saily B.; one daughter, Paisy Mitchell, also died in infancy. In the fall of 1873 they came to Lancaster county in a covered wagon with their son Clyde who was four weeks old. They lived at Hickman for several years, after which they purchased the home she had lived in for forty-eight years. Mr. Mitchell died February 21, 1902.

In December, 1906, she was married to Ranson Jacobus(also of Ohio, but he is now deceased.

She was one of the few pioneer settlers of Lancaster county and remembered vividly the early conditions and the events of those days. Her maternal grandfather, George Green, was a native of France and served in George Washington's army. She, like her ancestors, was very patriotic, and in the last war did all she could for her country.

She was a lover of nature and enjoyed beautiful flowers which she always gave freely to everyone. Besides Mrs. Jacobus, there were five brothers and one sister: Friend, Curtis, George, Charles, Dora, and one brother who died in infancy. She is survived by two sons, Clyde E., and Clinton J. Mitchell, and three grand children, two brothers, Curtis Buel of Croton, Ohio, and Charlie Buel of Chicago, two half-brothers and one half-sister, all of Ohio. For many years Mrs. Jacobus was a member of the Methodist church.

She died October 15 at the home of Clinton J. Mitchell at the age of 75 years, 5 months and 16 days.

LAST RITES FOR JAMES E. EGAN

Rev. Father O'Connor Stresses Love Of Country In Funeral Sermon.

Funeral services for James Edward Egan were held at 9:30 a. m., Saturday at St. Patrick's church in Havelock. Burial was in Calvary cemetery. Father D. B. O'Connor officiated at the church, and American Legion men fired a volley at the grave. A children's choir sang mass.

Rev. O'Connor said that patriotism and religion are one, that both are founded on self sacrifice and love of one's neighbor.

The earliest form of patriotism, Rev. Father O'Connor said, was the practice of taking arms in defense of the women and children. Early Grecian states such as Sparta were celebrated for the purity and fervor of their patriotism. These countries developed patriotism as well as military discipline.

In those days, great honor was accorded mothers and soldier sons, but incomparably less than to an American mother whose son returns from his country's service, draped in his country's flag.

Rev. Father O'Connor urged the mothers of this country to teach love of country to their children as they teach them religion.

He spoke of the shock and pain caused the friends of James Egan by his death, but insisted on the inspiration and example to be gained from contemplating that it came in the service of his country.

James Egan died in an explosion on the S-2, a submarine stationed near Manila in the Philippine islands, on August 25.

Exhibit Shows Why 19 Million Letters Were Lost One Year

An exhibit giving a few of the reasons why letters, packages and other parcels, placed in the hands of the U. S. Postal service for delivery, are either delayed or lost completely, is being shown in the window of the Union Savings and Loan company at 1218 O street.

In one year, according to this exhibit, 19,238,548 letters, circulars and other light packages are received at the dead letter office.

Thousands of letters are mailed without proper addresses. Others have no return addresses. If they are lost in any way or are not accepted at marked destination there is no way of knowing where to return them.

Merchandise valued at approximately $1,023,095 also finds it final destination in the dead letter office for practically the same reasons. In some instances the failure to wrap the packages securely causes a loss.

Too much water on the stamps or on the envelope sealing often causes the envelope to open and the contents are accidently lost. Or the stamps fail to stick to the envelope.

The purpose of the exhibit is to remind people of these facts and possibly eliminate some of this great waste.

Friday	3,532	3,547
Saturday	2,541	3,000

The second annual food show which has been conducted during the entire week at the city auditorium by The Lincoln Star, closed Saturday evening with a total attendance of nearly 22,000. Each afternoon and evening the auditorium has been packed with men and women eager to see the various exhibits offered by wholesalers and manufacturers. Thousands of samples have been distributed during the week, and there was a steady stream of people at the various booths where small samples of edibles were given out.

According to the exhibitors, the Lincoln 1924 show has been one of the most successful they ever have attended. Each of them stated that he had more opportunity to place his goods before the real consumers than ever before and had been able to open several new accounts, to say nothing of orders taken and goods sold over the counter.

The cooking school, under the direction of Mrs. M. D. Zimmerman, was exceptionally well attended, the class registrations being greater than those of last year.

Good Entertainment.

Good entertainment in the way of orchestra and vocal music has added to the public's interest in the show during the week The Candy Kids, one the best jazz orchestras in the state, played each afternoon and evening and were one of the high spots of the show. John Costello delighted the audiences each day with his novelty songs and eccentric dancing. Harold Beunz at the piano constributed no small part to the popularity of the orchestra.

The Lyric quartet, composed of Hobart Davis, Frances Diers, Joe Zimmerman and Lloyd Robinson, gave a group of songs each evening.

The exhibitors who had displays at the show were as follows:

H. P. Lau & Co., which displayed all kinds of salad dressings, sandwich spreads and Milady coffee; Morton Salt Co., salt; Lincoln Packing Co., display of fresh and cooked meats arranged in a very artistic manner; H. Oil Blaze In East Causes Big Loss

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 25.—Fire in the Ballard Oil company building in Doremus avenue here tonight caused a series of terrific explosions which shook several surrounding cities.

Following the shocks, the sky was lighted by a column of flame visible for miles.

Five gasoline tanks let go, according to an early report received by the police.

Locomotives were run into the Ballard plant and took tank cars out of the danger zone. The fire was controlled in two hours with loss of $100,000.

WILL CONTINUE INQUIRY UNTIL ELECTION DAY

money collecting campaign by letter, that he had only taken in $217. From the tenor of the letters sent out in this campaign, it had been calculated that his collections would go into the hundreds of thousands.

All of the republican leaders who have appeared before the committee have been unanimous in declaring that the money has not been so easy to get, although they are hopeful of raising the $3,000,000 which was decided as necessary to finance the Coolidge-Dawes campaign.

Mellons are Called.

Collections in the Pittsburgh district of Pennsylvania under the direction of relatives of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will be taken up by the committee on Monday with R. B. Mellon and W. L. Mellon of the Mellon National bank on the stand.

A score of other witnesses from the east are on the schedule for Monday, but their testimony is expected to be spread over three or four days as a result of lengthy questioning and cross examination.

Chairman William M. Butler and Treasurer William V. Hodges, of the republican national committee, will also go on the stand again next week for additional cross examination by the La Follette attorneys.

They will be asked, among other things, of the rumors of the sending of $100,000 into Montana to be used against Senator Thomas J. Walsh, the oil investigator, who is seeking re-election and who says large sums are being sent into his state, in addition to the money regularly accounted for by the republican organization to defeat him.

Charge Is Denied.

The charge was denied today in a telegram to Senator Borah from J. W. Anderson, state chairman of the farmer-labor party in Montana.

Senator Borah today made public reports from the republican national committee showing that more than half of the money collected up to October 10 was received from New York, Illinois and Pennsylvania.

The campaign fund collections, by states, follow:

New York $514,521; Illinois $390,822; Pennsylvania $237,621; Massachusetts $73,710; Ohio, $71,956; New Jersey $66,249; Missouri $58,302; Michigan $57,346; Vermont, $37,597; Wisconsin $30,848; Colorado, $20,282; Indiana $15,327; Louisiana $12,220; Virginia $10,619; District of Columbia $9,272; Nebraska $9,127; Minnesota $7,728; Arkansas 7,610; Connecticut $6,008; Iowa $5,779; Alabama $5,778; California $5,465; Oregon $5,285; Kansas $5,026; Rhode Island $4,906; Mississippi $4,093; Texas $2,858; Georgia $2,507; Nevada $2,500; Florida $2,443; New Mexico $2,141; South Dakota $1,235; est Virginia $1,217; Maine $1,170; Kentucky $461; Alaska $300; Washington $285; Delaware $105; Tennessee $102; Maryland $70; North Carolina $50; North Dakota $44; New Hampshire $32; Oklahoma $6; Montana $5; Utah $5; Foreign $1,400; Arizona, Idaho and Wyoming, nothing.

Promises Investigation.

AIKEN, Md., Oct. 25.—From his resting place in this quiet little village, Senator Robert M. LaFollette announced tonight that in the next session of congress he will launch a vigorous investigation to determine how "large financiers and millionaires have dodged payment of income taxes."

"We are going to find out in addition, just what Secretary Mellon and other officials of the treasury department have done to stop this form of tax dodging."

Publication in the newspapers of the income tax of some financiers "is in itself sufficient to demonstrate the extent to which the federal taxes have been evaded by tax dodgers," La Follette continued.

The senator hailed press publication of the returns—despite "the warning of Mellon"—as a complete justification of the long fight that has been made by progressives to open tax returns to public inspection.

Predicts "Greater Honesty."

La Follette predicted that the light of publicity on income tax would promote "greater returns to the federal treasury and greater honesty in the payment of taxes than a horde of internal revenue collectors."

The progressive candidate also made public tonight a telegram that he sent to Senator Thomas J. Walsh democrat of Montana, calling upon the progressives in that state to reelect Walsh to the senate. Walsh's defeat, the message said, "would be a national victory for the despoilers of the navy's oil reserves."

His private car parked on a siding, La Follette will rest here until Monday noon when he will leave for Baltimore to open the final week of his campaign.

Many U. S. Meat Packing Kings Fail To Pay Any Tax

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 25.—Examination of tax records here today revealed that many of America's meat packing kings paid no tax on their 1923 incomes.

Included in the list of millionaires, whose names do not appear on the books are Edward F. Swift, J. Ogden Armour, A. Watson Armour, Edwin Morriss and Nelson Morris.

It is not a result of tax evasion, according to Miss Mabel Reinecke, collector, but is due to the fact that none of these millionaires had incomes large enough to be taxed. Their firms, however, paid a tax on their incomes.

Relatives of some of the packers filed no return. Count James Minotto, son-in-law of Louis Swift, who entertained the Prince of Wales, did not file a return. The name of Belle Armour, wife of J. Ogden Armour, was not on the tax list. Lawrence Armour filed no return.

Approximately 5,000 of the curious stormed the collectors office today seeking information on incomes.

M'KINLEY ATTACKED.

WASHIGTON, Oct., 25.— Senator William B. McKinley of Illinois, republican, was charged tonight by La Follette-Wheeler headquarters here with having been instrumental in obtaining from President Coolidge, the pardon of Philip Grossman of Chicago, who was convicted of violating a prohibition injunction and sentenced to a year in jail.

ECONOMY IS NORTON AIM

gathering of 100 in the city hall at University Place at 7:30. Mr. Norton was the guest of the Everett society at University Place for dinner.

Sterling Mutz presided at the Grand hotel meeting and predicted Norton's election to the governorship with the united support of progressive democrats and progressive republicans. The opposing candidate on the republican ticket, Mr. Mutz said, represents reaction, conservatism and standpatism.

Favors Code Repeal.

The democratic nominee came out squarely for repeal of the code law. He said it was enacted at the wrong time and in the wrong way, by forcing it through the legislature of 1919, instead of leaving it to the constitutional convention, which met a few months later, to consider changes in the state government.

He criticized the setting up of a group of appointive officials to do work that was formerly done by the elective officers, leaving the latter little but clerical duties to perfrom. It was characterized as an unfair proceeding on the part of ex-Governor McKelvie and his advisers when they invoked a technicality to prevent the question being put to a vote of the people for approval or disapproval, after more than 20,000 had signed petitions for a referendum.

"This new kind of government which Mr. McKelvie gave us resulted in raising appropriations from eight or nine million dollars in a biennium to twenty-five or thirty millions," Norton continued. "He had promised to reduce taxes, but it worked out in the wrong direction."

Asks Sympathetic Legislature.

"If I am elected governor," the democratic nominee told his hearers, "I trust that I may have a progressive and forward-looking legislature to work with me in carrying out the people's wishes. I promise you, on my part, to co-operate with the legislature toward that end."

Governor Bryan was credited by the speaker with achieving a notable reduction of $6,000,000 in state taxes in the face of statements made by his opponents in the campaign two years ago that "it can't be done."

"Now that it has been done, they admit the fact but say it wasn't the governor who brought about the reduction," he commented. "Well, the governor made up the budget for the legislature in 1923, and it took a three-fifths vote of each branch to increase appropriations over his recommendations, and as his opponents did not have such a majority in the house they were not able to do this. So the governor really did force the reductions."

Cities Own Economy Record.

Reference was made by Mr. Norton to the cut of $1,000,000 made in the legislative session of 1915, when he himself was chairman of the finance committee in the house. In the same session, he succeeded in having the force of employes in the house cut down from 100 to fewer than 40, while at the same time the work was done more efficiently than before.

The intangible tax law was condemned as an unfair discrimination against the farmer, the merchant, the home owner, and other taxpayers, in favor of the owner of stocks, bonds and mortgages.

"If you elect me and a legislature that agrees with me, that law will be repealed," he promised.

"I have been asked whether I will continue the sale of coal and gasoline through state agencies, as Governor Bryan has been doing," Norton said. "My answer is that if I find any combination practicing extortion upon the people I will use the power of the state to protect them, just as Bryan has done. Probabaly that will not be necessary if we have a legal department which will act vigorously in enforcing the laws, and if Harry Fleharty is elected attorney general we can depend on getting that kind of service from the legal department."

Touches National Issues.

Declaring that the democratic ticket is made up of progressive candidates, from Davis and Bryan down, Mr. Norton devoted a part of his address to national questions. Four years of "normalcy" and deflation, he said, has knocked the farmer flat, except for some slight temporary relief through higher prices due to crop failures in other countries.

The Coolidge plan to appoint a commission for the investigation of agricultural problems was ridiculed as a campaign expedient pure and simple.

"Either give agriculture some stilts of its own, such as the government has furnished to the manufacturers, the railroads, and other interests or else knock the props out from under these special beneficaries of governmental favoritism, and put everybody on the same footing," he demanded.

Alluding to his own status as a dirt farmer, Mr. Norton suggested that there are a lot of politicians these days claiming to have much in common with the farmers.

"But some of them are retired farmers, and others are the rubber-tired variety," he added.

Fleharty Hits Tariff.

Mr. Fleharty, speaking before Norton arrived, analyzed the fundamental difference between the democratic and republican parties, as exemplified by their respective positions on the tariff issue.

"The republican theory" he stated, "is to get what you can from the government, because that's what the governmnt is for. Democrats believe that government derives its sovereignty from the citizens and that it should not favor one over another.

"All tariff laws are passed for the purpose of revenue. The only question is: Who gets the revenue? If the government gets it, you know it is a democratic measure. If the revenue goes to the fellow who is 'protected,' it is a republican bill.

"I might go out and build big glass buildings covering acres of ground and start to raising bananas here in ebraska, to sell to the American people: and if I could get congress to put a tariff of 25 cents a peace on bananas shipped in from other countries the American people would have to buy my hothouse bananas at my own price, or go without. That's the way the tariff works.

Erasing the Constitution.

Asserting that the candidacy of La Follette for president stands for "every ism and every schism" known in this country, Mr. Fleharty charged that La Follette's plan to override supreme court decisions by act of congress is an eraser which could be used to rub out important provisions of the constitution.

"Some of those who worked hardest to write the 18th amendment into the constitution are now helping to hand Bob La Follette this little eraser to rub it out," he declared.

Voters who are dissatisfied with the Coolidge administration were urged to "make your bolt effective" by voting for Davis and Bryan, because there was no chance of La Follette's being elected president.

"If Davis is elected, congress will function as it should," Mr. Fleharty stated. "Should Coolidge win, chaos will continue."

After the meeting started, it was necessary to bring more chairs into the hall to accomodate late comers.

The room was profusely decorated with "Teapot Dome" souvenirs in the shape of cardboard teakettles, many of which were taken from the walls and curtains and carried home by those in attendance, to put up in their front windows.

'AL' SMITH AND DAVIS JOIN HANDS TO CARRY STATE

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—"Al" Smith took off his hat, coat and vest tonight—just as he had promised to the democratic convention last June—and joined hands with John W. Davis for an intensive final drive upon New York.

The democratic gubernatorial candidate and the presidential nominee opened their dual campaign with speeches to an assemblage of democratic women at a hotel meeting here.

There the new slogan of "Davis, Smith and Victory" was emblazoned on streamers and banners and acclaimed by both Davis and Smith in their addresses.

Davis' friends are elated over the decision of the New York governor to help his campaign down here and lend his personal influence to the last minute effort to wrest control of New York's forty-five electoral votes. They do not see how he can lose the state with Smith's and Tammany hall's strength actively in the fight.

Denounces Corruption.

In his speech, Davis blamed the reaction of republicans for creation of the third party movement; denounced corruption in government and spoke of special legislation in which women's organizations are interested.

"But I have insisted from the beginning," he said, "that I had no message to bring to the women of this country which was not equally addressed to their brothers, for under my conception of American politics there is no division of the American people into two great groups, men on the one side, and women on the other—but there is an absolute and an equal partnership both in prosperity and failure."

His other two speeches of the day were in Staten Island and at Mount Morris high school in the Bronx.

Again Condemns Klan.

"If the day shall ever come in this country," he said tonight, "when the doctrine of racial and religious equality is ever challenged—whether that challenge comes from the Ku Klux Klan or any other body—if I am ever afraid to raise my voice in condemnation, I hope my arm will fall palsied at my side and my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth.

"That is where I stand on the Ku Klux Klan."

A return to power of the Coolidge administration, he said, would "offer neither hope of reform in the present or of progress in the future."

Davis also denounced attacks upon radicalism as a "republican smoke screen."

Themselves to Blame.

"If there is radicalism in this country, if all the forces of discontent muster themselves in a common assault, who produced it?" Davis demanded, "Why, it was the very men who make it today the excuse for their return to power."

eral arrangements later in the evening. Services for the former secretary will be held in the east room at 11 o'clock Monday morning, the Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe officiating. Final services will be held in Des Moines on Wednesday.

The death of Secretary Wallace caused a wave of sadness and genuine regret throughout official Washington for he was one of the most popular members of the government.

Mr. Wallace came to Washington as a member of the original Harding cabinet. He owed his selection to being one of the outstanding figures in the agricultural world and it was said that President Harding considered no other candidate for the post after ascertaining that he would accept.

Secretary Wallace's life was one of devotion and study of agriculture and its kindred problems. He was an ardent conservationist, and his championship of this policy, particularly with regard to forests and public lands, provided one of the few controversies that marked his official life in Washington. He opposed Albert B. Fall's policy of opening up Alaska to the exploitation of private capital, fought Fall's efforts to get the national forests transferred from the department of agriculture to the interior department and had the satisfaction of seeing his policies ultimately upheld by President Harding following the ill-fated Alaska trip.

Wallace was a member of the Harding party on that tragic journey.

Taught at Ames.

Born in Rock Island, Ill., in May, 1866, Mr. Wallace attended Iowa State college at Ames, specializing in agricultural and dairying subjects. After being graduated he became a breeder of thoroughbred cattle in Adair county, Iowa, and after this practical farming for several years he again returned to Ames as professor in dairying. A few years later he became identified with the agriculture publishing business and in 1895 founded the Wallace Publishing Co., editing Wallace's Farmer, which has grown to be one of the foremost farm journals of the country.

In the absence of Assistant Secretary Howard M. Gore, President Coolidge tonight designated Charles M. Marvin, chief of the United States weather bureau, as acting secretary of agriculture.

President Coolidge cancelled all engagements for Monday, including a speech he was to have delivered to a delegation of advertising men at the white house.

It is understood the president has no immediate plans for filling the vacancy in his cabinet, the third that has occurred in the fifteen months of his adiministration. It will probably go over until after the election.

Lowden Possible Successor.

Among the names heard tonight, in this connection, was that of former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, who turned down the vice presidential nomination, but whose interest in agriculture might prevail upon him to accept the cabinet post.

Only one of the six Wallace children was in Washington tonight, the daughter who was at the bedside. Three sons, Henry A., John D., and James W., were en route to the capital from Iowa. Two married daughters, Mrs. Angus W. McLay of Birmingham, Mich., and Mrs. Charles Bruggemann, wife of the secretary of the Swiss legation, in Paris, will be unable to attend the funeral, it was said tonight.

Secretary Wallace was very popular with other members of the cabinet. One, Secretary of War Weeks, was in a room adjoining the sick room when the end came.

"It has been my privilege," he said, "to have enjoyed a close personal friendship with Secretary Wallace during the Harding and Coolidge administrations. He was a man of high character and ability. I shall mourn him as a friend and as an able public servant."

ley, Gage county, who pulled a gun on four officers in Gage county and wounded one of them when they undertook to arrest him. He himself was shot three times and captured.

Auto Theft Cases.

One of the men paroled after serving the minimum time for stealing automobiles is LeRoy Reese, Lancaster county, whose testimony helped to convict Edward Mares of Wilber for receiving and purchasing machines picked up by a gang that worked in and around Lincoln. Mares' sentence of 1 to 7 years was affirmed by the Nebraska supreme court a few days ago.

Reese was serving in the reformatory. Two others doing time in the same institution for similar offenses, Leonard Stone of Lancaster county and Emery Towle of Furnas, are paroled with him. The pardon board is also allowing two convicts at the penitentiary, from Douglas county, sering on like charges, to go out.

Releases Divorced Bigamist.

After hearing from both women inolved in the bigamy conviction of William L. Dittman in Valley county, the board concluded to let him return to the second wife and his two children by her, who are ing with relatives near Ord. He agreed to remarry her, the other wife having secured a divorce.

Overlooks Lunn's Violation.

Notwithstanding that Marion E. Lunn, under sentence of 1 to 20 years for forgery in Dodge county, had broken his parole on a former occasion, the board decided to give him another chance. He left the state without permission, he explained, in order to see his wife and baby, and then was afraid to return. He landed in the Oklahoma penitentiary and was sent back from there.

Tuesday	3,870	4,125
Wednesday	4,376	4,568
Thursday	3,610	3,820
Friday	3,532	3,547
Saturday	3,544	3,000

The second annual food show which has been conducted during the entire week at the city auditorium by The Lincoln Star, closed Saturday evening with a total attendance of nearly 22,000. Each afternoon and evening the auditorium has been packed with men and women eager to see the various exhibits offered by wholesalers and manufacturers. Thousands of samples have been distributed during the week, and there was a steady stream of people at the various booths where small samples of edibles were given out.

According to the exhibitors, the Lincoln 1924 show has been one of the most successful they ever have attended. Each of them stated that he had more opportunity to place his goods before the real consumers than ever before and had been able to open several new accounts, to say nothing of orders taken and goods sold over the counter.

The cooking school, under the direction of Mrs. M. D. Zimmerman, was exceptionally well attended, the class registrations being greater than those of last year.

Good Entertainment.

Good entertainment in the way of orchestra and vocal music has added to the public's interest in the show during the week The Candy Kids, one the best jazz orchestras in the state, played each afternoon and evening and were one of the high spots of the show. John Costello delighted the audiences each day with his novelty songs and eccentric dancing. Harold Beunz at the piano constributed no small part to the popularity of the orchestra.

The Lyric quartet, composed of Hobart Davis, Frances Diers, Joe Zimmerman and Lloyd Robinson, gave a group of songs each evening.

The exhibitors who had displays at the show were as follows:

H. P. Lau & Co., which displayed all kinds of salad dressings, sandwich spreads and Milady coffee; Morton Salt Co., salt; Lincoln Packing Co., display of fresh and cooked meats arranged in a very artistic manner; H. P. Sanders of Hutchinson, Kas., had charge of this display, which created a great deal of enthusiasm. Seidel was the demonstrator; Peet Bros. demonstrated Crystal White soap and soap flakes, and also gave small samples; Raymond Bros. Oil Blaze In East Causes Big Loss

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 25.—Fire in the Ballard Oil company building in Doremus avenue here tonight caused a series of terrific explosions which shook several surrounding cities.

Following the shocks, the sky was lighted by a column of flame visible for miles.

Five gasoline tanks let go, according to an early report received by the police.

Locomotives were run into the Ballard plant and took tank cars out of the danger zone. The fire was controlled in two hours with loss of $100,000.

money collecting campaign by letter, that he had only taken in $217. From the tenor of the letters sent out in this campaign, it had been calculated that his collections would go into the hundreds of thousands.

All of the republican leaders who have appeared before the committee have been unanimous in declaring that the money has not been so easy to get, although they are hopeful of raising the $3,000,000 which was decided as necessary to finance the Coolidge-Dawes campaign.

Melions are Called.

Collections in the Pittsburgh district of Pennsylvania under the direction of relatives of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will be taken up by the committee on Monday with R. B. Mellon and W. L. Mellon of the Mellon National bank on the stand.

A score of other witnesses from the east are on the schedule for Monday, but their testimony is expected to be spread over three or four days as a result of lengthy questioning and cross examination.

Chairman William M. Butler and Treasurer William V. Hodges, of the republican national committee, will also go on the stand again next week for additional cross examination by the La Follette attorneys.

They will be asked, among other things, of the rumors of the sending of $100,000 into Montana to be used against Senator Thomas J. Walsh, the oil investigator, who is seeking re-election and who says large sums are being sent into his state, in addition to the money regularly accounted for by the republican organization to defeat him.

Charge Is Denied.

The charge was denied today in a telegram to Senator Borah from J. W. Anderson, state chairman of the farmer-labor party in Montana.

Senator Borah today made public reports from the republican national committee showing that more than half of the money collected up to October 10 was received from New York, Illinois and Pennsylvania.

The campaign fund collections, by states, follow:

New York $514,521; Illinois $390,822; Pennsylvania $257,621; Massachusetts $73,710; Ohio, $71,956; New Jersey $66,249; Missouri $58,302; Michigan $57,346; Vermont, $37,597; Wisconsin $30,848; Colorado, $20,282; Indiana $15,327; Louisiana $12,220; Virginia $10,619; District of Columbia $9,272; Nebraska $9,127; Minnesota $7,728; Arkansas 7,610; Connecticut $6,008; Iowa $5,779; Alabama $5,778; California $5,465; Oregon $5,285; Kansas $5,026; Rhode Island $4,906; Mississippi $4,093; Texas $2,858; Georgia $2,507; Nevada $2,500; Florida $2,443; New Mexico $2,141; South Dakota $1,235; est Virginia $1,217; Maine $1,170; Kentucky $461; Alaska $300; Washington $285; Delaware $105; Tennessee $102; Maryland $70; North Carolina $50; North Dakota $44; New Hampshire $32; Oklahoma $6; Montana $5; Utah $5; Foreign $1,400; Arizona, Idaho and Wyoming, nothing.

Promises Investigation.

AIKEN, Md., Oct. 25.—From his resting place in this quiet little village, Senator Robert M. LaFollette announced tonight that in the next session of congress he will launch a vigorous investigation to determine how "large financiers and millionaires have dodged payment of income taxes."

"We are going to find out in addition, just what Secretary Mellon and other officials of the treasury department have done to stop this form of tax dodging."

Publication in the newspapers of the income tax of some financiers "is in itself sufficient to demonstrate the extent to which the federal taxes have been evaded by tax dodgers," La Follette continued.

The senator hailed press publication of the returns—despite "the warning of Mellon"—as a complete justification of the long fight that has been made by progressives to open tax returns to public inspection.

Predicts "Greater Honesty."

La Follette predicted that the light of publicity on income tax would promote "greater returns to the federal treasury and greater honesty in the payment of taxes than a horde of internal revenue collectors."

The progressive candidate also made public tonight a telegram that he sent to Senator Thomas J. Walsh democrat of Montana, calling upon the progressives in that state to reelect Walsh to the senate. Walsh's defeat, the message said, "would be a national victory for the despoilers of the navy's oil reserves."

His private car parked on a siding, La Follette will rest here until Monday noon when he will leave for Baltimore to open the final week of his campaign.

Many U. S. Meat Packing Kings Fail To Pay Any Tax

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 25.—Examination of tax records here today revealed that many of America's meat packing kings paid no tax on their 1923 incomes.

Included in the list of millionaires, whose names do not appear on the books are Edward F. Swift, J. Ogden Armour, A. Watson Armour, Edwin Morriss and Nelson Morris.

It is not a result of tax evasion, according to Miss Mabel Reinecke, collector, but is due to the fact that none of these millionaires had incomes large enough to be taxed. Their firms, however, paid a tax on their incomes.

Relatives of some of the packers filed no return. Count James Minotto, son-in-law of Louis Swift, who entertained the Prince of Wales, did not file a return. The name of Belle Armour, wife of J. Ogden Armour, was not on the tax list. Lawrence Armour filed no return.

Approximately 5,000 of the curious stormed the collectors office today seeking information on incomes.

M'KINLEY ATTACKED.

WASHIGTON, Oct., 25.— Senator William B. McKinley of Illinois, republican, was charged tonight by La Follette-Wheeler headquarters here with having been instrumental in obtaining from President Coolidge, the pardon of Philip Grossman of Chicago, who was convicted of violating a prohibition injunction and sentenced to a year in jail.

ECONOMY IS NORTON AIM

gathering of 100 in the city hall at University Place at 7:30. Mr. Norton was the guest of the Everett society at University Place for dinner.

Sterling Mutz presided at the Grand hotel meeting and predicted Norton's election to the governorship with the united support of progressive democrats and progressive republicans. The opposing candidate on the republican ticket, Mr. Mutz said, represents reaction, conservatism and standpatism.

Favors Code Repeal.

The democratic nominee came out squarely for repeal of the code law. He said it was enacted at the wrong time and in the wrong way, by forcing it through the legislature of 1919, instead of leaving it to the constitutional convention, which met a few months later, to consider changes in the state government.

He criticized the setting up of a group of appointive officials to do work that was formerly done by the elective officers, leaving the latter little but clerical duties to perfrom. It was characterized as an unfair proceeding on the part of ex-Governor McKelvie and his advisers when they invoked a technicality to prevent the question being put to a vote of the people for approval or disapproval, after more than 20,000 had signed petitions for a referendum.

"This new kind of government which Mr. McKelvie gave us resulted in raising appropriations from eight or nine million dollars in a biennium to twenty-five or thirty millions," Norton continued. "He had promised to reduce taxes, but it worked out in the wrong direction."

Asks Sympathetic Legislature.

"If I am elected governor," the democratic nominee told his hearers, "I trust that I may have a progressive and forward-looking legislature to work with me in carrying out the people's wishes. I promise you, on my part, to co-operate with the legislature toward that end."

Governor Bryan was credited by the speaker with achieving a notable reduction of $6,000,000 in state taxes in the face of statements made by his opponents in the campaign two years ago that "it can't be done."

"Now that it has been done, they admit the fact but say it wasn't the governor who brought about the reduction," he commented. "Well, the governor made up the budget for the legislature in 1923, and it took a three-fifths vote of each branch to increase appropriations over his recommendations, and as his opponents did not have such a majority in the house they were not able to do this. So the governor really did force the reductions."

Cities Own Economy Record.

Reference was made by Mr. Norton to the cut of $1,000,000 made in the legislative session of 1915, when he himself was chairman of the finance committee in the house. In the same session, he succeeded in having the force of employes in the house cut down from 100 to fewer than 40, while at the same time the work was done more efficiently than before.

The intangible tax law was condemned as an unfair discrimination against the farmer, the merchant, the home owner, and other taxpayers, in favor of the owner of stocks, bonds and mortgages.

"If you elect me and a legislature that agrees with me, that law will be repealed," he promised.

"I have been asked whether I will continue the sale of coal and gasoline through state agencies, as Governor Bryan has been doing," Norton said. "My answer is that if I find any combination practicing extortion upon the people I will use the power of the state to protect them, just as Bryan has done. Probabaly that will not be necessary if we have a legal department which will act vigorously in enforcing the laws, and if Harry Fleharty is elected attorney general we can depend on getting that kind of service from the legal department."

Touches National Issues.

Declaring that the democratic ticket is made up of progressive candidates, from Davis and Bryan down, Mr. Norton devoted a part of his address to national questions. Four years of "normalcy" and deflation, he said, has knocked the farmer flat, except for some slight temporary relief through higher prices due to crop failures in other countries.

The Coolidge plan to appoint a commission for the investigation of agricultural problems was ridiculed as a campaign expedient pure and simple.

"Either give agriculture some stilts of its own, such as the government has furnished to the manufacturers, the railroads, and other interests or else knock the props out from under these special beneficaries of governmental favoritism, and put everybody on the same footing," he demanded.

Alluding to his own status as a dirt farmer, Mr. Norton suggested that there are a lot of politicians these days claiming to have much in common with the farmers.

"But some of them are retired farmers, and others are the rubbertired variety," he added.

Fleharty Hits Tariff.

Mr. Fleharty, speaking before Norton arrived, analyzed the fundamental difference between the democratic and republican parties, as exemplified by their respective positions on the tariff issue.

"The republican theory" he stated, "is to get what you can from the government, because that's what the governmnt is for. Democrats believe that, government derives its sovereignty from the citizens and that it should not favor one over another.

"All tariff laws are passed for the purpose of revenue. The only question is: Who gets the revenue? If the government gets it, you know it is a democratic measure. If the revenue goes to the fellow who is 'protected,' it is a republican bill.

"I might go out and build big glass buildings covering acres of ground and start to raising bananas here in ebraska, to sell to the American people; and if I could get congress to put a tariff of 25 cents a peace on bananas shipped in from other countries the American people would have to buy my hothouse bananas at my own price, or go without. That's the way the tariff works.

Erasing the Constitution.

Asserting that the candidacy of La Follette for president stands for "every ism and every schism" known in this country, Mr. Fleharty charged that La Follette's plan to override supreme court decisions by act of congress is an eraser which could be used to rub out important provisions of the constitution.

"Some of those who worked hardest to write the 18th amendment into the constitution are now helping to hand Bob La Follette this little eraser to rub it out," he declared.

Voters who are dissatisfied with the Coolidge administration were urged to "make your bolt effective" by voting for Davis and Bryan, because there was no chance of La Follette's being elected president.

"If Davis is elected, congress will function as it should," Mr. Fleharty stated. "Should Coolidge win, chaos will continue."

After the meeting started, it was necessary to bring more chairs into the hall to accomodate late comers.

The room was profusely decorated with "Teapot Dome" souvenirs in the shape of cardboard teakettles, many of which were taken from the walls and curtains and carried home by those in attendance, to put up in their front windows.

'AL' SMITH AND DAVIS JOIN HANDS TO CARRY STATE

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—"Al" Smith took off his hat, coat and vest tonight—just as he had promised to the democratic convention last June—and joined hands with John W. Davis for an intensive final drive upon New York.

The democratic gubernatorial candidate and the presidential nominee opened their dual campaign with speeches to an assemblage of democratic women at a hotel meeting here.

There the new slogan of "Davis, Smith and Victory" was emblazoned on streamers and banners and acclaimed by both Davis and Smith in their addresses.

Davis' friends are elated over the decision of the New York governor to help his campaign down here and lend his personal influence to the last minute effort to wrest control of New York's forty-five electoral votes. They do not see how he can lose the state with Smith's and Tammany hall's strength actively in the fight.

Denounces Corruption.

In his speech, Davis blamed the reaction of republicans for creation of the third party movement; denounced corruption in government and spoke of special legislation in which women's organizations are interested.

"But I have insisted from the beginning," he said, "that I had no message to bring to the women of this country which was not equally addressed to their brothers, for under my conception of American politics there is no division of the American people into two great groups, men on the one side, and women on the other—but there is an absolute and an equal partnership both in prosperity and failure."

His other two speeches of the day were in Staten Island and at Mount Morris high school in the Bronx.

Again Condemns Klan.

"If the day shall ever come in this country," he said tonight, "when the doctrine of racial and religious equality is ever challenged—whether that challenge comes from the Ku Klux Klan or any other body—if I am ever afraid to raise my voice in condemnation, I hope my arm will fall palsied at my side and my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth.

"That is where I stand on the Ku Klux Klan."

A return to power of the Coolidge administration, he said, would "offer neither hope of reform in the present or of progress in the future."

Themselves to Blame.

"If there is radicalism in this country, if all the forces of discontent muster themselves in a common assault, who produced it?" Davis demanded, "Why, it was the very men who make it today the excuse for their return to power."

eral arrangements later in the evening. Services for the former secretary will be held in the east room at 11 o'clock Monday morning, the Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe officiating. Final services will be held in Des Moines on Wednesday.

The death of Secretary Wallace caused a wave of sadness and genuine regret throughout official Washington for he was one of the most popular members of the government.

Mr. Wallace came to Washington as a member of the original Harding cabinet. He owed his selection to being one of the outstanding figures in the agricultural world and it was said that President Harding considered no other candidate for the post after ascertaining that he would accept.

Secretary Wallace's life was one of devotion and study of agriculture and its kindred problems. He was an ardent conservationist, and his championship of this policy, particularly with regard to forests and public lands, provided one of the few controversies that marked his official life in Washington. He opposed Albert B. Fall's policy of opening up Alaska to the exploitation of private capital, fought Fall's efforts to get the national forests transferred from the department of agriculture to the interior department and had the satisfaction of seeing his policies ultimately upheld by President Harding following the ill-fated Alaska trip.

Wallace was a member of the Harding party on that tragic journey.

Taught at Ames.

Born in Rock Island, Ill., in May, 1866, Mr. Wallace attended Iowa State college at Ames, specializing in agricultural and dairying subjects. After being graduated he became a breeder of thoroughbred cattle in Adair county, Iowa, and after this practical farming for several years he again returned to Ames as professor in dairying. A few years later he became identified with the agriculture publishing business and in 1895 founded the Wallace Publishing Co., editing Wallace's Farmer, which has grown to be one of the foremost farm journals of the country.

In the absence of Assistant Secretary Howard M. Gore, President Coolidge tonight designated Charles M. Marvin, chief of the United States weather bureau, as acting secretary of agriculture.

President Coolidge cancelled all engagements for Monday, including a speech he was to have delivered to a delegation of advertising men at the white house.

It is understood the president has no immediate plans for filling the vacancy in his cabinet, the third that has occurred in the fifteen months of hs adiministration. It will probably go over until after the election.

Lowden Possible Successor.

Among the names heard tonight, in this connection, was that of former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, who turned down the vice presidential nomination, but whose interest in agriculture might prevail upon him to accept the cabinet post.

Only one of the six Wallace children was in Washington tonight, the daughter who was at the bedside. Three sons, Henry A., John D., and James W., were en route to the capital from Iowa. Two married daughters, Mrs. Angus W. McLay of Birmingham, Mich., and Mrs. Charles Bruggemann, wife of the secretary of the Swiss legation, in Paris, will be unable to attend the funeral, it was said tonight.

Secretary Wallace was very popular with other members of the cabinet. One, Secretary of War Weeks, was in a room adjoining the sick room when the end came.

"It has been my privilege," he said, "to have enjoyed a close personal friendship with Secretary Wallace during the Harding and Coolidge administrations. He was a man of high character and ability. I shall mourn him as a friend and as an able public servant."

ley, Gage county, who pulled a gun on four officers in Gage county and wounded one of them when they undertook to arrest him. He himself was shot three times and captured.

Auto Theft Cases.

One of the men paroled after serving the minimum time for stealing automobiles is LeRoy Reese, Lancaster county, whose testimony helped to convict Edward Mares of Wilber for receiving and purchasing machines picked up by a gang that worked in and around Lincoln. Mares' sentence of 1 to 7 years was affirmed by the Nebraska supreme court a few days ago.

Reese was serving in the reformatory. Two others doing time in the same institution for similar offenses, Leonard Stone of Lancaster county and Emery Towle of Furnas, are paroled with him. The pardon board is also allowing two convicts at the penitentiary, from Douglas county, sering on like charges, to go out.

Releases Divorced Bigamist.

After hearing from both women inolved in the bigamy conviction of William L. Dittman in Valley county, the board concluded to let him return to the second wife and his two children by her, who are ing with relatives near Ord. He agreed to remarry her, the other wife having secured a divorce.

Overlooks Lunn's Violation.

Notwithstanding that Marion E. Lunn, under sentence of 1 to 20 years for forgery in Dodge county, had broken his parole on a former occasion, the board decided to give him another chance. He left the state without permission, he explained, in order to see his wife and baby, and then was afraid to return. He landed in the Oklahoma penitentiary and was sent back from there.

Shall Dishonesty Be Condoned?

THE conditions that have existed at the national capital since the republican party came into power, as disclosed through congressional investigations, which were fought at every step by the administraton, constitute one of the blackest and most disgraceful pages of American history.

It is probable that the transactions in connection with the leasing of the naval oil reserves shocked the nation to a greater extent than any of the other disgraceful episodes which have left indelible spots upon the career of the administration.

In the beginning it must be known that the first resolution looking to an investigation of the leasing of oil reserves in Wyoming was introduced in the senate on April 15, 1922, by Senator Kendrick, democrat of Wyoming. One week before he had made inquiry at the interior department in regard to such leases, but had been informed that none had as yet been signed. It later developed that on the very day he made his inquiry a lease of all the Teapot Dome reserve to Harry F. Sinclair had been signed by Secretary Albert B. Fall of the interior department and Secretary Edwin Denby of the navy department. On April 18 it was admitted publicly that the lease had been made, and three days later Senator La Follette offered a resolution providing for a general inquiry into all oil reserve leases.

This resolution was debated in full on three different days, during all of which time vice president, now President Coolidge presided. It was adopted on April 29. In the meantime, however, and while the legality and advisability of such leases were being vigorously attacked, the other big lease, turning over the Elk Hill reserve in California, was quietly negotiated with Edward L. Doheny and was signed by Secretaries Denby and Fall on April 25. No mention of this was made at the time, but it became publicly known later.

THE La Follette resolution required the secretary of the interior to furnish to the senate files and data in relation to the leases and it took him until June to do so. At that time Fall sent to President Harding a report of his policy of making oil leases, asking him to transmit the same to the senate.

In his report Secretary Fall said that his whole policy in the matter had been "REPORTED AND DISCUSSED FROM TIME TO TIME, BOTH PRIVATELY WITH YOURSELF AND IN YOUR CABINET MEETINGS."

Nor was President Harding alone in his approval, for the entire republican organization was with him and so strong was the party in congress at that time that it was not until after the senate had been reorganized, following the election of November, 1922, that it was possible to proceed with the investigation. That election materially cut down the republican majority and gave the democrats a working control of the committee on public lands.

Finally the whole malodorous mess was exposed through efforts of the investigating committee and a resolution was introduced in the senate calling for the removal of Secretary Denby. It was passed by a vote of 47 to 34 on February 11, 1924. On February 1 President Coolidge had said that he would pay no attention to the resolution and would not call for Denby's resignation. He then went to New York and made a speech upholding his position. Denby had said many times that he would not resign, but on February 19 he did so. Denby's resignation was forced because of the innocent, but stupid part he played; former Secretary Fall was indicted by a Federal grand jury.

THE Daugherty case is, if possible even more disgraceful than the oil leasing affair. Before becoming a member of President Harding's cabinet Daugherty was notorious as a "practical politician" rather than famous as a lawyer and his appointment to the position of attorney general came as a distinct shock to the country after the president had announced his intention of surrounding himself by the "best minds" of the nation. But it was regarded as an act of gratitude upon Harding's part and as far as he was concerned was overlooked to a great extent. There never was any excuse for the man's retention by President Coolidge.

THE question is: Who was responsible for Daugherty? Of course President Harding was in the beginning, and popular questioning of the attorney general's conduct began as early as 1922, when the house of representatives ordered an investigation. This resulted in a whitewash, but what excuse did President Coolidge have for retaining the man?

He did keep him, however, and it was not until Daugherty's course in the oil investigations became so notorious that it was impossible to further stay an inquiry into his conduct that the president finally got rid of him. The situation disclosed by the Daugherty investigation was so disgustingly unsavory that Coolidge was forced to act, not however, for the good of the republic, but, as Daugherty himself put it, to "serve the ends of party expediency."

The president's letter demanding the resignation of the attorney general contained no word of criticism of the latter because of the exposures that had been made in connection with the prostitution of the great office which he held.. He was rather asked to get out for a purely technical reason he having refused to submit to the committee certain records for which it had asked in the course of its investigations. In asking for the resignation the president said: "I am not questioning your fairness or integrity," and "I feel certain you will know how deeply I regret this situation has arisen."

BUT Daugherty was not fooled and he felt rather peeved. He knew that the demand of the president had only been made after Senators Lodge and Pepper, republican leaders, had visited the white house and urged that he be sacked for the sake of the party. So in answering the president's letter he said:

"I am aware, Mr. President, that the suggestion has been made to you that my retirement from the cabinet would serve the ends of party expediency. Twice since you became president and when I could have done so without criticism I have offered to retire from your cabinet, and you have in each instance requested me to remain, because, as you were kind enough to say, of your entire satisfaction with the splendid accomplishments of the department of justice under my administration."

The issue of honest government is squarely presented to the American voter.

The vicious attack upon the long established principle of conservation, in which cabinet officials gave their assistance to greedy private interests; the mal-administration of the department of justice under Daugherty; the Veterans' Bureau scandal, in which a high government official was indicted but millions of dollars lost; the appointment of a political patronage distributor as private secretary to the president---these acts constitute a challenge to good government which cannot be ignored.

PRICE OF CLOSED CARS IS REDUCED

Hudson and Essex Coaches Sell For Less Than Open Cars of Same Makes.

Substantial price reductions on Hudson and ssex coaches were an nounced today by Lord Auto company, following the receipt of a special message from the Hudson Motor Car company

The reduction results in the Hudson coach, a closed car now selling at less than the standard open cars on the same chassis This is the first time in motor car history when this has been true it is declared The Hudson coach s new list price is $1395, as against $14000 for the four passenger open super six car and $1500 for the seven passenger open car

The Essex coach at $945 is still slightly higher than the Essex open car but the differential is declared by Hudson Essex ofifcials to be the smallest in the industry aside from Hudson.

This move by the Hudson Motor Car company—unexpected because the last few weeks has seen a substantial number of motor car price increases—is taken to mean that Hudson-Essex now regards open cars as luxuries and proposes to give the advantage of volume production to the enclosed cars which make up at least 90 per cent of its production Open car and sedan prices are unchanged

The reduction was made possible according to Hudson oficials because 1924 has been the largest sales year in Hudson history, the hitherto unknown 100 000 mark having been reached about September 1 Volume economies have thus been possible

Mr Lord said

'This advantage in price is made possible to buyers because Hudson-Essex followed their creation of coaches with volume production This keeps Hudson-Essex enclosed cars out of the range of price competition

'Hudson-Essex coaches are the largest selling six cylinder cars in the world and with these sensational new prices are more than ever unmatched values in their field '

Chrysler Happy Over Outlook In Auto Industries

Walter P Chrysler, president and chairman of the board of directors of the Maxwell and Chrvsler Motor corporations is optimistic concernig the automotive business He points out that dollar volume of sales this year has been not far behind the reorcd levels of 1923

Factory sales of cars not including Fords for the first half of 1924 amounted to $815 000 000 said Mr Chrysler yesterday This compares with $926 000 000 for the corresponding period of 1923 Last year s total sales reached $1 570-000 000 a new record, but a figure which will be very closely approached this year

"Our own business is running at a rate considerably ahead of the industry s comparative figures as compared with last year In the thirteen leading c es of the country sales of Maxwell and Chrysler cars for the first eight months of 1924 show an increase of more than 85 per cent over the same period of 1923 New York shows a gain of 64 per cent, Philadelphia 30 per cent, Boston 43 per cent St. Louis 25 per cent and Detroit 46 per cent. The first weeks of September showed larger sales for us than in July, the heart of the summer buying season

"For the first seven months this year, factory sales of Maxwell and Chrysler cars agregated $42 381 859, compared with $35 311 966 for the similar period a year ago Chrysler sales during these months totaled $18 22? 469 and those of Maxwell $24 146 390 Chrysler sales are now running at the rate of $4-500 000 a month

'The automotive industry enters the fall season in a healthy condition Business has been good this summer The tendency will be toward better business this fall The higher prices that farmers are receiving for their crops assured good business in the agricultural sections and the growth in the use ofclosed cars will mean a continuance of good sales in the cities'

PRICE WAR ON TIRES LOOMS

Lee Company Declares It Is Question of Quality Or Price.

NEW YORK Oct 26—Symptons of another tire price war are indicated by the recent 10 per cent advance in Lee tires and a subsequent 6 per cent decrease announced by several manufacturers according to Harry E Field of the Tire and Rubber company

'Tires have become so universal a commodity in recent years ' says Mr Field that fluctuations in tire prices are on a par with clothing and foodstuffs so far as public interest is concerned

I declare from long experience that the price situation has become so acute that the tire manufacturer must now make up his mind whether to give the public its dollar s worth or skimp in workmanship and material to the detriment of the product and let the public hold the bag

Lee has revised prices upwards and the whole truth of the matter is that this step will enable us to make better tires

Our prices were adjusted upward on October first this revision being based on the current cost of fabric and rubber Any tire manufacturer who claims that the cost of rubber has no influence on the price he wants for his product is not making a good tire

There are perhaps more ways of cutting corners in tire making than in any other line of manufacture We all know how to give our tires the outward appearance of durability and fine workmanship And we can all remove one ply or two to cut the cost and lower the price to keep in line with some other manufacturer who is badly undersold and wants to move his good quickly

Tire manufacturers began making balloon tires before the public were quite ready for them and what is more important before the manufacturer had a chance to test out the revolutionary claims he was making on behalf of this particular type of tire We claim in the Lee company that the 4 ply balloon tire has never worked We have always made our balloons of 6 ply and recommend a higher inflation than the purely theoretical inflation which has led the public into many pitf s

Tires will be cheaper in quality as well as price unless an upward revision is the order of the day Accordingly the Lee company elects t make better tires at better prices O merchandising plans are on a n economical basis of operation What we save in overhead is going into our tires for the betterment of our product. Weadmit that tires can be made better but you can t work along lines of improvement if at this stage of the game you busy yourself by shaving prices '

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Tight Spring bolts and shackle plates as a result of infrequent or insufficient lubrication or tight adjustment have a very serious effect on easy riding and easy control of car on the road particularly on rough or soft roads and at high speeds If the car springs do not function uniformly as intended it causes an unbalanced condition and danger of accidents

"Gas" Economy

There are ten rules for saving gasoline and obedience to all of them out to result in cutting gasoline bills These rules are

Keep tires well inflated

Keep engine valves ground

See that brakes do not drag

See that the battery is well charged

Be sure connecting rod bearing are not too tight and are well lubricated

Keep engine cylinders free from carbon

Keep spark plugs clean and free from carbon

Adjust the spark plug points to 025 of an inch apart

Coast whenever possible Keep foot off the accelerator as much as possible

Adjust the carburetor to a mixture in the ratio of 15 parts of air by weight to one part of gasoline

Oil the Clutch

One of the most commonly neglected parts of the car so far as lubrication goes is the clutch-operating mechanism In the case of disc clutches running in oil lubrication of the thrust collar and the lever operating it is automatic But with clutches that do not operate in a bath of oil the thrust collar and lever require oiling by hand. The service of these parts is exacting and frequently lubrication of the ball thrust bearing and of the end of the lever which actuates it is necessary Furthermore the bearing of the clutch pedal and the pins which secure th eclutch operating linkage should be frequetly lubricated

Code of the Careful Driver

Too much cannot be said to impress the owner or operator of an automobile the necessity of care in the driving of a car There are but few rules to be observed in driving in order that the operator may get by year after year without accident First consider that the driver of every car pyou meet is going to avoid a collision second imagine that a car is coming from your right out of every cross street or cross road look for it third expect that a car is coming toward you from around every curve and over the crest of every hill therefore never attempt to pass a car ahead of you at either of these points and always hug your own side of the road fourth the law does not hold a minor responsible and says the motor car owner should anticipate unexpected movements from them therefore on approaching a child or a group of children be alert to checkmate any sudden change of position fifth make your speed in the open but exercise care at the hazards Proper observance of these few rules would keep many a driver out of trouble and save automobile owners hundreds of thousads of dollars for the carelessness of one is always paid for by the many

Auto Notes

Never permit passengers to open the door of a car until it has come to a complete stop There is danger in smashing into a tree post or parking sign

Never make compression tests when the engine is cold

The car on the right is supposed to have the right of way

Never allow oil waste grease or oil to remain in the drip pan under the engine

A body resting unevenly on the frame will in most instances cause a cracking sound

Smoke from burning oil is bluish white in color while smoke from using too much gasoline is black

New Type of Car Stirs Automobile World

It is an open car one moment and 30 seconds later same car is entirely enclosed. Studebaker Duplex ends need of hunting for side curtains in the dark and storm

A new type of car has stirred the automobile world as has nothing since the abandonment of the "buggy" style of body building.

It is the Studebaker Duplex, so called to indicate that it is an open car one moment, and 30 seconds later it is an enclosed car.

Like all great advances in the industrial arts, it is "so simple in operation, it is a wonder it wasn't thought of before" — — —

Particularly since its need has been growing, year by year, ever since automobiles were made.

Many people all of the time, and most people part of the time, want an open car—to bring to their riding the fresh crispness of the country air, and a free and untrammeled association with the great outdoors.

Yet for these same people, the snug comfort of the closed car, shutting out the storm and the wind and the cold, has been at times a necessity.

Two cars in one

The Studebaker Duplex is both cars in one. Just pull down the roller enclosures concealed in the roof of the car. In 30 seconds the open car has been made an enclosed car.

No hurried efforts to put up curtains; no hunting for the right one while the storm beats in; no mixing them up in the dark; no exposure through holes torn in them while trying to obtain, for the emergency, the protection given by a closed car — — —

Just pull down the roller enclosures giving instant enclosed car effect.

The body is built substantially—sides, corners and roof frame are of steel. The roof has curved steel sides and back; hardwood front. Steel, U-shaped cross beams, six of them, support the waterproofed, duplex fabric top and its linings. Here is permanent beauty, no sagging tops.

But Studebaker, on which the whole vehicle-using world has come to depend for reliability, would not rest on only one real contribution to the value given the public.

It must give all that engineering ability could devise.

Striking new features

So there are offered three distinct models of cars, to meet each of the three fields of demand—the Standard Six, with 113-inch wheelbase and 50 horsepower motor; the Special Six, with 120-inch wheelbase and 65 horsepower motor; the Big Six, most magnificent and luxurious of its products, with 127-inch wheelbase and 75 horsepower motor.

Duplex bodies are available on each line. In addition, closed models have workmanship and materials and beauty of line so far above the price class of the car, they must be seen to be appreciated.

Of scarcely less importance than the Duplex feature are other improvements such as, automatic ignition system, lighting control on the steering wheel, new location of emergency brake, improved one-piece windshield and many others.

The body lines, steering mechanism, and even the fenders of the new Studebaker were designed especially for genuine balloon tires. Thus the body lines harmonize with grace and beauty hitherto unattained, even by Studebaker.

Come in and see these new cars.

Hudson and Essex Coaches Sell For Less Than Open Cars of Same Makes.

Substantial price reductions on Hudson and ssex coaches were announced today by Lord Auto company, following the receipt of a special message from the Hudson Motor Car company.

The reduction results in the Hudson coach, a closed car, now selling at less than the standard open cars on the same chassis. This is the first time in motor car history when this has been true, it is declared. The Hudson coach's new list price is $1395, as against $14000 for the four passenger open super-six car and $1500 for the seven passenger open car.

The Essex coach at $945 is still slightly higher than the Essex open car, but the differential is declared by Hudson-Essex ofifcials to be the smallest in the industry aside from Hudson.

This move by the Hudson Motor Car company—unexpected, because the last few weeks has seen a substantial number of motor car price increases—is taken to mean that Hudson-Essex now regards open cars as luxuries, and proposes to give the advantage of volume production to the enclosed cars which make up at least 90 per cent of its production. Open car and sedan prices are unchanged.

The reduction was made possible according to Hudson oficials, because 1924 has been the largest sales year in Hudson history, the hitherto unknown 100,000 mark having been reached about September 1. Volume economies have thus been possible.

Mr. Lord said:

"This advantage in price is made possible to buyers because Hudson-Essex followed their creation of coaches with volume production. This keeps Hudson-Essex enclosed cars out of the range of price competition.

"Hudson-Essex coaches are the largest selling six cylinder cars in the world, and with these sensational new prices, are more than ever unmatched values in their field."

Chrysler Happy Over Outlook In Auto Industries

Walter P. Chrysler, president and chairman of the board of directors of the Maxwell and Chrysler Motor corporations, is optimistic concernig the automotive business. He points out that dollar volume of sales this year has been not far behind the reorcd levels of 1923.

"Factory sales of cars, not including Fords, for the first half of 1924 amounted to $815,000,000," said Mr. Chrysler yesterday. "This compares with $926,000,000 for the corresponding period of 1923. Last year's total sales reached $1,570,000,000, a new record, but a figure which will be very closely approached this year.

"Our own business is running at a rate considerably ahead of the industry's comparative figures as compared with last year. In the thirteen leading cities of the country, sales of Maxwell and Chrysler cars for the first eight months of 1924 show an increase of more than 35 per cent over the same period of 1923. New York shows a gain of 64 per cent, Philadelphia 30 per cent, Boston 43 per cent, St. Louis 25 per cent and Detroit 46 per cent. The first weeks of September showed larger sales for us than in July, the heart of the summer buying season.

"For the first seven months this year, factory sales of Maxwell and Chrysler cars agregated $42,381,859, compared with $35,311,966 for the similar period a year ago. Chrysler sales during these months totaled $18,225,469 and those of Maxwell $24,146,390. Chrysler sales are now running at the rate of $4,500,000 a month.

"The automotive industry enters the fall season in a healthy condition Business has been good this summer. The tendency will be toward better business this fall. The higher prices that farmers are receiving for their crops assured good business in the agricultural sections and the growth in the use ofclosed cars will mean a continuance of good sales in the cities."

PRICE WAR ON TIRES LOOMS

Lee Company Declares It Is Question of Quality Or Price.

NEW YORK Oct. 26.—Symptons of another tire price war are indicated by the recent 10 per cent advance in Lee tires and a subsequent 6 per cent decrease announced by several manufacturers, according to Harry E. Field of the Tire and Rubber company.

"Tires have become so universal a commodity in recent years," says Mr. Field, "that fluctuations in tire prices are on a par with clothing and foodstuffs so far as public interest is concerned.

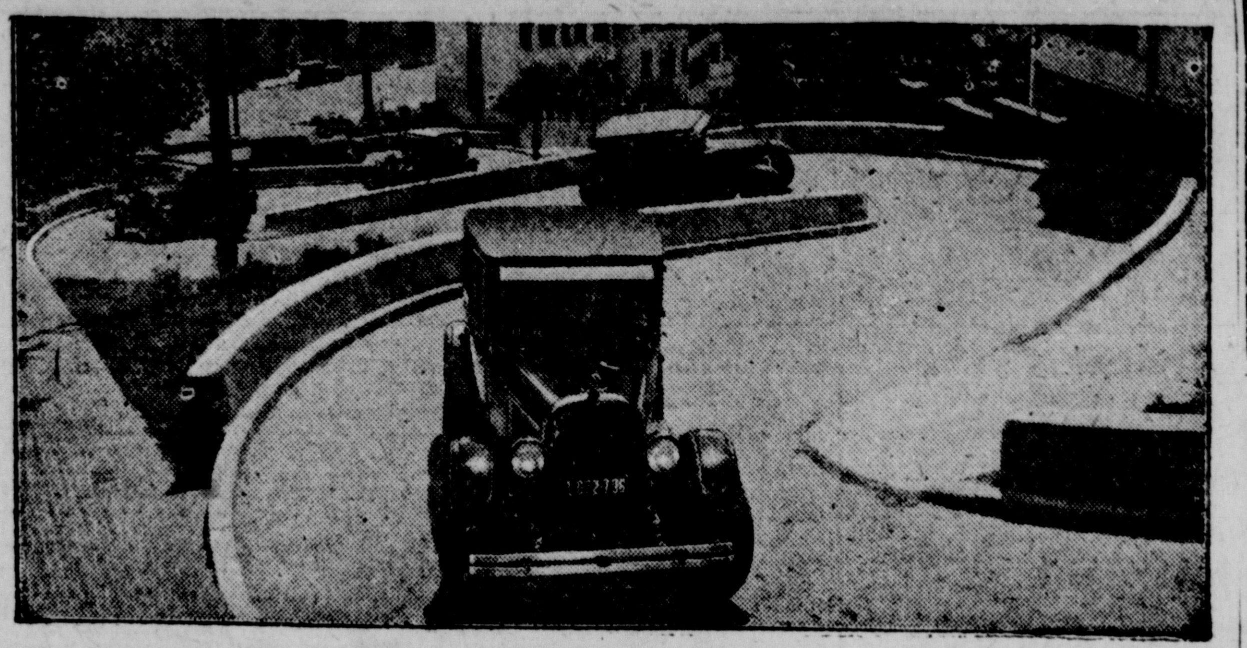
STEEP SAN FRANCISCO HILL REMOVED BY SERPENTINE TERRACING



An unusual engineering feat was accomplished in the grading and paving of Lombard street, one of the steepest hills in San Francisco, by which a 30 per cent grade was cut to 17 per cent by laying out a serpentine course. This novel plan has been the subject of discussion in many cities where steep hills offer a difficult problem. The photograph shows five Chandlers making the ascent. Because of the many turns, speed is impossible, and the course offers an excellent means of demonstrating the power of Chandler's Pikes peak motor, which is famous for its ability to pull smoothly and strongly even at low grades.

MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

Tight Spring bolts and shackle plates as a result of infrequent or insufficient lubrication or tight adjustment have a very serious effect on easy riding and easy control of car on the road, particularly on rough or soft roads and at high speeds. Code of the Careful Driver.

Too much cannot be said to impress the owner or operator of an automobile the necessity of care in the driving of a car. There are but few rules to be observed in driving in order that the operator may get by year after year without accident. First, consider that the driver of every car pyou meet is going to avoid a collision; second, imagine that a car is coming from your right out of every cross street or cross road, look for it; third expect that a car is coming toward you from around every curve and over the crest of every hill; therefore, never attempt to pass a car ahead of you at either of these points, and always hug your own side of the road; fourth, the law does not hold a minor responsible and says the motor car owner should anticipate unexpected movements from them; therefore, on approaching a child or a group of children be alert to checkmate any sudden change of position; fifth, make your speed in the open, but exercise care at the hazards. Proper observance of these fe wrules would keep many a driver out of trouble and save automobile owners hundreds of thousads of dollars, for the carelessness of one is always paid for by the many.

Huskers Flash Winning Offensive; Defeat Kansas, 14 to 7.

NEBRASKA WINS FROM JAYHAWKS

Cornhusker Warriors Plunge and Smash Way To a 14 to 7 Triumph Before Record Crowd at Lawrence.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

LAWRENCE, Kas., Oct. 25. — Cornhusker football again demonstrated it supremacy and superiority over the Jayhawker brand today at the K. U. Memorial stadium where the Husker warriors plunged and smashed their way to a 14 to 7 triumph. Twenty thousand spectators crowded the concrete stands and viewed a nerve-rendering combat in which the forward passing tactics of the contending teams kept the ultimate reckoning in doubt until the final pistol shot terminated the struggle.

After two pointless periods, the Huskers flashed a winning offensive and twice downed the ball back of the Kansas goal. Line defensive by Nebraska was too powerful for the Jayhawkers to charge ahead on straight football, so the Kansans switched to aerial tactics and passed their way to one touchdown during the closing moments of the combat.

The defeat of the Jayhawkers added one more to the string of reverses which K. U. has sustained in its battles with Nebraska on Lawrence soil. The record of competition between the two institutions discloses that Kansas, while performing on home grounds has not yet triumphed over the Cornhuskers since the pigskin campaign of 1896.

Nebraska Win Clean-Cut.

While Kansas waged a strenuous battle for today's honors, Nebraska's victory was clean-cut and quite decisive enough to silence all explanations intending to cast discredit on the merits of the Cornhusker success.

In yards gained from scrimmage, the Cornhuskers reeled off a total of 264 yards. The Kansas total was 237 yards. Plunging football accounted for the major portion of Nebraska's yardage, while the Jayhawkers were compelled by the Cornhusker defense to place main reliance on overhead methods. Nebraska completed three of seven passes for gains of 129 yards, while Kansas hurled eleven of twenty-two passes for gains which totalled 153 yards. The first downs were fifteen for Nebraska and eleven for the Jayhawkers. Penalties cost the Cornhuskers twenty-five yards. Kansas was set back only ten yards.

Neither Huskers nor Jayhawkers could swing into a consistent ground-gaining gait during the opening period. Nebraska reeled off two first downs chiefly by virtue of plunges by Rhodes and A. Mandery, but a luckless fumble cost the Cornhuskers possession of the ball. The pistol shot ending the second period balked the Huskers when they were within three yards of a touchdown.

Pistol Robs the Huskers.

Locke replacing A. Mandery in the Nebraska backfield hurled a forward pass to Collins which netted forty yards before the Nebraska end was tossed to the turf. The Locke-Collins pass advanced the oval deep into Kansas territory. Roy Mandery was substituted in place of Robertson at right end. Two Nebraska passes were incomplete, but a third pass by Bloodgood was grasped by R. Mandery who was tackled and thrown out of bounds on K. U.'s three-yard line just as the pistol gave notice that the time limit had expired and the half was over.

A disastrous fumble by Hodges, Kansas quarterback, of a Bloodgood punt early in the third period, marked the turning point in the combat. A series of passes by Zuber, K. U.'s burly halfback, had taken the ball deep into Nebraska territory, but with a touchdown threatened the Cornhuskers broke up a series of Zuber passes and took the ball on downs. Bloodgood took advantage of the wind to kick into Kansas territory and Hodges muffed the catch.

"Robbie" Scoops Up Fumble.

Robertson, Nebraska's right end, was down under the kick to scoop the ball as it bounced from the turf, running thirty yards across the K. U. goal. A. Mandery booted the extra point from placement and the Cornhuskers were out in front, staying there until the termination of the battle.

The Cornhuskers quickly followed with a drive which netted the second and winning touchdown. Captain Burt's kickoff covered only thirty-five yards and Robertson returned the kick fifteen yards. Plunges by the hard-smashing Rhodes and end sprints by Bloodgood netted two first downs. The Huskers were well on their way down the field only to suffer from a 15-yard penalty. Faking an end run around the Jayhawkers right wing, Rhodes suddenly whirled in his tracks and shot a long left-handed pass to Collins, Nebraska's left end.

IMPORTANT CARD IN GRID REALM

High School Games Booked For This Week Have Importance.

Lincoln at Grand Island; Scottsbluff To Meet Crawford High.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

The interscholastic football program, arranged for this weekend is one of the most important since the Nebraska high school lads opened the season.

Grand Island high school, always a tough opponent for Lincoln, will entertain Coach W. H. Browne's undefeated gridsters. The Third City will probably have the use of Hann in the line, which should boost Grand Island stock considerable.

Omaha Tech and South Omaha will meet at Omaha in what probably will be the city championship game. Tech is the favorite, South being hard-pressed to dispose of Creighton Prep a few weeks ago.

Fremont will meet Norfolk. Coach Thomas' gridsters are just finding themselves and will provide a warm battle for the Dodge county champions.

Cambridge at Curtis.

Cambridge will tackle the Curtis Aggies in what promises to be the red letter game of the southwest section. Kearney, having eliminated North Platte and Hastings, will endeavor to hand Lexington its first defeat.

Scottsbluff will play on the Crawford gridiron, meeting Coach Smith's eleven which Friday defeated Sheridan, Wyo., three-time champion of the Cowboy state.

The undefeated Wilber team plays at Havelock. Falls City is at Tecumseh, Peru Prep plays at Pawnee City and Red Cloud meets Fairfield. The undefeated Pender team must tackle Tekamah. The latter eleven shovd Blair out of the running last week.

ROCKNE'S IRISH DRUB PRINCETON

With Crowley In Stellar Role, Notre Dame Smothers Princeton, Under 12-0 Score.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

PRINCETO, N J, Oct 25.—The pen, they say, is mightier than the sword, and this afternoon Notre Dame proved that the rapier has it all over the blunderbuss when it defeated Princeton for the second time in as many years The score was only 12 to 0, but it did not represent the respective abilities of these two football teams any more than arsenic represents a toothsome dish.

Princeton, in the first place, had no Crowley. He was to Notre Dame what the point is to the rapier and simply knifed the Princeton defense into slithers. Crowley scored two official touchdowns and added another, which became strictly unofficial, not to say out of order, when a Notre Dame man was detected holding.

In all, Crowley probably gained 250 yards as a personal contribution to the cause. Many a Tiger claw was laid upon him as he shifted outside tackle for runs ranging from five to thirty-five yards, but a Tiger claw may scratch but it never was known for its ability to retain its hold on a two-legged, sprinting eel that seemed to be afflicted with the buck jumps. Certainly no single claw was able to stop Crowley today for any appreciable part of a tenth of a second.

Crowley the Big Factor.

He was at once the power, the speed, the grace and the agility of the entire Notre Dame attack. Layden kicked in with many a short gain through the line, occasionally Don Miller broke loose around the end and every so often Stuhldreher wafted a forward pass into the arms of a Notre Dame receiver, but on the whole it was Crowley and no other who beat Princeton today.

It was he who sent even the Princeton section of the 40,000 crowd wending its dazed way back into town, muttering and shaking its befuddled head but ready to grant that it had witnessed a master performance by a master workman.

As for their own team, little could be said beyond the fact that it went down fighting. But a blunderbuss is hardly to be classed as a modern weapon. Princeton was anything but modern today. It had no real running attack or else it was that Notre Dame's defense was too good. In any case, it is a matter of record that Princeton never once advanced with the 30-yard line while Notre Dame carried the ball almost the length of the field on no less than four occasions.

Two of them resulted in touchdowns, a third was ruled out by a penalty and Crowley's fumble on the nine yard line prevented a fourth.

Princeton Is Outclassed.

It was a very natty exhibition for a team that was outweighed about twenty pounds to the individual man, that got in for the defense as well as the attack Incidentally, the defense was tested, even though Princeton didn't threaten but merely threatened to threaten

For example, the game was less than two minutes old when Slagle shot a quick kick over Scharer's head and the ball didn't stop rolling until it reached the 3-yard line. It was a most embarassing situation, particularly for a team that was operating with a second string backfield and a substitute line, this being Rockne's method of conserving his real stars for the big moments that came later in a game. Cerney's punt out barely reached the 35-yard line on this occasion, but Princeton had nothing to offer in response and Dinsmore's attempted field goal was blocked.

Subsequently, Stuhldreher's fumble of a punt staked Princeton to the ball on the 35-yard line in the third period but that was about as far as the matter went. Slagle finally concluded the incident by punting over the goal line for reasons he probably will have to explain in detail later.

Bach Great Defense Man.

Last week against the Army, it was Captain Walsh who supplied several vertebrae to the backbone of the defense. Today it was Bach at left tackle. He broke up more plays than a theatrical censor.

One of them he broke up without intention, Dignan letting a careless fist rest upon the Irish tackle's nose as the Tigers were driving down toward the goal in the second period. For this oversight Princeton was penalized half the distance to the goal. The incident halted what might have been a successful Tiger drive, but probably wasn't. You can't do much driving if you haven't your hand on the wheel.

WESLEYAN LOSES ON DAKOTA GRID

Methodist Rally In the Last Period Halted By Timer's Pistol.

Alabaster Scores The Lone Touchdown Made By Nebraskans.

(Special to The Star.)

GRAND FORKS, S. D., Oct. 25— North Dakota defeated Nebraska Wesleyan university here this afternoon in a sensational football game, 13 to 7. The Flickertails won the game through a bit of luck that came in the fourth quarter, then almost lost it in the latter minutes of the fourth when the Nebraskans unleased an aerial attack that allowed Alabaster to score a touchdown and had the North Dakotans backed against their goal in the ten yard line when the game ended.

The Nebraskans had the edge in the first half in ground gained, but neither goal was endangered.

North Dakota scored its first counter in the third quarter, Unleasing an attack led by Joe Drew, persistently held the ball in Nebraska Wesleyan territory forced to kick from his 21-yard line Wilberg punted to Nelson, Flickertail quarterback, who brought the stands to their feet with a sensational return of 45 yards, putting the ball on Wesleyan's 51yard line. Nemic tried the line for a yard then Nelson passed to Ed Boe, who took the oval over, Stevening dropkicked for the extra point.

Methodist Pass Costly.

North Dakota continued its driving attack int othe third quarter Wesleyan fighting desperately tried forward passes in its own territory one of which was intercepted by Mulhair and Stevening tried a dropkick from the field that was wide. With the ball on their 20-yard line, Wilberg crashed the line and a criss-cross buck lost four.

Wilberg got two more, then Harrington fumbled the ball and Ed Boe, dashing in to tackle him, caught the ball in the air it it bounded from the halfback's hands and raced across the goal line.

Stevening again tried a drop-kick for the extra point but it was blocked by Huyck.

Alabaster Crosses Goal.

Immediately following the second touchdown Nebraska Wesleyan uncorked an aerial attack that completely bewildered the North Dakota backs. Wesleyan took the kickoff, but North Dakota held for downs and Wilberg was forced to punt. Playing a defensive game at this time, Currie immediately punted back for North Dakota after one play. Then Alabaster passed to Clark for twenty-two yards and another pass, Alabaster to Harrington, put it on North Dakota's 20-yard line, anothe pass was incomplete, then Alabaster made his only sensational run He took the ball and circled North Dakota's left end for a touchdown. The Wesleyan quarterback followed his score by successfully booting a drop-kick for the exta point

BY GREGG M'BRIDE.

Lincoln high school took another stride forward in the race for the 1924 Nebraska interscholastic gridiron gonfalon Saturday afternoon when the Red and Black won a 20 to 0 victory over Beatrice at the high school stadium. It was the fourth victory of the season for the undefeated Lincoln team, Kearney, Havelock and Omaha Central having fallen before the capital city machine.

Although the Gage county eleven fought bravely every minute of the game, the victory was more decisive than the score would seem to indicate. Lincoln out-yarded the Beatrice team 308 to 65 and out-downed the Gage county gridders, 16 to 2.

It was not until the dying moments of the game that Beatrice was able to negotiate a first down. A cleverly executed cross-buck and an end-around sent Worley off on a 55-yard run and enabled Yoder to swing around for twelve yards, bringing the ball to the Lincoln 11-yard line. The Beatrice opportunity was lost, however, when the Lincoln forwards braced and Worley's dropkick from the 20-yard mark sailed wide of the uprights.

Dust Hinders the Play.

The game was played in a cloud of dust, which hindered the players and marred the game for the spectators. The high school field had a layer of an inch or more dust and every pile-up following a line plunge resembled more a close play at home plate in a summer battle on the diamond.

The brilliant work of the Lincoln forwards featured in the victory. From end to end, the Red and Black linemen gave a good account of themselves. They stopped the fleet Worley and turned back the line plunges of Langdale, Young and Ellis. Statistics of the game show that Beatrice lost twenty-four yards from scrimmage.

In the backfield "Bud" McBride, Frank Corrick and Maynard Weyand featured the offensive. McBride's powerful off-tackle drives factored in the first Lincoln touchdown. Weyand's broken field running made possible the second and third counters, while Corrick's plunges were productive of consistent yardage and his toe forced the ball continually into Beatrice territory.

Beatrice Shows Improvement.

The Beatrice team showed marked improvement over its work earlier in the season. Following a

Huskers Flash Winning Offensive; Defeat Kansas, 14 to 7.

NEBRASKA WINS FROM JAYHAWKS

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

LAWRENCE, Kas., Oct. 25. — Cornhusker football again demonstrated it supremacy and superiority over the Jayhawker brand today at the K. U. Memorial stadium where the Husker warriors plunged and smashed their way to a 14 to 7 triumph. Twenty thousand spectators crowded the concrete stands and viewed a nerve-rendering combat in which the forward passing tactics of the contending teams kept the ultimate reckoning in doubt until the final pistol shot terminated the struggle.

After two pointless periods, the Huskers flashed a winning offensive and twice downed the ball back of the Kansas goal. Line defensive by Nebraska was too powerful for the Jayhawkers to charge ahead on straight football, so the Kansans switched to aerial tactics and passed their way to one touchdown during the closing moments of the combat.

The defeat of the Jayhawkers added one more to the string of reverses which K. U. has sustained in its battles with Nebraska on Lawrence soil. The record of competition between the two institutions discloses that Kansas, while performing on home grounds has not yet triumphed over the Cornhuskers since the pigskin campaign of 1896.

Nebraska Win Clean-Cut.

While Kansas waged a strenuous battle for today's honors, Nebraska's victory was clean-cut and quite decisive enough to silence all explanations intending to cast discredit on the merits of the Cornhusker success.

In yards gained from scrimmage, the Cornhuskers reeled off a total of 264 yards. The Kansas total was 237 yards. Plunging football accounted for the major portion of Nebraska's yardage, while the Jayhawkers were compelled by the Cornhusker defense to place main reliance on overhead methods. Nebraska completed three of seven passes for gains of 129 yards, while Kansas hurled eleven of twenty-two passes for gains which totalled 153 yards. The first downs were fifteen for Nebraska and eleven for the Jayhawkers. Penalties cost the Cornhuskers twenty-five yards. Kansas was set back only ten yards.

Neither Huskers nor Jayhawkers could swing into a consistent ground-gaining gait during the opening period. Nebraska reeled off two first downs chiefly by virtue of plunges by Rhodes and A. Mandery, but a luckless fumble cost the Cornhuskers possession of the ball. The pistol shot ending the second period balked the Huskers when they were within three yards of a touchdown.

Pistol Robs the Huskers.

Locke replacing A. Mandery in the Nebraska backfield hurled a forward pass to Collins which netted forty yards before the Nebraska end was tossed to the turf. The Locke-Collins pass advanced the oval deep into Kansas territory. Roy Mandery was substituted in place of Robertson at right end. Two Nebraska passes were incomplete, but a third pass by Bloodgood was grasped by R. Mandery who was tackled and thrown out of bounds on K. U.'s three-yard line just as the pistol gave notice that the time limit had expired and the half was over.

A disastrous fumble by Hodges, Kansas quarterback, of a Bloodgood punt early in the third period, marked the turning point in the combat. A series of passes by Zuber, K. U.'s burly halfback, had taken the ball deep into Nebraska territory, but with a touchdown threatened the Cornhuskers broke up a series of Zuber passes and took the ball on downs. Bloodgood took advantage of the wind to kick into Kansas territory and Hodges muffed the catch.

"Robbie" Scoops Up Fumble.

Robertson, Nebraska's right end, was down under the kick to scoop the ball as it bounced from the turf, running thirty yards across the K. U. goal. A. Mandery booted the extra point from placement and the Cornhuskers were out in front, staying there until the termination of the battle.

The Cornhuskers quickly followed with a drive which netted the second and winning touchdown. Captain Burt's kickoff covered only thirty-five yards and Robertson returned the kick fifteen yards. Plunges by the hard-smashing Rhodes and end sprints by Bloodgood netted two first downs. The Huskers were well on their way down the field only to suffer from a 15-yard penalty. Faking an end run around the Jayhawkers right wing, Rhodes suddenly whirled in his tracks and shot a long left-handed pass to Collins, Nebraska's left end.

IMPORTANT CARD IN GRID REALM

High School Games Booked For This Week Have Importance.

Lincoln at Grand Island; Scottsbluff To Meet Crawford High.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

The interscholastic football program, arranged for this weekend is one of the most important since the Nebraska high school lads opened the season.

Grand Island high school, always a tough opponent for Lincoln, will entertain Coach W. H. Browne's undefeated gridsters. The Third City will probably have the use of Hann in the line, which should boost Grand Island stock considerable.

Omaha Tech and South Omaha will meet at Omaha in what probably will be the city championship game. Tech is the favorite, South being hard-pressed to dispose of Creighton Prep a few weeks ago.

Fremont will meet Norfolk. Coach Thomas' gridsters are just finding themselves and will provide a warm battle for the Dodge county champions.

Cambridge at Curtis.

Cambridge will tackle the Curtis Aggies in what promises to be the red letter game of the southwest section. Kearney, having eliminated North Platte and Hastings, will endeavor to hand Lexington its first defeat.

Scottsbluff will play on the Crawford gridiron, meeting Coach Smith's eleven which Friday defeated Sheridan, Wyo., three-time champion of the Cowboy state.

The undefeated Wilber team plays at Havelock. Falls City is at Tecumseh, Peru Prep plays at Pawnee City and Red Cloud meets Fairfield. The undefeated Pender team must tackle Tekamah. The latter eleven shovd Blair out of the running last week.

ROCKNE'S IRISH DRUB PRINCETON

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

PRINCETO, N. J., Oct. 25.—The pen, they say, is mightier than the sword, and this afternoon Notre Dame proved that the rapier has it all over the blunderbuss when it defeated Princeton for the second time in as many years. The score was only 12 to 0, but it did not represent the respective abilities of these two football teams any more than arsenic represents a toothsome dish.

Princeton, in the first place, had no Crowley. He was to Notre Dame what the point is to the rapier and simply knifed the Princeton defense into slithers. Crowley scored two official touchdowns and added another, which became strictly unofficial, not to say out of order, when a Notre Dame man was detected holding.

In all, Crowley probably gained 250 yards as a personal contribution to the cause. Many a Tiger claw was laid upon him as he shifted outside tackle for runs ranging from five to thirty-five yards, but a Tiger claw may scratch but it never was known for its ability to retain its hold on a two-legged, sprinting eel that seemed to be afflicted with the buck jumps. Certainly no single claw was able to stop Crowley today for any appreciable part of a tenth of a second.

Crowley the Big Factor.

He was at once the power, the speed, the grace and the agility of the entire Notre Dame attack. Layden kicked in with many a short gain through the line, occasionally Don Miller broke loose around the end and every so often Stuhldreher wafted a forward pass into the arms of a Notre Dame receiver, but on the whole it was Crowley and no other who beat Princeton today.

It was he who sent even the Princeton section of the 40,000 crowd wending its dazed way back into town, muttering and shaking its befuddled head but ready to grant that it had witnessed a master performance by a master workman.

As for their own team, little could be said beyond the fact that it went down fighting. But a blunderbuss is hardly to be classed as a modern weapon. Princeton was anything but modern today. It had no real running attack or else it was that Notre Dame's defense was too good. In any case, it is a matter of record that Princeton never once advanced with the 30-yard line while Notre Dame carried the ball almost the length of the field on no less than four occasions.

Two of them resulted in touchdowns, a third was ruled out by a penalty and Crowley's fumble on the nine yard line prevented a fourth.

Princeton Is Outclassed.

It was a very natty exhibition for a team that was outweighed about twenty pounds to the individual man, that got in for the defense as well as the attack. Incidentally, the defense was tested, even though Princeton didn't threaten but merely threatened to threaten.

For example, the game was less than two minutes old when Slagle shot a quick kick over Scharer's head and the ball didn't stop rolling until it reached the 3-yard line. It was a most embarassing situation, particularly for a team that was operating with a second string backfield and a substitute line, this being Rockne's method of conserving his real stars for the big moments that came later in a game. Cerney's punt out barely reached the 35-yard line on this occasion, but Princeton had nothing to offer in response and Dinsmore's attempted field goal was blocked.

Subsequently, Stuhldreher's fumble of a punt staked Princeton to the ball on the 35-yard line in the third period but that was about as far as the matter went. Slagle finally concluded the incident by punting over the goal line for reasons he probably will have to explain in detail later.

Bach Great Defense Man.

Last week against the Army, it was Captain Walsh who supplied several vertebrae to the backbone of the defense. Today it was Bach at left tackle. He broke up more plays than a theatrical censor.

One of them he broke up without intention, Dignan letting a careless fist rest upon the Irish tackle's nose as the Tigers were driving down toward the goal in the second period. For this oversight Princeton was penalized half the distance to the goal. The incident halted what might have been a successful Tiger drive, but probably wasn't. You can't do much driving if you haven't your hand on the wheel.

WESLEYAN LOSES ON DAKOTA GRID

Methodist Rally In the Last Period Halted By Timer's Pistol.

(Special to The Star.)

GRAND FORKS, S. D., Oct. 25—North Dakota defeated Nebraska Wesleyan university here this afternoon in a sensational football game, 13 to 7. The Flickertails won the game through a bit of luck that came in the fourth quarter, then almost lost it in the latter minutes of the fourth when the Nebraskans unleased an aerial attack that allowed Alabaster to score a touchdown and had the North Dakotans backed against their goal in the ten yard line when the game ended.

The Nebraskans had the edge in the first half in ground gained, but neither goal was endangered.

North Dakota scored its first counter in the third quarter, Unleasing an attack led by Joe Drew, persistently held the ball in Nebraska Wesleyan territory forced to kick from his 21-yard line Wilberg punted to Nelson, Flickertail quarterback, who brought the stands to their feet with a sensational return of 45 yards, putting the ball on Wesleyan's 51yard line. Nemic tried the line for a yard then Nelson passed to Ed Boe, who took the oval over, Stevening dropkicked for the extra point.

Methodist Pass Costly.

North Dakota continued its driving attack int othe third quarter. Wesleyan fighting desperately tried forward passes in its own territory one of which was intercepted by Mulhair and Stevening tried a drop-kick from the field that was wide. With the ball on their 20-yard line, Wilberg crashed the line and a criss-cross buck lost four.

Wilberg got two more, then Harrington fumbled the ball and Ed Boe, dashing in to tackle him, caught the ball in the air it it bounded from the halfback's hands and raced across the goal line.

Stevening again tried a drop-kick for the extra point but it was blocked by Huyck.

Alabaster Crosses Goal.

Immediately following the second touchdown Nebraska Wesleyan uncorked an aerial attack that completely bewildered the North Dakota backs. Wesleyan took the kickoff, but North Dakota held for downs and Wilberg was forced to punt. Playing a defensive game at this time, Currie immediately punted back for North Dakota after one play. Then Alabaster passed to Clark for twenty-two yards and another pass, Alabaster to Harrington, put it on North Dakota's 20-yard line, anothe pass was incomplete, then Alabaster made his only sensational run. He took the ball and circled North Dakota's left end for a touchdown. The Wesleyan quarterback followed his score by successfully booting a drop-kick for the exta point.

BY GREGG M'BRIDE.

Lincoln high school took another stride forward in the race for the 1924 Nebraska interscholastic gridiron gonfalon Saturday afternoon when the Red and Black won a 20 to 0 victory over Beatrice at the high school stadium. It was the fourth victory of the season for the undefeated Lincoln team, Kearney, Havelock and Omaha Central having fallen before the capital city machine.

Although the Gage county eleven fought bravely every minute of the game, the victory was more decisive than the score would seem to indicate. Lincoln out-yarded the Beatrice team 308 to 65 and out-downed the Gage county gridders, 16 to 2.

It was not until the dying moments of the game that Beatrice was able to negotiate a first down. A cleverly executed cross-buck and an end-around sent Worley off on a 55-yard run and enabled Yoder to swing around for twelve yards, bringing the ball to the Lincoln 11-yard line. The Beatrice opportunity was lost, however, when the Lincoln forwards braced and Worley's dropkick from the 20-yard mark sailed wide of the uprights.

Dust Hinders the Play.

The game was played in a cloud of dust, which hindered the players and marred the game for the spectators. The high school field had a layer of an inch or more dust and every pile-up following a line plunge resembled more a close play at home plate in a summer battle on the diamond.

The brilliant work of the Lincoln forwards featured in the victory. From end to end, the Red and Black linemen gave a good account of themselves. They stopped the fleet Worley and turned back the line plunges of Langdale, Young and Ellis. Statistics of the game show that Beatrice lost twenty-four yards from scrimmage.

In the backfield "Bud" McBride, Frank Corrick and Maynard Weyand featured the offensive. McBride's powerful off-tackle drives factored in the first Lincoln touchdown. Weyand's broken field running made possible the second and third counters, while Corrick's plunges were productive of consistent yardage and his toe forced the ball continually into Beatrice territory.

Beatrice Shows Improvement.

The Beatrice team showed marked improvement over its work earlier in the season. Following a snagged the ball out of the air. Then followed the game's transcendant thrill, as Collins raced forty yards to the Jayhawkers goal. Hodges gave chase and downed Collins as the Nebraska end flashed across the final chalk line. A. Mandery's placekick added the extra point.

A thirty-yard sprint by Locke, Nebraska halfback, featured the early moments of the final period but a dribbling Cornhusker punt accounted for less than twenty yards, the ball going out of bounds and passing over to the Jayhawkers in the middle of the rectangle. Threatened with the humiliation of a shut out, a desperate Kansas eleven then turned loose an aerial onslaught which steadily advanced the oval down the field until the Jayhawkers marched across the goal. A Zuber pass to Halfback Starr netted the final 15 yards and accounted for the scoring play

Dawson Well Pleased.

"Nebraska had the team today to have won by a more decisive margin," Coach Fred Dawson said tonight, "yet the Cornhuskers had the edge all the way and I am well pleased. Fumbles and penalties stopped Nebraska constantly during the first half but the team showed a real power in the third period and plunged and passed to a merited victory."

"The disastrous fumble by Hodges was the break in the game which defeated Kansas," Coach "Potsy" Clark said. "The fumble hoodoo has cost every game we have played this year. Both teams are green and under circumstances played surprisingly good football. I am not offering an excuse, however, as fumbling is a part of the game. Nebraska played the game alertly and took advantage of the breaks. I had hoped that we might win and thus qualify for Nebraska's congratulations but the shoe is on the other foot so I am congratulating the Cornhusker. We shall show up in Lincoln next fall and make a determined effort to come home with a victory."

LINCOLN TRIMS BEATRICE TEAM

disastrous 1923 season when material was lacking in the Orange and Black camp, it would appear that the Gage county seat is about to again take its place among the elite of Nebraska interscholastic circles.

Coach H. H. Johnston had a very smooth working machine in Lincoln Saturday with Don Worley featuring the offensive and defensive play Worley's brilliant 55-yard run late in the game was the sensational performance of the afternoon, while Garis' work at end was worthy of more than passing comment.

Lincoln Scores Early.

Lincoln scored its first touchdown in the opening period. Line plunges by Bud McBride factored in the first counter. The stocky halfback ripped through the Beatrice wall for steady gains, scoring on a 12-yard off-tackle drive.

Beatrice braced in the second and third quarter and held the Red and Black scoreless.

In the fourth quarter, some clever open field running by Weyand brought the ball deep into Beatrice territory. A few minutes later, the Lincoln quarterback broke through the line and cleared the secondary defense with a 24-yard run to a touchdown.

Lincoln's final score came a few minutes later, Weyand's 21-yard off tackle plunge planting the oval on the Beatrice 2-yard line. Corrick carried it across in two smashes at the Orange and Black line.

Worley's 55-yard end run and an end-around by Yoder carried the ball to the Lincoln 11-yard line. Attemps to penetrate the Lincoln line failed and when Worley's dropkick went wide, Beatrice had passed up its chance to score.

snagged the ball out of the air. Then followed the game's transcendant thrill, as Collins raced forty yards to the Jayhawkers goal. Hodges gave chase and downed Collins as the Nebraska end flashed across the final chalk line. A. Mandery's placekick added the extra point.

A thirty-yard sprint by Locke, Nebraska halfback, featured the early moments of the final period but a dribbling Cornhusker punt accounted for less than twenty yards, the ball going out of bounds and passing over to the Jayhawkers in the middle of the rectangle. Threatened with the humiliation of a shut out, a desperate Kansas eleven then turned loose an aerial onslaught which steadily advanced the oval down the field until the Jayhawkers marched across the goal. A Zuber pass to Halfback Starr netted the final 15 yards and accounted for the scoring play.

Dawson Well Pleased.

"Nebraska had the team today to have won by a more decisive margin," Coach Fred Dawson said tonight, "yet the Cornhuskers had the edge all the way and I am well pleased. Fumbles and penalties stopped Nebraska constantly during the first half but the team showed a real power in the third period and plunged and passed to a merited victory."

"The disastrous fumble by Hodges was the break in the game which defeated Kansas," Coach "Potsy" Clark said. "The fumble hoodoo has cost every game we have played this year. Both teams are green and under circumstances played surprisingly good football. I am not offering an excuse, however, as fumbling is a part of the game. Nebraska played the game alertly and took advantage of the breaks. I had hoped that we might win and thus qualify for Nebraska's congratulations but the shoe is on the other foot so I am congratulating the Cornhusker. We shall show up in Lincoln next fall and make a determined effort to come home with a victory."

disastrous 1923 season when material was lacking in the Orange and Black camp, it would appear that the Gage county seat is about to again take its place among the elite of Nebraska interscholastic circles.

Coach H. H. Johnston had a very smooth working machine in Lincoln Saturday with Don Worley featuring the offensive and defensive play. Worley's brilliant 55-yard run late in the game was the sensational performance of the afternoon, while Garis' work at end was worthy of more than passing comment.

Lincoln Scores Early.

Lincoln scored its first touchdown in the opening period. Line plunges by Bud McBride factored in the first counter. The stocky halfback ripped through the Beatrice wall for steady gains, scoring on a 12-yard off-tackle drive.

Beatrice braced in the second and third quarter and held the Red and Black scoreless.

In the fourth quarter, some clever open field running by Weyand brought the ball deep into Beatrice territory. A few minutes later, the Lincoln quarterback broke through the line and cleared the secondary defense with a 24-yard run to a touchdown.

Lincoln's final score came a few minutes later, Weyand's 21-yard off tackle plunge planting the oval on the Beatrice 2-yard line. Corrick carried it across in two smashes at the Orange and Black line.

Worley's 55-yard end run and an end-around by Yoder carried the ball to the Lincoln 11-yard line. Attemps to penetrate the Lincoln line failed and when Worley's dropkick went wide, Beatrice had passed up its chance to score.

Headiest Play Dawson Ever Saw.

Fred T. Dawson, University of Nebraska Coach, Hands the Palm to Clarence Swanson, Whose Successful Snaring of Forward Pass Enabled Cornhuskers to Beat Pitt U. In 1921.

BY FRED T. DAWSON.
(Uni. of Nebraska Coach.)

Every now and then a western team goes east and upsets the dope. That was exactly what happened in 1921 when Nebraska moved to Pittsburgh to play the Pitt Panthers on their own gridiron. About everyone in that part of the world figured Warner's eleven would have things pretty much its own way. When the final whistle blew the few Nebraska supporters present enjoyed the biggest moment of a big game—the thrill of having the big end of a score.

We had a mighty fine eleven that fall, one capable of taking care of itself in any company, and it lived up to its standard when it encountered the famous Pitt eleven. I must say right now that the credit for our victory belonged to one of the men on our team, Clarence Swanson, captain and left end. He was all that an end should be, and more, for Swanson played heady football, and his headwork in that game turned the decision our way.

Swanson Fooled Davies.

It was as neat a bit of thinking on the part of a player I ever encountered as a coach, and when I say that I mean it. You see, Swanson won the game by out-thinking Tom Davies, Pitt's All-American back and a corker on defense. This is how it all happened.

Neither team was gaining any headway in the first half It was hammer and tongs football, with no let up on either side. It looked like a scorless tie, too, for with but three minutes remaining of the first half we had the ball on Pitt's 40-yard line.

Swanson was guarded by Davies all the time. We had some forward passes he received. Tom covered him—stuck to him like a leech when a pass was tried It was patent that a pass to our captain wouldn't work. Davies, too, was using his head He seemed to divine just when Swanson should be covered and when he should not be covered. That's just what gave Swanson his cue, so we learned later.

Solved the Situation.

At any rate Swanson had the situation solved by this time. He knew Davies' whole scheme of defense. He had noted that on every forward pass Davies covered him tight and that he could go down the field as far as he wanted when it wasn't a pass. After learning that only three more minutes of the first half remained, he told our quarterback to call our regular mass play on right tackle with Hartley, the fullback, carrying the ball. Hartley was a line plunger and a good man at hurling a forward pass

Then Swanson told Hartley what he wanted him to do when this mass on tackle was played. He was to start his line plunge, then stop and back up and toss a pass to him (Swanson).

Headwork of Highest Order.

The play was executed as per Swanson's orders and Swanson caught Tom Davies flat-footed by his ruse. Although Tom made a superb effort to recover, it was a fruitless one. He had started over to back up his line on the other side, and was too far out of position to even catch Swanson, who gobbled in the pass and ran for the score that decided the game in our favor.

I call that headwork of the highest order and the kind that no coach can give to his men. Those incidents, really the brightest in football, make the old game what it is—the finest test of manhood a boy may be called on to face.

BY RAY VAN ORMAN.
(John Hopkins Coach)

Nearly everyone in the football world remembers the splendid and clean cut victory of Cornell's team of 1915 over Percy Haughton's Harvard machine, lead by Eddie Mahan. Mighty few of them ever heard the inside story of how that victory was brought about. A substitute Cornell back, Fritz Shiverick, who took the place of Charley Barrett in that game, after Barrett, a wonderful back, had been injured, saved the day for Cornell and clinched a victory. It was Shiverick's headwork, not that of a Cornell's coaches, that turned the trick

Shiverick, a green sophomore at the time, a player who had never been under fire, was put into the game to run the team when we were leading Harvard 7-0 and in a pretty bad fix. Harvard had driven us back to our 20-yard line and a gale of wind was blowing in our faces at the time. Even if we did hold them it was going to be a ticklish position, for kicking against a gale is a tough assignment, and an especially trying one for an inexperienced player. Well, Cornell did hold them.

Youngster Proved Mettle.

Shiverick was as cool as the proverbial cucumber when we got the ball. He called a couple of signals, right off, but stalled for time all the while. As he did this he kept tossing dead grass into the air to note what the wind was doing to it. Cornell was facing the open end of the stadium, and into this massive structure the wind was pouring. Shiverick noted, so he told us later, that the grass he tossed into the air would blow back past him and then be picked up by a reverse current that would carry it up the field as though it were flying against the wind. That gave him the hunch that the wind in the stadium was playing queer tricks, circling like a whirlpool.

As he went back to punt he tested it again. Then he timed his pass from center until he felt a reverse current. Into and with it he got off a low, hard-driven kick which a reverse current caught and carried so far up the field that it actually went over Eddie Mahan, Harvard's safety man, naturally playing up for a short punt.

Kick Rolled Eighty Yards.

When Mahan did finally pick up that ball two splendid Cornell ends downed him in his tracks 80 yards away.

You can say what you please, but I hold that when a boy can solve a kicking problem like Shiverick solved that one, he is a real football star. That kick certainly won that hard fought game for Cornell, for when the Harvard team lined up the old pep was gone. We soon took the ball from them and rushed it to their 40-yard line, where Shiverick made certain of our victory with a clean drop-kick for goal.

Herschberger of Chicago university was the first player from a western college to be selected by Walter Camp for a place on his all-American football team This was in 1898, ten years after Camp began making selections. Herschberger was a fullback and, possibly, one of the geratest drop-kickers the pastime ever had

Alonzo Stagg is the oldest coach in football, both in years and in point of service Stagg was on Camp's all-Aberican team in 1889. Shortly after that he came west to take charge of the football and baseball squads of the Chicago university and has been with that institution ever since.

In 1903 and 1904 there were thirty deaths caused by football and over 150 injured, many of them permanently. The last five lears or, since the game is played more open, fewer players are injured Rules have been formulated to prevent rough play which, even under the old rules was unncessary, but players those days had the idea that effective playing was to "rough it" Piling up on a player after the ball was grounded was about the silliest feature of the old time game.

Football emerged from chaos in 1876. Prior to that season there was nothing to the game in this country. It was a mixture of the English association game and a bull fight. In 1876, the first rules were formed and the game began to assume a resemblance to the game played 15 years ago. Particular attention was given the rules after Princeton, Yale and Harvard played their first matches The rules were practically the same as English Rugby, as played in England, but after that, through modifications, the game began to develop into the game as it was played before the forward pass came into use. The game as it is played today has reached its most attractive stage to the spectator. The open game has placed football, from the spectators' viewpoint, on a par with baseball, hockey, polo. That is, the individual play can be discerned from the gallery. In the earlier stages of the sport it was hard to see the play and only when a player broke away with the ball did the spectators enjoy a thrill.

It was in a southern city. A northern team opposed the local eleven. It was a tight game. Toward the close of the contest, a penalty was inflicted on the northern eleven. The visiting captain rushed up to the referee as the latter tolled off 10 yards

"What is that 10 yards for," demanded the northern captain.

"For offisde," responded the referee.

"But," persisted the captain of the visiting team, "the penalty for offside is only five yards."

"Yes, yes," answered the official, "I know that, but there were two men offside.'

Until the coming of Herschburger, Heston, Eckersall, Schultze, Benbrook, McGovern, Steffins and other star performers of western football, the part of U. S A west of the Allegheny mountains was never considered. The playing of Heston, Eckersall, McGovern et al became so brilliant and marked that these famous ones could no longer be ignored by Walter Camp in his annual selections of star football players of the country and, thus the west came into its own. Today, supremacy doesn't belong to the east, west, north or south. It is tumnal months and is supreme the national pastime for the au- while the sport is on.

Heston found he coudn't dodge or stiff-arm Eckersall so, on the fourth play after the kick-off, while running at full speed, he hurdled over the little quarterback, who was diving at his knees from in front. This happene din 1903, when Michigan and Chicago elevens met in battle array on Marshall field on Thanksgiving day of that season Six inches of snow decorated the gridiron and seats. Three times in that game Eckersall overtook Heston after he apparently had a clear field ahead of him and was tearing for the goal posts and it looked as if he would surely score, but the fleet-footed Eckersall stopped him. Twice in that game Eckersall overtook Garver, halfback for Michigan, when he had the rest of the Chicago team outsprinted and an open field in front of him. It was such playing as Eckersall and Heston were exhibiting ni these meetings that caused Walter Camp to sit up and take notice. For three years Heston and Eckersall were the bright lights of western football and the center of attraction around the gridirons of the Western conference. For three consecutive years. Heston and Eckersall were selected by Mr. Camp as the wonder-athletes of mid-west footbal.

There was a red-headed football player named Solomon who was the star of the Notre Dame team back in 1903. This player held sway for several seasons He was conceded to be the best fullback in the middle-west. Notre Dame didn't lose a game that season and Soloman was supreme. A red-headed player of the moment is Harold "Red" Grange of Illinois, who sustains the prevalent belief that red-headed persons are more aggressive than the average persons who participates in comptitive contests. Grange clearly verified this when he ran all over the great Michigan team in the game played at the dedication of the Illinois stadium. It was a red-letter day for this scarlet-plumed warrior of the gridiron.

STAR OF GRIDIRON COMING FIGHTER

Sully Montgomery Showing Real Stuff in the Art of Fisticuffing.

Making Rapid Progress—Some Day May Be Opponent of Dempsey.

Once upon a time he was the star tackle of Bo McMillan's "Prayin' Colonels" from Center college. And now he plods his way along the trail which he hopes may lead him someday to the kingdom now ruled by Jack Dempsey.

Another statellite of the collegiate gridirons has traded moleskins for tights, the shoulder pads for padded gloves and dreams of a day when all the world will point to him and say.

"There's the champ—the guy that kayoed Dempsey"

This, then, is an introduction to Sully Montgomery, one of the really greats of the football realms and for four years mighty tackle for Center, when that little southern college eleven crushed and crumpled all opposition with its irresistable Bo-McMillanized attack.

Those are the statistical, or histfacts concerning Montgomery.

During the summer after his junior year at college, Montgomery went back to the old home town —Fort Worth, Texas His daddy is chief of police there. Sully cowboyed a bit, frivoled around town a bit, in pursuing his role of collegiate vacationer, and finally wandered into a gymnasium one afternoon Captain Bob Roper was there—training for a fight. Bob was shy on sparring partners. He saw Sully

"Know anything about boxing?" asked Bob.

"A little," replied Sully

"Here's a pair of gloves; put 'em on and work with me, requested Bob. "Ill go easy."

When the workout was over, Bob said·

"When you're through with college, look me up. You've got the making of a great fighter. I'll teach you a few tricks"

Eventually Montgomery was graduated. They do those things even in the best football colleges. Then Sully chugged his way to Chicago, hunted up Roper, and said something about "here's me."

Enter Eddie McKoorty.

Roper taugh Montgomery for a while. Then he turned the collegian over to Eddie McGoorty. The veteran added mor polish to Montgomery and then shooed him into a ring.

"There's where you get the final —and the real—teaching," he said.

Montgomery started off by winning a decision from Roy Collins He fought Collins in a return match. The first fight taught Montgomery that he wasn't hitting accurately. He did hit with accuracy the second time—and Collins was knocked out in three rounds.

They fed Montgomery a few more setups—and he bowled them over. Montgomery was rather elated. But Eddie, wise old man of fisticuffs, said:

Learning His Lesson.

"You won't start to get really good until somebody smacks you on your whiskers and teaches you the noble art of keeping your chin in your neck"

Montgomery, like most beginners, had no fear of any man's punch. Therefore he took many liberties. One day, however, a gent named Jack McCarthy smacked him on the jaw. A while later Jim Flynn did likewise.

And now,' said McGoorty, "I guess you know what I mean about not sticking that chin out too invitingly, don't you?"

"Yes sir, now I understand," answered Montgomery. Which he did—perfectly. For since that day Sully Montgomery has parked his chin against Adam's apple—and none of many opponents has smote it.

Montgomery's record is as follows.

Won on K O.	16
Won on decision	7

"What's he got?" was the question put to Frank A. Churchill, manager of Pancho Villa, who is now also managing Montgomery.

"Two good fighting hands, a powerful physique, plenty of courage, faith in himself and the ambition to mix it with Dempsey some of these days,' was the answer. "Up to now he's fought only dubs like Al Rooney, Kid Tithington, Johnny Celmars, Jack Reed, Joe Burke and Jack Clifford and has been liks Carl Morris, Jim Flynn, Tom Roper, Joe Lohman, Marty Cutler and Charley Anderson.

Ready for Tough Ones.

"But now I'm going to send him out after the real tough ones—Gibbons, Renault, Firpo or any of the others who will give him a shot. The boy then will have a chance to prove that either he never will reach the real greatness in the ring —or he will be Dempsey's real rival within a year."

Headiest Play Dawson Ever Saw.

Fred T. Dawson, University of Nebraska Coach, Hands the Palm to Clarence Swanson, Whose Successful Snaring of Forward Pass Enabled Cornhuskers to Beat Pitt U. In 1921.

BY FRED T. DAWSON.

(Uni. of Nebraska Coach.)

Every now and then a western team goes east and upsets the dope. That was exactly what happened in 1921 when Nebraska moved to Pittsburgh to play the Pitt Panthers on their own gridiron. About everyone in that part of the world figured Warner's eleven would have things pretty much its own way. When the final whistle blew the few Nebraska supporters present enjoyed the biggest moment of a big game—the thrill of having the big end of a score.

We had a mighty fine eleven that fall, one capable of taking care of itself in any company, and it lived up to its standard when it encountered the famous Pitt eleven. I must say right now that the credit for our victory belonged to one of the men on our team, Clarence Swanson, captain and left end. He was all that an end should be, and more, for Swanson played heady football, and his headwork in that game turned the decision our way.

Swanson Fooled Davies.

It was as neat a bit of thinking on the part of a player I ever encountered as a coach, and when I say that I mean it. You see, Swanson won the game by out-thinking Tom Davies, Pitt's All-American back and a corker on defense. This is how it all happened.

Neither team was gaining any headway in the first half. It was hammer and tongs football, with no let up on either side. It looked like a scorless tie, too, for with but three minutes remaining of the first half we had the ball on Pitt's 40-yard line.

Swanson was guarded by Davies all the time. We had some forward passes he received. Tom covered him—stuck to him like a leech when a pass was tried. It was patent that a pass to our captain wouldn't work. Davies, too, was using his head. He seemed to divine just when Swanson should be covered and when he should not be covered. That's just what gave Swanson his cue, so we learned later.

Solved the Situation.

At any rate Swanson had the situation solved by this time. He knew Davies' whole scheme of defense. He had noted that on every forward pass Davies covered him tight and that he could go down the field as far as he wanted when it wasn't a pass. After learning that only three more minutes of the first half remained, he told our quarterback to call our regular mass play on right tackle with Hartley, the fullback, carrying the ball. Hartley was a line plunger and a good man at hurling a forward pass.

Then Swanson told Hartley what he wanted him to do when this mass on tackle was played. He was to start his line plunge, then stop and back up and toss a pass to him (Swanson).

Headwork of Highest Order.

The play was executed as per Swanson's orders and Swanson caught Tom Davies flat-footed by his ruse. Although Tom made a superb effort to recover, it was a fruitless one. He had started over to back up his line on the other side, and was too far out of position to even catch Swanson, who gobbled in the pass and ran for the score that decided the game in our favor.

I call that headwork of the highest order and the kind that no coach can give to his men. Those incidents, really the brightest in football, make the old game what it is the finest test of manhood a boy may be called on to face.

BY RAY VAN ORMAN.

(John Hopkins Coach.)

Nearly everyone in the football world remembers the splendid and clean cut victory of Cornell's team of 1915 over Percy Haughton's Harvard machine, lead by Eddie Mahan. Mighty few of them ever heard the inside story of how that victory was brought about. A substitute Cornell back, Fritz Shiverick, who took the place of Charley Barrett in that game, after Barrett, a wonderful back, had been injured, saved the day for Cornell and clinched a victory. It was Shiverick's headwork, not that of a Cornell's coaches, that turned the trick.

Dropkick In Last 30 Seconds Enabls Chicago To Tie Score

COLUMBUS O Oct ?—For fifty minutes this afternoon Bob Curly a little Chicago youth sat wrapped in a blanket on the bench watching a wrinkled faced old man for the word that gave him a chance for the glory that is the dream of all college boys

There was one minute to go and Ohio State was leading Chicago 3 to 0 in a game that meant doom for Chicago's chances to win the western conference championship

Curley had been in but was removed for a heavier man but his chance came

"All right get in there Curley and do some kicking" the veteran coach Alonzo Stagg [illegible]

Curley went in and with thirty seconds to go he kicked a thirty yard drop kick for the field goal that ended the game in a 3 to 3 tie

Fifty thousand spectators in the huge stadium had just become reconciled to the [illegible] for an Ohio State victory when Chicago rallied with a game heart and rushed the ball down the field to State's 15-yard line

The Ohio forwards fought as only college football players can fight when Chicago began slipping around for short gains

When the chance was gone for a touchdown young Curley took the next best thing and tried to save his team from defeat if it could not win He dropped back kicked away a few pebbles and booted the ball between the posts

Ohio State Scores First

It was just before that when Ohio pulled its great rally and passed the ball down within the shadows of the Chicago goal posts State tried for a touchdown but the Chicago line was too rigid and too desperate With one chance remaining to score Ollie Klee dropped back to 15 yards and booted over a kick that did not clear the bar more than an inch

The teams had fought so furiously and so evenly the first three terrific quarters that it looked like State's three points were going to win but the Chicagoans would not let up and the fighting heart kept them going until the final minute and they made it good

Ohio had a chance to score a touchdown in the third period They [illegible] out with a [illegible] pass and a running attack that advanced the ball to Chicago's seventeen yard line

Klee who was to make up for this later was called upon for a smash off tackle and he was charging through the secondary defense with a touchdown in sight when a huge Chicago back hit him and the ball popped out of his arms into the hands of the Chicago fullback State had no other chance to score until the fourth period started when young Klee made amends for his error

Iowa Downs Minnesota

IOWA CITY Ia Oct 25—Playing whirlwind football a rejuvenated Iowa eleven downed Minnesota by a 13 to 0 score here today

For the first time this season Coach Ingwersen's Hawkeyes showed a conference brand of football in trouncing the Minnesota aggregation Iowa got off to a slow start and Minnesota advanced down the field to Iowa's 30 yard line in a series of line smashes Here the Iowa line tightened and from then on the Iowans had all the advantage

Captain Parkin at quarter made a permanent place for himself in the annals of Iowa's football heroes His brilliant open field run early in the fourth quarter netted Iowa's only touchdown

Hancock scored three points on a place kick in the second quarter and added three more points with his toe in the fourth quarter

Hawkeyes March To Victory

Minnesota seemed powerless to stop the march of the Hawkeyes in the last period and after Parkin went over the Iowa eleven marched to within a few yards of the gopher goal but lost the ball on downs

Ingwersen's weeks of work on the Iowa forward wall showed fruit today and after the play once tightened the Hawkeyes line was rock ribbed

Schulte and Ascher did most of the offensive work for Minnesota going through the line repeatedly for considerable gains Never once however did the Gopher eleven come within scoring distance of the Iowa goal except in the first quarter Griffin played an outstanding game at center and the Hawkeyes went through the pivot position for long gains

Michigan Wallops Badgers

ANN ARBOR Mich Oct 25—Michigan arose from its ashes today and scored a smashing triumph over the Wisconsin eleven 21 to 0

The revamped Michigan lineup showed a complete reversal of form over that displayed against Illinois last week performing against the Badgers as if they had played together for some time

Benjamin Friedman a 170 pound lad from Cleveland and Rockwell starred for Michigan Friedman made several brilliant runs and threw eight passes five of which were completed

Illini-Iowa Set Pace In "Big Ten" Loop

CHICAGO Ill Oct 25 — When the referees sounded their final whistles today the Illini of Coach Zuppke were a step nearer to the coveted championship of the Big Ten

The Orange and Blue warriors who romped over De Pauw 45 to 0 in a practice encounter at Urbana did not gain the advantage through their own victory of course but because of other leading contenders for conference honors had been cutting each others throats

The Staggmen from Chicago went to Ohio State with a clean slate identical to Illinois standing and then battled Wilces youngsters to a tie 3 3 The Buckeyes now stand with two deadlocked games and one win as their record

By defeating Minnesota 13 to 0 Iowa advanced to a position that will look dangerous to the Illini Coach Bert Ingwersens Hawkeyes have one victory and one tie as their tally to date The Gophers previous record was a tie with Wisconsin

Michigan already eliminated from the race settled Wisconsin's aspirations by turning the Badgers back 21 to 0 and Coach Jack Ryan now has a tie and a defeat as his midseason card

Purdue and Indiana were the only big ten machines that were idle today Both have been defeated

Dartmouth In Spotlight of Eastern Grid

NEW YORK, Oct 25 — Dartmouth's six to nothing victory over Harvard today definitely established the Green as one of the leaders for the mythical eastern championship The New Hampshire eleven which tied with Yale last week now faces a comparatively easy schedule during the remainder of the season meeting Brown Boston University and Cornell

Yale vindicated its right to mention as the prospective champion by coming from behind in the last period to triumph over Brown, 13 to ?

Once again Notre Dame warriors disobeyed the injunction of Horace Greeley and as usual to good effect. The fighting Irish under Knute Rockne went east and emerged with the hide and fur of the Princeton Tiger 12 to 0

La Fayette and Pennsylvania are two teams which are as yet undefeated and untied and they must be reckoned with by any one who is to elect a winner from the seaboard gridiron La Fayette trounced Washington and Jefferson 20 to 6 while the Philadelphia aggregation set back Virginia 27 to 0

Syracuse remains an important factor although the 10 to 6 defeat of the Penn State was not impressive

The most conspicuous upset of the day was the Columbia victory over Williams the New Yorkers running away from Cornell's conquerors 27 to 3 The Navy's defeat at the hands of Wesleyan 10 to 7 was another surprise

HARVARD BOWS TO DARTMOUTH

Big Green Eleven Displays More Football Than Crimson Team.

CAMBRIDGE Mass Oct 25—A big green team from the Hanover hills rolled resistlessly over Harvard today Dartmouth achieving one of her rare triumphs over the Crimson by a 6 to 0 score Superb interference behind which Hall and Oberlander ran the ends for long gains

Dartmouth followed the ball better than Harvard and her ends and backs broke up the Crimson's aerial attack better Lacking a kick threat and facing the magnificent kicking of Gehrk of Harvard the Green backs were forced to superhuman efforts The Crimson line stronger and faster than last year's could not stop them

In the second period Hall ran right end for 35 yards behind perfect interference and placed the ball on the 14 yard line Oberlander went through the line for twelve yards Leavitt made the touchdown on the next play The try for goal failed

Centre Loses Game

NEW YORK Oct 25 — Centre college still has a football team and proved it at the Polo Grounds here this afternoon when her gridiron warriors fought the West Virginia squad off its feet only to lose in the final period 13 to 6

Sentre in defeat was still a colorful team presenting at least two men Flash Covington captain and quarterback and Lynch tackle to compare with the illustrious Bo McMillan

Yale Crowds Out Browns

NEW HAVEN Conn Oct 25 Yale fought Brown with its back to the wall for three periods here this afternoon and in the final minutes of the last quarter rallied to score two touchdowns for a 13 to 3 victory It was a heart rending defeat to the Brunonians It was Cottle's fifty six yard run following Bunnell's return with a punt to the 44 yard line that turned the tide in Yale's favor

OREGON AGGIES SHOW STRENGTH

Nebraska's Thanksgiving Day Opponents Kick In With Surprise.

Schissler Eleven Holds Washington U. to 6-3 Score.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—California nosed up alongside the leaders in competition for the Pacific coast conference football title today when she took advantage of the breaks and beat Washington State 20 to 7 at Berkeley.

The Bruins set a terrific pace which the Washington Staters were unable to match.

A costly fumble on one-yard line lost for Idaho a chance to beat Stanford at Portland and the Cardinals won by the unexpected low score of 3 to 0, eliminating Idaho from the conference race.

University of Southern California, regarded as one of the strongest teams in the conference, was given a scare by Nevada in the early part of their game at Los Angeles, but managed to win by a comfortable margin of 21 to 7, keeping its prestige intact.

Aggies Real Fighters.

Washington, whose overwhelming victories have been the talk of the coast, was held to a six to three win by a heavy, fighting team from the Oregon Agricultural college at Seattle. The result of this game was one of the biggest surprises of the day.

Oregon, playing its northwest conference schedule, overwhelmed Whitman 40 to 6 at Eugene.

Arizona defeated New Mexico 7 to 0 at Tucson.

The dust of the season's battles so far has cleared to reveal Washington, University of Southern California, California and Stanford, standing about in the order named, as bidders for the conference championship.

Engelhart Harvests Second Grape Crop

Navy Drops Third Straight Contest

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 25.—Continuing on its way-ward path, the United States Naval Academy succeeded in dropping its third consecutive gridiron encounter here this afternoon, coming out on the short end of a 10 to 7 score with West Virginia Wesleyan.

As on the last two Saturdays, the Middies showed a woeful indecision in the use of plays, and the West Virginians showed marked superiority.

DRAKE TROUNCES SOONER ELEVEN

Oklahoma U. Humbled By Bulldogs By 28-0 Score Margin.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 25.—Drake university upset the dope in the Missouri Valley conference today by deefating Oklahoma university, 28 to 0. Oklahoma, conqueror of Nebraska two weeks ago, was picked to win. The Bulldogs outplayed the Sooners in every department and in the second half played only straight football.

Captain Sam Orebaugh scored Drake's first three touchdowns, making a run of twenty yards or better each time for the score. He placekicked four goals for extra points.

Drake's line proved a stonewall against the plunging of the Sooner backs—Hendricks and Bristow—and the Bulldogs' backfield found the Sooner passes easy to intercept or knock down.

Sooner Passes Wild.

Two of Drake's touchdowns came after Sooner passes were intercepted in their own territory. Oklahoma tritd desperately to score in the last quarter and had Drake defending its own goal. Four times the Sooners lost the ball on downs deep in Drake territory. Drake finished the game with an entire team of substitutes in the lineup.

Captain Bristow was the star of the Sooner team, his strong defensive work stopping many Drake advances. Orebaugh was the star for Drake.

Drake scored once in the first quarter, twice in the second and once in the third.

CRAWFORD, Neb., Oct. 25.—Crawford high school defeated Sheridan, Wyo., in football yesterday, 32 to 0. Sheridan, three-time champion of Wyoming, was played off its feet by the local eleven.

At no time during the contest was the Crawford goal threatened. Capt. Roy Worthington, Crawford fullback, featured the play of the Crawford backfield. He made three touchdowns—one by a sixty-yard run after he had intercepted a Sheridan pass. Allen and Chappell counted the other Crawford touchdowns. In the line, McFarland and Galloway at tackles played a fast brand of football, smearing play after play.

Two World Fliers At Santa Monica; One Forced Down

CLOVER FIELD, Santa Monica, Cal., Oct. 25—Two of the three world flight airplanes arrived here shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon. The planes were in charge of Lieut. Lowell H. Smith and Lieut. Erik Nelson. Lieut Wade, pilot of the third plane, was forced down in South San Francisco with engine trouble.

To Join Others Monday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—Lieut. Leigh Wawe, whose world circling airplane, the Boston II, was forced down in South San Francisco at 10:30 this morning, five minutes after having hopped off from Crissy field with the two other world planes for Clover Field, Santa Monica, will probably continue the voyage southward tomorrow afternoon, if the commutator trouble which forced him to land can be repaired by that time, it was said late today by army air service officials at Crissy field here.

Dropkick In Last 30 Seconds Enabls Chicago To Tie Score

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 25.—For fifty minutes this afternoon Bob Curly, a little Chicago youth, sat wrapped in a blanket on the bench watching a wrinkled-faced old man for the word that gave him a chance for the glory that is the dream of all college boys.

There was one minute to go and Ohio State was leading Chicago 3 to 0 in a game that meant doom for Chicago's chances to win the western conference championship.

Curley had been in but was removed for a heavier man but his chance came.

"All right, get in there Curley and do some kicking," the veteran Coach Alonzo Stagg told his youngster.

Curley went in and with thirty seconds to go, he booted a thirty-yard drop kick for the field goal that ended the game in a 3 to 3 tie.

Fifty thousand spectators in the huge stadium had just become reconciled by the chance for an Ohio State victory when Chicago rallied with a game heart and rushed the ball down the field to State's 15-yard line.

The Ohio forwards fought as only college football players can fight when Chicago began slipping around for short gains.

When the chance was gone for a touchdown, young Curley took the next best thing and tried to save his team from defeat if it could not win. He dropped back, kicked away a few pebbles and booted the ball between the posts.

Ohio State Scores First.

It was just before that when Ohio pulled its great rally and passed the ball down within the shadows of the Chicago goal posts. State tried for a touchdown, but the Chicago line was too big aid too desperate. With one chance remaining to score, Ollie Klee dropped bac to 15 yards and booted over a kick that did not clear the bar mo than an inch.

The teams had fought so furiously and so evenly through three terrific quarters that it looked like State's three points were going to win, but the Chicagoans would not let up and their fighting hearts kept them going until the break came and they made it good.

Ohio lost a chance to score a touchdown in the third period. They broke out with a wild passing and running attack, that advanced the ball to Chicago's seventeen yard line.

Klee, who was to make up for this later, was called upon for a smash off tackle and he was charging through the secondary defense with a touchdown in sight when a huge Chicago back hit him and the ball popped out of his arms into the hands of the Chicago fullback. State had no other chance to score until the fourth period started when young Klee made amends for his error.

ILLINI VICTOR MINUS GRANGE

Illinois Flash On Sidelines While Mates Walk Over Depauw.

(United Press.)

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 25—With "Red" Grange decorating the side lines, Illinois swamped Depaw here this afternoon, 45 to 0. Five other Illionis regulars were kept out of the game by Coach Zuppke. Ray Gallivan, Illinois speedy quarterback took advantage of Grangge's absence, to step into the role of hero, scoring three touchdowns, and counting three more point on a plack-kick from the field.

Iowa Downs Minnesota.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 25—Playing whirlwind football, a rejuvenated Iowa eleven downed Minnesota by a 13 to 0 score here today.

For the first time this season, Coach Ingwersen's Hawkeyes showed a conference brand of football in trouncing the Minnesota aggregation. Iowa got off to a slow start and Minnesota advanced down the field to Iowa's 20-yard line in a series of line smashes. Here the Iowa line tightened and from then on, the Iowans had all the advantage.

Captain Parkin at quarter made a permanent place for himself in the annals of Iowa's football heroes. His brilliant open field run early in the fourth quarter netted Iowa's only touchdown.

Hancock scored three points on a place kick in the second quarter and added three more points with his toe in the fourth quarter.

Hawkeyes March To Victory.

Minnesota seemed powerless to stop the march of the Hawkeyes in the last period, and after Parkin went over the Iowa eleven marched to within a few yards of the gopher goal but lost the ball on downs.

Ingwersen's weeks of work on the Iowa forward wall showed fruit today and after the play once tightened the Hawkeyes line was rockribbed.

Schulte and Ascher did most of the offensive work for Minnesota, going through the line repeatedly for considerable gains. Never once, however, did the Gopher eleven come within scoring distance of the Iowa goal except in the first quarter. Griffin played an outstanding game at center and the Hawkeyes went through the pivot position for long gains.

Michigan Wallops Badgers.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 25.—Michigan arose from its ashes today and scored a smashing triumph over the Wisconsin eleven, 21 to 0.

The re-vamped Michigan lineup showed a complete reversal of form over that displayed against Illinois last week, performing against the Badgers as if they had played together for some time.

Benjamin Friedman, a 170 pound lad from Cleveland, and Rockwell starred for Michigan. Friedman made several brilliant runs and threw eight passes, five of which were completed.

Illini-Iowa Set Pace In "Big Ten" Loop

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 25.—When the referees sounded their final whistles today, the Illini of Coach Zuppke were a step nearer to the coveted championship of the Big Ten.

The Orange and Blue warriors, who romped over De Pauw, 45 to 0, in a practice encounter at Urbana did not gain the advantage through their own victory, of course, but because of other leading contenders for conference honors had been cutting each others throats.

The Staggmen from Chicago went to Ohio State with a clean slate identical to Illinois standing and then battled Wilces youngsters to a tie 3-3. The Buckeyes now stand with two deadlocked games and one win as their record.

By defeating Minnesota 13 to 0, Iowa advanced to a position that will look dangerous to the Illini. Coach Bert Ingwersens Hawkeyes have one victory and one tie as their tally to date. The Gophers' previous record was a tie with Wisconsin.

Michigan already eliminated from the race, settled Wisconsin's aspirations by turning the Badgers back 21 to 0 and Coach Jack Ryan now has a tie and a defeat as his mid-season card.

Northwestern defeated the strong Michigan Aggies non-conference aggregation 13 to 9, and thereby remained in the race.

Purdue and Indiana were the only big ten machines that were idle today. Both have been defeated.

Missouri Tigers Rally To Defeat Kansas Farmers

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 25.—Missouri continued its drive for a Missouri Valley conference championship by defeating the Kansas Aggies, 14 to 7, in a great comeback here this afternoon after the Farmers scored early in the second period. Tonight the Tigers are tied with Drake for first place in the championship race, neither team having lost a game this season.

Although having its goal line crossed for the first time this fall, the Tigers succeeded in breaking up the Aggies' aerial attack and consequently won.

Sarazen Finishes Ahead of Field In Maryland Handicap

RACE TRACK, Laurel, Md., Oct. 25.—Running a mile and a quarter in 2:02 2-5, within two-fifths of a second of the track record, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt's Sarzen won the $10,000 Maryland handicap here this afternoon.

By beating Wise Counsellor, which finished fifth, Sarzen established himself beyond a doubt as the best 3-year-old in America.

Rustie made a last minute rush and finished second. Aga Khan was a length and a half behind and Sun Flag fourth.

Sarzen was the favorite in the betting, paying only $3.20 on a $2 investment.

Dartmouth In Spotlight of Eastern Grid

NEW YORK, Oct. 25. — Dartmouth's six to nothing victory over Harvard today definitely established the Green as one of the leaders for the mythical eastern championship. The New Hampshire eleven, which tied with Yale last week, now faces a comparatively easy schedule during the remainder of the season, meeting Brown, Boston University and Cornell.

Yale vindicated its right to mention as the prospective "champion" by coming from behind in the last period to triumph over Brown, 13 to 3.

Once again Notre Dame warriors disobeyed the injunction of Horace Greeley and as usual, to good effect. The "fighting Irish" under Knute Rockne, "went east," and emerged with the hide and fur of the Princeton Tiger, 12 to 0.

La Fayette and Pennsylvania are two teams which are as yet undefeated and untied, and they must be reckoned with by any one who is to elect a winner from the seaboard gridiron. La Fayette trounced Washington and Jefferson, 20 to 6, while the Philadelphia aggregation set back Virginia, 27 to 0.

Syracuse remains an important factor, although the 10 to 6 defeat of the Penn State was not impressive.

The most conspicuous upset of the day was the Columbia victory over Williams, the New Yorkers running away from Cornell's conquerors, 27 to 3. The Navy's defeat at the hands of Wesleyan 10 to 7 was another surprise.

HARVARD BOWS TO DARTMOUTH

Big Green Eleven Displays More Football Than Crimson Team.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 25.—A big green team from the Hanover hills rolled resistlessly over Harvard today, Dartmouth achieving one of her rare triumphs over the Crimson by a 6 to 0 score. Superb interference, behind which Hall and Oberlander ran the ends for long gains.

Dartmouth followed the ball better than Harvard and her ends and backs broke up the Crimson's aerial attack better. Lacking a kick threat, and facing the magnificent kicking of Gehrke of Harvard the Green backs were forced to superhuman efforts. The Crimson line, stronger and faster than last year's could not stop them.

In the second period, Hall ran right end for 35 yards behind perfect interference and placed the ball on the 14 yard line. Oberlander went through the line for twelve yards. Leavitt made the touchdown on the next play. The try for goal failed.

Centre Loses Game.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25. — Centre college still has a football team and proved it at the Polo Grounds here this afternoon when her gridiron warriors fought the West Virginia squad off its feet only to lose in Nthe final period, 13 to 6.

Sentre in defeat was still a colorful team, presenting at least two men, "Flash" Covington, captain and quarterback, and Lynch, tackle, to compare with the illustrious "Bo" McMillan.

Yale Crowds Out Browns.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.,Oct. 25. Yale fought Brown with its back to the wall for three periods here this afternoon and in the final minutes of the last quarter rallied to score two touchdowns for a 13 to 3 victory. It was a heart rending defeat to the Brunonians. It was Cottle's fifty-six yard run following Bunnell's return with a punt t ch 44-yard line that turned the tide in Yale's favor.

Rain Postpones St. Paul-Seattle Series Opener

SEATTLE, Oct. 25—Rain today prevented the initial game between St. Paul, champions of the American association and Seattle, coast league pennant winners.

At game time, the rain was falling hard.

Forecasters said there was an "outside chance" it would be clear for Sunday's game.

GRAIN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 25.

Grain prices were irregular at the close of the market here today. Wheat finished unchanged to ¼c off, corn up ¼ to ½c at the close; oats were off ⅛ to ¼c up.

Grains were lower at the opening, advanced a cent and a fraction, then slumped off again. Cables were very weak, Liverpool closing the short session with marked losses. Sentiment in the wheat market again is shifting to the bull side and a decided pre-election advance is confidently predicted.

Corn and oats turned strong early, but were more erratic than wheat and did not inspire so much confidence in the trade generally.

Provisions were weak on small trade.

WHEAT — Grains opened generally lower today. Wheat started ¼c higher to 1c lower, with a mixed trade. There was further selling by houses with eastern connections.

CORN—Corn was ⅛@½c off at the start, as a result of scattered selling, but recovered on the break on responsible buying.

OATS—Oats started unchanged to ⅛c lower and rallied with other grains.

PROVISIONS — Provisions started weak to 15c lower for lard. Trade was small.

ALL FOR SATISFACTION—AND SATISFACTION FOR ALL

Don't think of the Star's Classified Section as a medium of benefit to but one group of people.

It satisfies everybody!

With its well-regulated columns brought to the very last degree of scientific and systematic efficiency — it benefits, in equal measure, the working man, the professional man, the business executive, the housekeeper—and so on.

And classified service also is equally beneficial to both the advertiser and the answerer.

It is simplicity itself to understand why this is so. You have something I want—and I have something you want. We swap. We both profit.

We're both satisfied.

And that's what classified advertising service is—all for satisfaction and satisfaction for all.

NEW STUDEBAKER NOW ON MARKET

Makers Claim That Duplex Model Has Stirred Automobile World.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 25.—A new type of car has stirred the automobile world as has nothing since the abandonment of the "buggy" style of body building.

It is the Studebaker duplex, so-called to indicate that it is an open car one moment and thirty seconds later, it is an enclosed car

Like all great advances in the industrial arts, it is "so simple in operation, it is a wonder it wasn't thought of before," particularly since its need has been growing, year by year, ever since automobiles were made

Many people, all of the time, and most people, part of the time, want an open car—to bring to their riding the fresh crispness of the country air, and a free and untrammeled association with the great outdoors.

Yet for these same people, the snug comfort of thec losed car, shutting out the storms and the wind and the cold, has been at times a necessity.

Two Cars In One.

The Studebaker duplex is both cars in one Just pull down the roller enclosures concealed in the roof of the car. In thirty seconds the open car has been made an enclosed car.

The body is built substantially—sides, corners and roof frame are of steel. The roof has surved steel sides and back, hard wood front Six steel, U-shaped cross beams, support the water-proofed, duplex fabric top and its linings Here is permanent beauty—no sagging

But, Studebaker—with 72 years of responsibility behind it—on which the whole vehicle-using world has come to depend for reliability—would not rest on the only contribution to the value given the public. It must give all that engineering ability could devise.

Three Distinct Lines.

So there are offered three distinct lines of cars, to meet each of the three fields of demand—the Standard Six, with 113-inch wheelbase and 50 horsepower motor; the special six, with 120-inch wheelbase and 65 horsepower motor; the Big Six, most magnificient and luxurious of its produucts, with 127-inch wheelbase and 75 horsepower motor.

The new duplex bodies are avilable on each line. In addition, closed models—coupes, sedans, victorias and berlines—have workship and materials and beauty of line so far above the price class of the car, they must be seen to be appreciated.

Of scarcely less importance than the duplex feature are other mechanical improvements also includeded with the price of the car.

An automatic ignition system which fits the timing exactly to the load put on the engine, has taken the spark lever off the steering wheel and put in its place the whole lighting control, in one small lever, right at the finger tips No bending down under the wheel and groping for a switch on the instrument board.

Other New Features.

Out of the driver's compartment has gone the emergency brake lever, which formerly cluttered up leg room there. Grasped as before, it projects out and down from the dash, taking no room, yet instantly available.

One unobstructed piece of glass in the windshield, with full and free ventilation not limited to two or three inches of clearance; steel apron over the gas tank; combination stop and tail light, comfortable cushions, set at a new angle for greatest comfort; cowl lights, automatic windshield cleaner; upholstery such as is found in the highest priced cars—these are some values put into the new cars as standard.

Two other outstanding features—full balloon tires around which the body lines have been built with race and beauty hitherto unattained, even by Studebaker; and Studebaker hydraulic four-wheel brakes, optional at extra charge, that positively cannot be locked and which require no spider-web of conduits to operate—all this is a part of the Studebaker values offered this year.

Advises Better Tire Equipment For This Winter

"Car owners who expect to drive this winter should be sure their tire equipment is in good condition so they will not be held up with road trouble nor forced to walk several miles to telephone for a service car," said A. L. Brown, Goodyear dealer at 325 South Eleventh street

"More and more car owners are coming to regard their machines as a winter necessity, enabling them to get about more readily than if they had to depend on some other means of transportation And so, trouble free use of their cars is important.

"For instance, after a summer of driving the tires ought to be dismounted from the wheels and the sand and dust that have accumulated through a summer's driving can be blown out with an air line and the life of the tubes prolonged. Sand inside a tire acts like sandpaper on the tube, soon wearing it thin and resulting in a blowout when you're least expecting it.

"And there are other things to look to as well For instance, after a summer of driving, wheels are apt to be out of alignment and our service can stop the loss of tire mileage that this causes Then there might be loose valve stems or many other litle things that, taken in time, will save considerable money and time in the future

"We also are in a position to explain fully the use of balloon tires in both small diameter and interchangeable kinds and we will be very glad to take the time to go over the subject of balloons with any car owner who doesn't know much about them.

"This information as well as our service of inspection is offered to the motorists of Lincoln without charge"

Valve Efficiency.

Most mechanical troubles in an engine are caused by the valves or the valve mechanism. It may be that they leak compression due to warping or being covered with carbon or due to wearing of the valve seats. If the valves are dirty or worn on their seats, it is possible to regrind them so they will operate the same as when they were new. This regrinding operation is only necessary when they begin to leak and when the engine misses explosions when it is running slowly.

As a result of a great national movement for traffic safety, "boulevard stops" are common in almost every city and town.

For safety's sake, the motorist must halt or slow down at every crossing. That means a constant battling with balky gears—in all cars except the Chandler; for the Chandler is the only car containing the

Traffic Transmission

Because it employs a new and simple principle, the Traffic Transmission eliminates all gear clashing.

It makes the shift from high to second or low just as silent, just as certain as the one from low to second or high.

It makes every speed change an instantaneous, noiseless snap—yet you use the clutch and gear lever exactly as in other cars.

That is why you will be amazed when you sit at the wheel of a Chandler and drive!

All models of the 1925 Chandler are powered by the famous Pikes Peak Motor and come equipped with super-size balloon tires. Four-wheel brakes are optional at a moderate additional charge. The bodies are superb examples of Fisher craftsmanship—particularly the new Metropolitan Sedan De Luxe and the new Chummy Sedan. Touring car $1585. Four-door Sedan $1995, f. o. b. Cleveland.

NEW STUDEBAKER NOW ON MARKET

Makers Claim That Duplex Model Has Stirred Automobile World.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 25.—A new type of car has stirred the automobile world as has nothing since the abandonment of the "buggy" style of body building.

It is the Studebaker duplex, so-called to indicate that it is an open car one moment and, thirty seconds later, it is an enclosed car.

Like all great advances in the industrial arts, it is "so simple in operation, it is a wonder it wasn't thought of before," particularly since its need has been growing, year by year, ever since automobiles were made.

Many people, all of the time, and most people, part of the time, want an open car—to bring to their riding the fresh crispness of the country air, and a free and untrammeled association with the great outdoors.

Yet for these same people, the snug comfort of thec losed car, shutting out the storms and the wind and the cold, has been at times a necessity.

Two Cars In One.

The Studebaker duplex is both cars in one. Just pull down the roller enclosures concealed in the roof of the car. In thirty seconds the open car has been made an enclosed car.

The body is built substantially—sides, corners and roof frame are of steel. The roof has surved steel sides and back; hard wood front. Six steel, U-shaped cross beams, support the water-proofed, duplex fabric top and its linings. Here is permanent beauty—no sagging

But, Studebaker—with 72 years of responsibility behind it—on which the whole vehicle-using world has come to depend for reliability—would not rest on the only contribution to the value given the public. It must give all that engineering ability could devise.

Three Distinct Lines.

So there are offered three distinct lines of cars, to meet each of the three fields of demand—the Standard Six, with 113-inch wheelbase and 50 horsepower motor; the special six, with 120-inch wheelbase and 65 horsepower motor; the Big Six, most magnificient and luxurious of its produucts, with 127-inch wheelbase and 75 horsepower motor.

The new duplex bodies are avilable on each line. In addition, closed models—coupes, sedans, victorias and berlines—have workship and materials and beauty of line so far above the price class of the car, they must be seen to be appreciated.

Of scarcely less importance than the duplex feature are other mechanical improvements also includeded with the price of the car.

An automatic ignition system which fits the timing exactly to the load put on the engine, has taken the spark lever off the steering wheel and put in its place the whole lighting control, in one small lever, right at the finger tips. No bending down under the wheel and groping for a switch on the instrument board.

One unobstructed piece of glass in the windshield, with full and free ventilation not limited to two or three inches of clearance; steel apron over the gas tank; combination stop and tail light; comfortable cushions, set at a new angle for greatest comfort; cowl lights, automatic windshield cleaner; upholstery such as is found in the highest priced cars—these are some values put into the new cars as standard.

BY LULU MAE COE.

Sixteen pictures were unveiled at Nebraska City yesterday morning.

They were the photographs of the second judicial district of Nebraska.

Their portraits are to hang in the district court room of the Otoe county court house—in the room where so many of them presided, in the county that has always been a part of the district. They have been hung where men and women and little children may come to look at them.

None of the eighteen judges is living. They have given their decisions. They have signed decrees Others carry on their work.

But their work is not forgotten. The decrees defining right and wrong, the rules of good conduct, serve today as guides to good citizenship. Some of them served many years ago, but the years have not dulled the power of their words nor the strength of their decisions.

Some of these men gave the first judicial decisions in Nebraska seventy years ago. One of them performed the first judicial act in the Territory of Nebraska. They gave meaning and strength and power to the statutes of a state that had not come into being. They helped to build the new territory upon the rocks of law and order good government.

And yesterday morning these sixteen pictures were formally presented in Nebraska City. Judge Paul Jessen, the only living former ...dge of the district, made a his- ... address and Hon. Andrew M. ...issey, chief justice of the Ne- ...a supreme court, spoke on ... People's Court." Brief rem- ...t talks were made by rep- ...tives of Cass, Sarpy, Rich- ..., Nemaha, Lancaster, John- ...d Pawnee counties, which ...t one time been in this dis-

...rmally Present Pictures.

...ge James T. Begley, the pres- ... district judge, who presided, ... introduced by Andrew P. Mo- ...n, county attorney, formally pre- ...nted the pictures Judge Begley made a brief speech of acceptance for the district court.

The guests of honor were the relatives of these judges. Mrs. H. H. Wheeler, a daughter of Judge Oliver P. Mason, and her sons, H. H. Wheeler, jr., and Mason Wheeler, and Mrs S. B. Pound and two daughters, Misses Louise and Olivia Pound, Mrs. May Field, her daughters, Mrs. Fred W. Upson and Miss Kate Field, and Allen Field, and Ernest Fairfield, a brother-in-law of Judge A. W. Field are the Lincoln relatives of former judges.

Judge Jessen's address was chiefly concerned with the history of the second judicial district and with the territorial background of that district. It deal in detail with the history of seventy years, from the time of territorial days when the judges were presidential appointees and the district judges constituted the supreme court through the changes of territory and judgeship coincident with the passing of time

Section 9 of the Kansas-Nebraska bill, by which Nebraska was admitted as a territory, provided for a judicial system The supreme court consisted of a chief justice and two associate justices and the territory was divided into three judicial districts, and each district was presided over by one of the supreme judges who was to live in the district.

President Franklin Pierce appointed officers for the territory and the appointments were ratified by the senate in the summer of 1854. The officers were Francis Burt of South Carolina, governor Thomas B. Cuming of Iowa, secretary. Fenner Ferguson of Michigan, chief justice, James Bradley of Indiana and Edward R Harden of Georgia, associate justices.

Cuming took the oath of office before Peter V Daniels, associate justice of the United States supreme court, August 3, 1854, presumably at Washington. He came to Nebraska and on October 12 he administered the oath of office to Judge Ferguson at Bellevue. Judge Ferguson gave the oath to other territorial officers.

Chief Justice Ferguson probably performed the first official act of any member of the judicial department in the territory when he had been here but five days, having arrived October 11, 1854. Seventy years ago, October 18, 1854, Governor Burt died at Bellevue and two days before, the chief justice administered the oath of office to him at the Mission house.

First Census in 1854.

The first census was taken in November, 1854 and by proclamation of Acting Governor Cuming on December 20, 1854, the territory was divided into three judicial districts. The second district comprised all the part of the territory south of the Platte river. At that time it constituted four counties, Cass, Otoe, then Pierce, Nemaha, then Forney, and Richardson, together with the unorganized territory west of these counties and south of the Platte and extending westward to the west boundary of the territory, the summit of the main range of the Rocky mountains.

Justice Harden was assigned to the district and the first term of court was by proclamation directed to be held in Nebraska City, the third Monday of March, 1855, March 19, not quite seventy years ago. Terms were soon arranged at Plattsmouth, Brownville, and Falls City and the judges held court in the four towns.

During the thirteen years of territorial history, from 1854 to 1866, there were four chief justices presiding over the supreme court, Fenner Ferguson, Augustus Hall, William Kellog, and William Pitt Kellog. During the same time there were eight associate justices, Edward R. Harden, James Bradley, Joseph Miller, William T. Lockwood, Joseph Streeter, Samuel Black, Elmer K. Dundy, and Eleazer Wakeley. Of these, Judges Harden, Black, Miller and Dundy belonged properly to the second district, but three others, Streeter, Wakeley and Chief Justice Ferguson presided in the district so often they have been included in the second district judiciary.

Fenner Ferguson, the first chief justice, was appointed from Albion, Mich., to the position. He served continuously as judge of the first district from the time of his appointment up to 1857, when he was elected territorial delegate to congress. He died at the age of forty-five and is buried at Bellevue.

Chief Justice Ferguson assisted the acting governor in the division of the territory into judicial districts and assisted and advised the first territorial legislature in framing and passing the first civil and criminal code. He was the only member of the first supreme court to continue his home in Nebraska until his death.

Edward Harden, associate justice of the first territorial supreme court, was a Georgian and was appointed in July, 1854. He resigned in 1857, and Samuel W. Black of Pennsylvania, was appointed to succeed him. He was judge in the second district until 1859 when he was appointed territorial governor. Judge Joseph Miller succeeded Judge Black and in 1863 Elmer S. Dundy of Richardson county was appointed and he served until the territory became a state.

Killed in Fence Dispute.

Some judicial business in the second district was transacted from March 1855 to September 1856, but no record can be found of it. The first term of the district court held in Otoe county of which there is record was September, 1856, which convened on the twenty-second in Nebraska City, with Judge Harden presiding.

The proceedings cover sixty-three pages of the Journal and there are notes on 133 cases, 41 of them criminal and 92 civil. They are varied, the criminal cases varying from murder and riot to assault and betting, the civil cases from attachment and partition to action for attorney fees. Probably cases on other misdemeanors have not been recorded.

Harden of Georgia, associate justices.

Cuming took the oath of office before Peter V. Daniels, associate justice of the United States supreme court, August 3, 1854, presumably at Washington. He came to Nebraska and on October 12 he administered the oath of office to Judge Ferguson at Bellevue. Judge Ferguson gave the oath to other territorial officers.

Chief Justice Ferguson probably performed the first official act of any member of the judicial department in the territory when he had been here but five days, having arrived October 11, 1854. Seventy years ago, October 18, 1854, Governor Burt died at Bellevue and two days before, the chief justice administered the oath of office to him at the Mission house.

First Census in 1854.

The first census was taken in November, 1854 and by proclamation of Acting Governor Cuming on December 20, 1854, the territory was divided into three judicial districts. The second district comprised all the part of the territory south of the Platte river. At that time it constituted four counties, Cass, Otoe, then Pierce, Nemaha, then Forney, and Richardson, together with the unorganized territory west of these counties and south of the Platte and extending westward to the west boundary of the territory, the summit of the main range of the Rocky mountains.

Justice Harden was assigned to the district and the first term of court was by proclamation directed to be held in Nebraska City, the third Monday of March, 1855, March 19, not quite seventy years ago. Terms were soon arranged at Plattsmouth, Brownville, and Falls City and the judges held court in the four towns.

During the thirteen years of territorial history, from 1854 to 1866, there were four chief justices presiding over the supreme court, Fenner Ferguson, Augustus Hall, William Kellog, and William Pitt Kellog. During the same time there were eight associate justices, Edward R. Harden, James Bradley, Joseph Miller, William T. Lockwood, Joseph Streeter, Samuel Black, Elmer K. Dundy, and Eleazer Wakeley. Of these, Judges Harden, Black, Miller and Dundy belonged properly to the second district, but three others, Streeter, Wakeley and Chief Justice Ferguson presided in the district so often they have been included in the second district judiciary.

Fenner Ferguson, the first chief justice, was appointed from Albion, Mich., to the position. He served continuously as judge of the first district from the time of his appointment up to 1857, when he was elected territorial delegate to congress. He died at the age of forty-five and is buried at Bellevue.

Chief Justice Ferguson assisted the acting governor in the division of the territory into judicial districts and assisted and advised the first territorial legislature in framing and passing the first civil and criminal code. He was the only member of the first supreme court to continue his home in Nebraska until his death.

Edward Harden, associate justice of the first territorial supreme court, was a Georgian and was appointed in July, 1854. He resigned in 1857, and Samuel W. Black of Pennsylvania, was appointed to succeed him. He was judge in the second district until 1859 when he was appointed territorial governor. Judge Joseph Miller succeeded Judge Black and in 1863 Elmer S. Dundy of Richardson county was appointed and he served until the territory became a state.

Killed in Fence Dispute.

Some judicial business in the second district was transacted from March 1885 to September 1856, but no record can be found of it. The first term of the district court held in Otoe county of which there is record was September, 1856, which convened on the twenty-second in Nebraska City, with Judge Harden presiding.

The proceedings cover sixty-three pages of the Journal and there are notes on 133 cases, 41 of them criminal and 92 civil. They are varied, the criminal cases varying from murder and riot to assault and betting, the civil cases from attachment and partition to action for attorney fees. Probably cases on other misdemeanors have not been recorded.

BY MARIE HERRIN.

"I am looking rather seedy now,
While I am holding down my claim,
And my victuals are not always served the best,
And the mice play shyly round me
As I nestle down ot sleep.
In my little old sod shanty in the West.

"The hinges are of leather,
And the windows have no glass,
While the board roof lets the howling blizzard in.
And I hear the hungry coyotes
As he sneaks up through the grass
Around the little old sod shanty on my claim.

"Yet I rather like the novelty
Of living in this way,
Though my bill of fare is always rather tame,
But I am happy as a clam
On this land of Uncle Sam's
In my little old sod shanty on the plain."

Ah, those were the days!

Ask any old settler and he will tell you that people really lived then, and that like the words of the old song, they were happy while they were doing it.

They didn't have paved streets or smooth highways but they were building toward the day when they would.

There were no automobiles, but there were horses, and horses were real friends in those days.

There were no electric lights but the people knew how to make their own candles and they did it. They will tell you too, rather proudly, that there were fewer worn out eyes then than now.

Though the food was not always the finest, it was always ready to be shared with some one in need. Men fought shoulder to shoulder for the necessities of life and for the building up of the new community.

First Settlers Arrive.

When the first settler came to Hastings in 1870, ehe prairie, covered only by harsh tufts of buffalo grass, lay uninterrupted by tree or house as far as the eye could see in every direction.

Only the Oregon Trail and the path of the Forty-niners proved that white men had been there before.

Walter M. Micklem, a native of England, was the first man to take a homestead here and the business section of Hastings has grown up on a portion of his 80-acre tract.

After him in rapid succession came Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Alexander with their little daughter, C. K. Lawson, A. H. Cramer, A. L. Clarke, George Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stock—the parents of the first child born in Hastings—F. J. Benedict, Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie Moore—the builders of the first frame house in the settlement—Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore, C. G. Ingalls and Tom Farrell. All of these took an active part in the establishment of the village which was incorporated into a town in 1874.

Before that time there were many interesting experiences, each of them helping in a measure to knit the community closer together.

Big Easter Blizzard.

Among those the Easter storm of 1873 was probably the most outstanding. It was a blizzard of terrific intensity that lasted three full days, days that were fraught with most severe hardships for the pioneers and that saw many animals perish under the great 12-foot drifts.

The blizzard was preceeded by a wind storm that assumed tornado proportions in many places and homesteaders worked desperately to save their lightly built houses.

It struck hardest in the western part of Adams county. Dr. A. D. Williams of Kenesaw, national figure in religious affairs as well as an editor and publisher and had lately come to Adams county, wrote the following account of the storm shortly after it had passed.

Tells of Storm.

"Easter Sunday, April 13, 1873, was a bright beautiful day until a little after 4 o'clock in the afternoon. All at once everyone began listening to the stillness. Instinctively everyone felt, he knew not why, that something was the matter.

"Presently, rapidly rolling clouds appeared low in the northeast, hurrying up and on like billows on a stormy sea. Then an approaching oncoming darkness appeared in the northwest, like an inky curtain that was at length discovered to be rapidly coming on without internal movement.

"Still more impressive became the silence until suddenly a roar shook the whole heavens. The two storms had come together apparently over our heads and the tempest struck us with terrific force from the northwest.

"Everything moveable hurried away most unceremoniously. The air became filled with dust so thick, whirling and blinding that sight could not penetrate half a rod away and persons in the house could not see each other even before the windows.

"The roar of the elements was well nigh deafening. People felt their way to the north windows to keep them from blowing in, the family sometimes keeping them in place by their hands and bodies. In some instances they were not kept in and the roof, sometimes the whole structures, went like feathers before the storm."

Houses Blown Down.

Dr. Williams tells of a half dozen or more houses in his section of the county which were torn to pieces but in each case the families escaped serious injury. The snow storm followed so quickly after the tornado passed that even though the families escaped the wind, they had a hard fight to mtaintain their lives during the three days that followed.

One family, that of Captain and Mrs. Knapp, was found after the blizzard buried in a sod henhouse on their claim. They were all alive but so weak that none of them could stand. Their shelter was so small that they could neither stand nor lie down and they had had no food except the eggs the hens laid during their imprisonment under the snow.

Later in the spring of 1875, settlers returning to their claims northeast of Hastings fter a visit to town, saw a great number of rattlesnakes, basking in the sun on a slope near the Little Blue. They sent a messenger back to the village for help to destroy the poisonous horde.

Slaughter of Snakes.

Every store was quickly closed and men grabbed the first weapons they saw as they hurried to the battlefield. They killed 500 snakes that day.

Men and women banded together in the fighting of prairie fires on several occasions during those early days for Indians used to set the dry grass on fire when the wind was right so that they could drive the buffalo and other game down to the rivers for their winter supply of meat.

Fire breaks were plowed with desperate haste by some while others beat out the flames which leaped across the barrier of overturned sod.

Samuel Alexander started the first store in Hastings and acted as postmaster for nine and a half years after the railroad was extended through the village. Hastings then had grown to be quite a trading point and men came from far down in Kansas to supply their needs and to receive their mail.

There were no safes in those days in which registered mail could be kept and Mr. Alexander used to carry all such matter to his home, raise a board in the floor at the head of his bed and hide the valuable letters there till morning.

Simple Application That Dissolves Blackheads

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out and that is to dissolve them. Get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts and every blackhead will be gone.

Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make large pores and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition.—Advertisement.

Stratford Manor to be the Distinctive English Type of Architecture

Excavation Under Way On Site of Lincoln's "Home Beautiful."

Mayor Qualifies as "Dirt Farmer" By Turning Straight Furrow.

Lines of automobiles are parked on either side of Rathbone road and on Stratford avenue. A group of people stand on the uncompleted sidewalk around a part of the flat-ironshaped lot; a photographer at one side adjusts his tripod with difficulty and sets up the camera preparatory to the next step in the proceedings.

A large flag marks the corners of the lot, and others are used to show the exact corners of the house that will in the near future grace the neighborhood. Now and then a man wanders on to the lot, walking undecidedly from one emblem to another.

Excitement Draws the Curious.

Another car draws up in a vacant parking space, and a group of its passengers hurry to the sidewalk, lest they miss some of the excitement. From the deserted houses along the other side of the street come women with youngsters who want to know what is happening.

For this is the ground-breaking ceremony of Stratford Manor, Lincoln's home beautiful.

The first tangible step in the building of the house that has set all Lincoln agog was taken Friday morning at 11 o'clock. At the site, operations are now progressing rapidly, for the building schedule calls for fast work in excavation.

Automobiles drove up to the site about a half-hour before the ceremony was scheduled to begin. One by one the automobiles came up, parked and passengers alighted. Flags were fluttering in the breeze of the high ground.

Mayor Zehrung, who was to guide the plow that turned the first soil at the ceremony, gave the first of several informal addresses. He told of Lincoln's pre-eminence as a city of homes, and remarked that in showing the city to a stranger, we show off our homes, our churches, and our schools. He told of every man's desire to marry and found a home, and of the memories called forth by the use of the word "home."

John Howard Payne's song, 'Home Sweet Home" came in for its share of attention at the ceremony, for Mayor Zehrung mentioned its prominence in everyone's mind whenever the word whose connotation it immortalizes is used.

Mrs. Marty Gives Address.

Mrs. E. L. Marty, president of the Lincoln Woman's club, also mentioned the old song in her brief talk following Mayor Zehrung's speech. "It is every man's desire to found a home," she agreed with the mayor, "but every woman wants to create and maintain the spirit that will make it a home in the true sense of the word."

"We all consider our homes as of paramount importance," she continued. "To the most of the women the church is second; and the third in importance is her club work, which seems to absorb so much of her time."

R. A. Bickford, introduced as the "real orator of the day," talked very briefly, speaking of the Lincoln home beautiful as an expression of the 'own your home" idea which has so taken the interest of Lincoln people. That Lincoln homebuilders may have the benefit of watching the erection of a model home, built not only to show how lovely a home may be, but to show how practicable a beautiful house may be, and still be within the average man's means, the manor is being built through the co-operation of Lincoln firms.

Mayor In Plowman's Role.

As a mayor Frank Zehrung has to be a good plowman, and he demonstrated his ability to the complete satisfaction of the crowd at the Friday morning ceremony. A hand plow, pulled by two large draft horses, was on the ground, and at the close of the few brief talks, the mayor walked across the field to the flag at which the plow was to turn up the first furrow of earth.

"He'll never make it," R. A. Bickford confided to the man next to him. "The old plow hasn't been used for some time, and it's stiff and dull."

"Good thing you didn't tell him that before," his champion whispered back.

They held their breaths as the mayor took his station behind the plow.

Turns Over Neat Furrow.

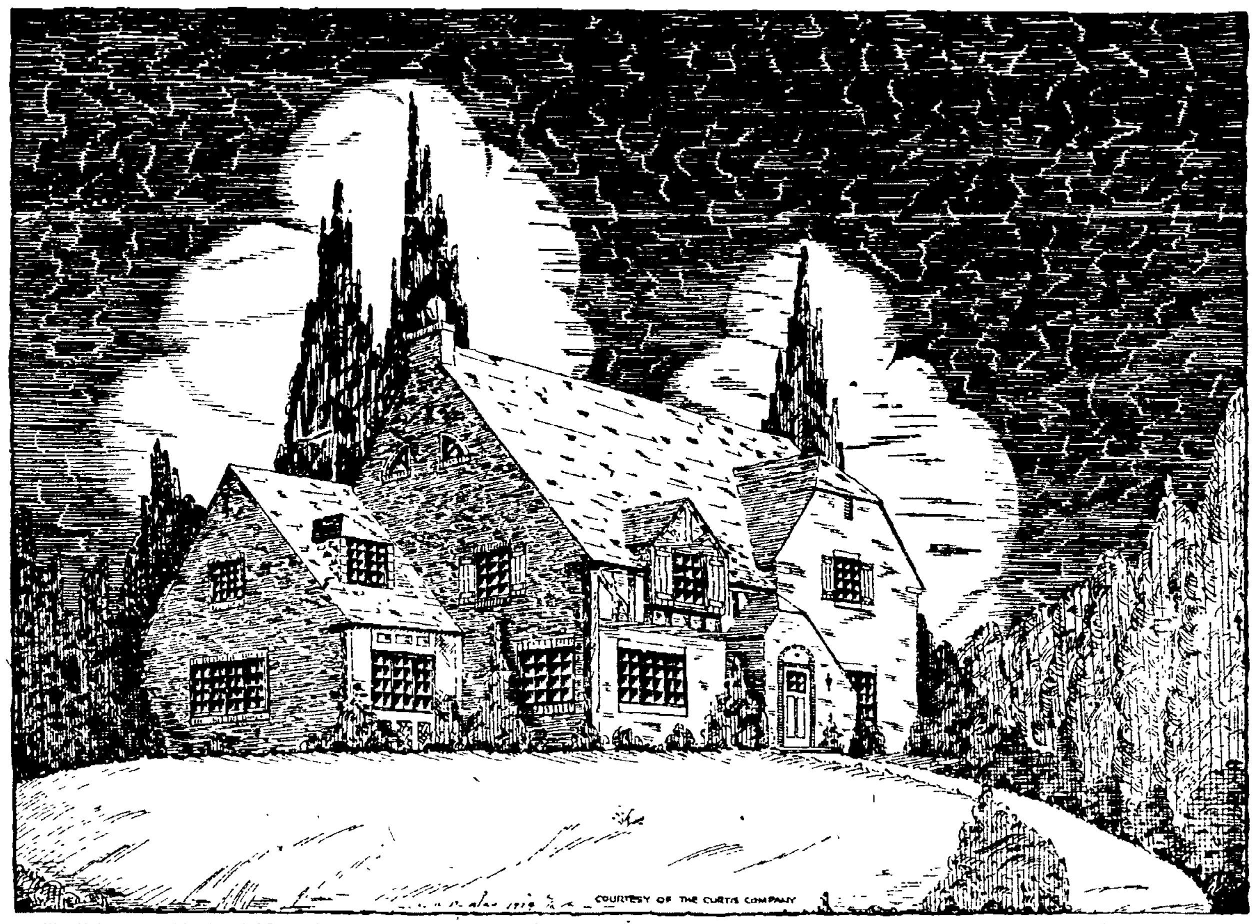
The driver clucked to his horses. The plow went deep and turned up a furrow of rich black loam.

There was a slight pause while the photographer snapped the mayor, the plow, the horses, and the furrow behind; then the plow was started again. The mayor turned up another row, as straight as an engineer could hignt running from one of the corner flags toward another.

Enthusiastic cheering and hand-clapping from the Lincoln people who had gathered to watch the mayor's technique showed the crowd's approval of the mayor's impersonation of the Nebraska 'dirt farmer."

A broad smile covered the mayor's features, as he removed his hat, and made a mock bow, one hand still holding the plow-handle.

Stratford Manor Will Combine American Conveniences With English Architecture



COURTESY OF THE CURTIS COMPANY

An English home, Stratford Manor, Lincoln's home beautiful, incorporates all the attractive features of the British house. There are the basement windows, opening outward; the slab shutters; the steep roof; the chimney-tops; and the dormered gables; all lending atmosphere to the model home.

America, as a country, has no distinctive architecture herself. But American methods have adapted the styles of other countries, and made them practicable here. The Swiss chateau, the "castle in Spain," the Moorish residence; the Italian villa; all have their counterparts on this side of the Atlantic, But the American style has made some few changes; and instead of mediaeval inconveniences we have in the modern reproductions the true beauty which comes from practicability.

Cabled and dormered, Stratford Manor is a true example of the English home. Hawthorne's storied "house of the seven gables" is completely overshadowed by the present modernized version of the Salem setting. For there are seven subsidiary gables included in che plan for Stratford Manor, and at least two others may be counted if one takes into consideration the principal part of the house.

Casement windows, opening outward, are included in the lower-floor specifications for the house. In groups of three, they open from the living-room and dining-room, with a view to the central garden in front of the house and the landscaping projected for the side spaces.

Double hung windows in the upstairs rooms, raising from the lower half or lowering from above, will be protected by slab shutters, which look like rough-hewn boards fastened together with cleats. Modern methods have made it possible to have rough finish on exceedingly high grade wood, and the shutters will be not only decorative but also practical in the occasional stormy weather.

The English Effect.

Half-timber effect is pre-eminently English, and the half-timber work in Stratford manor is in the purest British style. Roughened edges are used in simulation of the earlier materials, used when it was impossible to secure the more refined products. In the little dormer to the left of the gabled entrance, the timber and brick work is particularly effective.

The steep roof, an English feature, is explained by the difference in climatic conditions on the island and in this country. The original explanaton takes into consideraton the fact that melting snows are apt to harm the roofing material; and that where heavy snow falls occur, the roof should be spared the weight. There are, however, disadvantages in the use of the steep roof, and not the smallest of these disadvantages is the fact that light is cut-off from the upstairs rooms. This drawback, is, however, offset by the use of numerous dormers, effectively placed from the standpoint of exterior beauty and interior comfort.

British architecture and British customs have also had their effect on Lincoln's home beautiful in the inclusion of chimney tops in the plans. Ornamentation was probably the motive for their original inclusion, for with the low houses of the British island, a distinguishing mark is necessary. Smoke from chimneys in low countries and where fogs are dense, of course, should be raised as much as possible.

Louver boards set in the attic gables are another of the distinctively English touches on the manor. These are so arranged as to shed water, but are also able to admit air and to furnish cross-currents for proper ventilation.

In the English architecture, as we have it exemplified in the drawing of projected Stratford Manor, beauty and comfort may be consistently combined. With an exterior which it represents, the same idea which reflects the spirit of the time must also be carried out in the major appointments of the interior of the house.

UNVEIL PORTRAITS FORMER JUDGES

The first court record giving a complete history of the trial of a case, which affected the whole territory, was that of the Territory vs. Simpson Hargus, called for trial in September, 1856, for killing Benjamin Lacey the previous April and it is Case one in Docket A of the county.

Hargus killed Lack in a line fence dispute near Nebraska City, and was indicted for manslaughter. He was defended by Judge Allen Bradford, a Nebraska City lawyer, who was also a member of the territorial legislature. Between April and September, Bradford had the criminal code of the territory repealed and when the case was called for trial he raised the question.

The judge, before whom the case was tried held that Hargus could be tried under the common law, even though the criminal code had been repealed. He was found guilty on appeal to the Supreme court, Chief Justice Ferguson and Judge Wakeley held there was no criminal law in force in the territory at the time the case was tried and reversed the judgment.

The first state constitution of 1866 provided for a chief justice and two associate justices and three judicial districts. The judges were to preside in the three districts and were elected rather than appointed. Judge Oliver P. Mason of Nebraska City was assigned to the second district and he presided until 1873 when he was succeeded by Daniel Gantt of Nebraska City. He was the sole judge until the adoption of the new constitution in 1875.

Divided in Six Districts.

That constitution separated the judges of the supreme and district courts. The state was divided into six judicial districts. Nemaha, Otoe, Cass and Lancaster constituted the second district and it remained so until 1883, when Nemaha county was taken out and put in the first district, with Judge Pound presiding in the second district.

In 1885 provision was made for another judge and the election was to take place in November 1887. However, a judge was appointed or elected in 1885, as records show J. L. Mitchell of Nebraska City was holding court in 1886. Judges Pound and Mitchell served until February 1886, when Judge Mitchell died and M. L. Hayward of Nebraska City was appointed in March to serve until the next election.

Samuel Chapman of Cass county, was elected in 1866 to fill the vacancy and Judges Chapman and Pound served for a year when Judge Pound was succeeded by Allen W. Field of Lincoln. He and Judge Chapman served until 1891, when Lancaster was made a separate district and the second district was composed of Cass and Otoe, with Judge Chapman presiding. Those counties made up the district until 1911, when Sarpy was added.

Judge Chapman served until 1895, when Basil S. Ramsey of Cass was elected an dhe served until 1899, from which time until 1908, Judge Jessen served. He was followed by Judge Harvey D. Travis of Cass, who died in office October 4, 1913. The vacancy was filled by appointment by James T. Begley, the present incumbent of the district, who has since been unanimously elected. Judge Begley's home is in Plattsmouth.

The first term of the district court held in the second judicial district was in a log cabin in Nebraska City, a private dwelling and lodging house of Hiram P. Downs. The second place in Otoe county was on the second floor of a building occupied by the Platte Valley bank. From there the court was taken to Dewie hall, then to McLennon's hall, and in 1865 to the present court house.

Justice was swift in the early days o fthis district.

In August, 1866, a boy of ten or twelve years was found dead from gunshot wounds and the cattle which he had been herding gone. The next day, a man by the name of Dirks was overtaken at the present Thurman, Ia., by a posse. He had sold cattle in Nebraska City which belonged to the Hamiltons.

On his return, a lynching was prevented with difficulty and only on promise of a speedy trial. Trial was in the city park. Attorneys were appointed to defend Dirks, and to prosecute him, after a mass meeting. The jury was selected from the bystanders. Two hours after his return from Iowa, the jury returned a verdict of guilty. His two accomplices tried with him were held to await trial in the district court.

While the trial was in progress, a scaffold was being built near the city park. A demand was made for immediate execution after the jury's findings, but on request of the attorneys execution of the sentence was delayed until 6 o'clock that evening. At that time on the same day of his arrest, Dirks was hanged.

That was the first execution in Otoe county and possibly the first in the territory, and was a strange mixture of law and mob spirit. Men in Nebraska City say that Dirks admitted the theft of the cattle but denied that he had had anything to do with the boy's death.

G. W. Rosenlof of the Teachers College was an institute speaker at Ainsworth Thursday and Friday.

Dr. D. B. Park, '16 of Rock Springs, Wyo., visited the University last week. He recently returned from Austria where he has been studying medicine.

Extension students, exclusive of night students, now total 1,286, according to an announcement of the extension division. This enrollment is an increase over last year.

No rain insurance is being carried by the athletic department no the football games this fall. This insurance was carried last year, but proved too expensive, amounting to 10 to 20 per cent of the gate receipts depending on the rainfall that was insured against and the hours for which it was carried. Rain last year cut down the receipts from the Nebraska-Missouri game, but it did not come at the hours covered by the policy, so nothing was recovered.

Stratford Manor to be the Distinctive English Type of Architecture

Excavation Under Way On Site of Lincoln's "Home Beautiful."

Mayor Qualifies as "Dirt Farmer" By Turning Straight Furrow.

Lines of automobiles are parked on either side of Rathbone road and on Stratford avenue. A group of people stand on the uncompleted sidewalk around a part of the flat-ironshaped lot; a photographer at one side adjusts his tripod with difficulty and sets up the camera preparatory to the next step in the proceedings.

A large flag marks the corners of the lot, and others are used to show the exact corners of the house that will in the near future grace the neighborhood. Now and then a man wanders on to the lot, walking undecidedly from one emblem to another.

Excitement Draws the Curious.

Another car draws up in a vacant parking space, and a group of its passengers hurry to the sidewalk, lest they miss some of the excitement. From the deserted houses along the other side of the street come women with youngsters who want to know what is happening.

For this is the ground-breaking ceremony of Stratford Manor, Lincoln's home beautiful.

The first tangible step in the building of the house that has set all Lincoln agog was taken Friday morning at 11 o'clock. At the site, operations are now progressing rapidly, for the building schedule calls for fast work in excavation.

Automobiles drove up to the site about a half-hour before the ceremony was ccheduled to begin. One by one the automobiles came up, parked and passengers alighted. Flags were fluttering in the breeze of the high ground.

Mayor Zehrung, who was to guide the plow that turned the first soil at the ceremony, gave the first of several informal addresses. He told of Lincoln's pre-eminence as a city of homes, and remarked that in showing the city to a stranger, we show off our homes, our churches, and our schools. He told of every man's desire to marry and found a home, and of the memories called forth by the use of the word "home."

John Howard Payne's song, 'Home Sweet Home" came in for its share of attention at the ceremony, for Mayor Zehrung mentioned its prominence in everyone's mind whenever the word whose connotation it immortalizes is used.

Mrs. Marty Gives Address.

Mrs. E. L. Marty, president of the Lincoln Woman's club, also mentioned the old song in her brief talk following Mayor Zehrung's speech. "It is every man's desire to found a home," she agreed with the mayor, "but every woman wants to create and maintain the spirit that will make it a home in the true sense of the word."

"We all consider our homes as of paramount importance," she continued. "To the most of the women the church is second; and the third in importance is her club work, which seems to absorb so much of her time."

R. A. Bickford, introduced as the "real orator of the day," talked very briefly, speaking of the Lincoln home beautiful as an expression of the 'own your home" idea which has so taken the interest of Lincoln people. That Lincoln homebuilders may have the benefit of watching the erection of a model home, built not only to show how lovely a home may be, but to show how practicable a beautiful house may be, and still be within the average man's means, the manor is being built through the co-operation of Lincoln firms.

Mayor In Plowman's Role.

As a mayor Frank Zehrung has to be a good plowman, and he demonstrated his ability to the complete satisfaction of the crowd at the Friday morning ceremony. A hand plow, pulled by two large draft horses, was on the ground, and at the close of the few brief talks, the mayor walked across the field to the flag at which the plow was to turn up the first furrow of earth.

"He'll never make it," R. A. Bickford confided to the man next to him. "The old plow hasn't been used for some time, and it's stiff and dull."

"Good thing you didn't tell him that before," his champion whispered back.

They held their breaths as the mayor took his station behind the plow.

Turns Over Neat Furrow.

The driver clucked to his horses. The plow went deep and turned up a furrow of rich black loam.

There was a slight pause while the photographer snapped the mayor, the plow, the horses, and the furrow behind; then the plow was started again. The mayor turned up another row, as straight as an engineer could hignt running from one of the corner flags toward another.

Enthusiastic cheering and hand-clapping from the Lincoln people who had gathered to watch the mayor's technique showed the crowd's approval of the mayor's impersonation of the Nebraska 'dirt farmer."

A broad smile covered the mayor's features, as he removed his hat, and made a mock bow, one hand still holding the plow-handle.

Ground Breaking Friday Marked the Start of Building Operations

HOME BEAUTIFUL SETTING PLANNED

Circular Garden From House to Walk Is Landscaping Feature.

Contour Map Is Used In Laying Out Stratford Manor's Site.

A "contour map" they call it—this accessary for building. Before building operations can be begun, it is necessary to have a contour map, they say, for without a definite knowledge of the slope of the lot, it is impossible to proceed with the excavation

That "fools rush is where wise men fear to tread" is true in building as well as in other lines, and before the first shovelful of ground could be removed on the site of Stratford Manor, Lincoln's home beautiful, it was necessary to discover "how the ground lay," and also to secure legal permission to build.

Labeled Permit No. 13091.

Permit No 13091 was issued for the house to be built on Lot 7 Block 5, second Sheridan Park, last Thursday afternoon. It was on that lot that the ground was broken Friday morning for Stratford Manor.

With the "contour map" in hand, it was necessary to decide where the house should be placed on the lot. Not the facing—that is ordinarily determined by the direction the lot faces. Stratford Manor has really three sides facing the street, for it is placed on a flatiron-shaped lot so that a garden in front of the house, with side entrances, is particularly effective.

When the blueprint, which shows the different levels of ground was delivered, a rise of several feet was seen to exist in a comparatively short distance. With this in mind, the plan was taken to the landscape gardener, and the lot lay-out made as effective as possible, artistically and practically.

To Have Circular Garden.

A circular garden starting at the sidewalk and extending practically to the front door of the English manor is the keynote of the landscaping plan. A six-foot rise comes in the twenty-foot distance between the walk and the house on the east side, while on the west the distance is much less The circular plot will be leveled, with just enough of a slope to make drainage possible, and around the rim will be planted perennials and shrubs. Varieties of iris in colorful tints will probably be used against a dark green background of flowering crabs or pears, which in their season will produce a delicate tinge of springtime, and which in the later parts of the year will form an excellent background for the pastel shades of the flowers

Setting Gives Old Fashioned Air.

Tall trees at either side just back of the circular garden will give the old-fashioned air to the house; the air of livability which is so necessary in the house that is to spell comfort to the family fortunate enough to live in it.

Walks have already been laid on one side of the lot and across the point to the other side, where the forms have been placed in readiness for the actual work of laying the walks At the eastern side, stepping-stones will absorb the rise in contour, and at the west, one step goes down to the floor level of the house

Planted Garden On Capitol Square

dian of the capitol building, erected in 1868. They began housekeeping in the great stone structure and the young bride had a fine garden of cabbages and tomatoes in the backyard of the capitol.

After Hastings was incorporated as a town, rapid strides were made in its development in all of which Mr. Alexander had a leading part. Since his death in 1908, he has often been referred to as the "father of Hastings," because of his early arrival here and his hearty participation in all activities for civic betterment.

He was one of the prime movers toward the establishment of Hastings college and his was the first big gift toward its founding. For many years he served as treasurer and a member of the college board of trustees. The girls' dormitory on the campus was named for him.

He was largely instrumental in the forming of the Presbyterian church here and it was through his activity that the first building for the church was erected. Mrs Alexander is the only one of the charter members living.

One of Mrs. Alexander's experiences showing the difficulties of housekeeping in her homestead shack—the second frame house built in Hastings—may well serve as an example of other pioneer women in this section.

Carried Water a Mile.

For months they did without a well, Mr. Alexander carrying two bucketfuls water twice day from their nearest neighbor's home about a mile away.

"The first big washing I did was after we had dug our own well nearly seven months after our arrival," Mrs Alexander recalls. "I had two baby girls by this time but I had been forced to just dabble out a few pieces at a time because of the lack of a sufficient supply of water. It seemed a wonderful luxury to draw quantities of it from our own 110-foot well.

"I felt like washing everything on the place and it was well toward the close of the day's work before I remembered that I did not have a clothes line and no grass, even, in the yard that would be sufficient to lay so many wet garments on.

"On our homestead, there was not a single post, or tree or shed on which I could have fastened a clothesline if I had found one. I finally carried the bundle of wet clothes down into the draw east of the house and spread them out for what would now be blocks where ever I could find a clump of grass large enough to do service."

Mrs. Alexander gives an excellent description of the grasshopper plague telling it from a little different angle from most of the stories of pioneers.

Grasshopper Plague.

"One of our new forms of recreation was for the children and I to go down to the store and postoffice to see Mr. Alexander after I had finished my work in the afternoon," she says.

"This time we were all ready to go when I noticed a great cloud coming up in the west and I told my girls that I was afraid we ought not to start out as there was such a roar accompanying the impending storm.

"They seemed so disappointed that we decided to hurry on. By the time we reached the postoffice, the grasshoppers were literally raining down. My babies were almost frightened to death. The creatures landed all over us. Many of them crawled under our garments. When we got inside the store I was forced to take every article of clothing from the children in order to remove the dozens of grasshoppers that had hidden in the folds of their clothes.

"When we reached home a few hours later, our home looked like it had been freshly built of new lumber. The grasshoppers had eaten off the soft outside covering of the wood. Our apple orchard which was just getting a good start looked like a field stuck full of white sticks and our corn was already beginning to bend under the weight of the eating multitude."

Mrs. Alexander still lives on almost the exact site of her original home in Hastings and back of the big house which which her husband erected in the early 90's, there are still several of the great cottonwoods which she started from twigs cut from the cottonwood logs brought from the Blue river by Mr. Alexander two years after they took their homestead.

These were the first trees planted in Adams county.

This is my first visit to Nebraska and to Hastings college and I am amazed at the opportunity of the church here." Dr Hill addressed the students of the college in the morning chapel services and in the evening said, "I have never seen a more alert, enthusiastic, energetic body of students than those I addressed this morning at the college, and I have visited practically all the colleges of the country." Ground Breaking Friday Marked the Start of Building Operations

HOME BEAUTIFUL SETTING PLANNED

Circular Garden From House to Walk Is Landscaping Feature.

Contour Map Is Used In Laying Out Stratford Manor's Site.

A "contour map" they call it—this accessary for building. Before building operations can be begun, it is necessary to have a contour map, they say, for without a definite knowledge of the slope of the lot, it is impossible to proceed with the excavation.

That "fools rush is where wise men fear to tread" is true in building as well as in other lines, and before the first shovelful of ground could be removed on the site of Stratford Manor, Lincoln's home beautiful, it was necessary to discover "how the ground lay," and also to secure legal permission to build.

Labeled Permit No. 13091.

Permit No. 13091 was issued for the house to be built on Lot 7 Block 5, second Sheridan Park, last Thursday afternoon. It was on that lot that the ground was broken Friday morning for Stratford Manor.

With the "contour map" in hand, it was necessary to decide where the house should be placed on the lot. Not the facing—that is ordinarily determined by the direction the lot faces. Stratford Manor has really three sides facing the street, for it is placed on a flatiron-shaped lot so that a garden in front of the house, with side entrances, is particularly effective.

When the blueprint, which shows the different levels of ground was delivered, a rise of several feet was seen to exist in a comparatively short distance. With this in mind, the plan was taken to the landscrape gardener, and the lot lay-out made as effective as possible, artistically and practically.

To Have Circular Garden.

A circular garden starting at the sidewalk and extending practically to the front door of the English manor is the keynote of the landscaping plan. A six-foot rise comes in the twenty-foot distance between the walk and the house on the east side, while on the west the distance is much less. The circular plot will be leveled, with just enough of a slope to make drainage possible, and around the rim will be planted perennials and shrubs. Varieties of iris in colorful tints will probably be used against a dark green background of flowering crabs or pears, which in their season will produce a delicate tinge of springtime, and which in the later parts of the year will form an excellent background for the pastel shades of the flowers.

Setting Gives Old Fashioned Air.

Tall trees at either side just back of the circular garden will give the old-fashioned air to the house; the air of livability which is so necessary in the house that is to spell comfort to the family fortunate enough to live in it.

Walks have already been laid on one side of the lot and across the point to the other side, where the forms have been placed in readiness for the actual work of laying the walks. At the eastern side, stepping-stones will absorb the rise in contour, and at the west, one step goes down to the floor level of the house.

dian of the capitol building, erected in 1868. They began housekeeping in the great stone structure and the young bride had a fine garden of cabbages and tomatoes in the backyard of the capitol.

After Hastings was incorporated as a town, rapid strides were made in its development in all of which Mr. Alexander had a leading part. Since his death in 1908, he has often been referred to as the "father of Hastings," because of his early arrival here and his hearty participation in all activities for civic betterment.

He was one of the prime movers toward the establishment of Hastings college and his was the first big gift toward its founding. For many years he served as treasurer and a member of the college board of trustees. The girls' dormitory on the campus was named for him.

He was largely instrumental in the forming of the Presbyterian church here and it was through his activity that the first building for the church was erected. Mrs. Alexander is the only one of the charter members living.

One of Mrs. Alexander's experiences showing the difficulties of housekeeping in her homestead shack—the second frame house built in Hastings—may well serve as an example of other pioneer women in this section.

Carried Water a Mile.

For months they did without a well, Mr. Alexander carrying two bucketfuls water twice day from their nearest neighbor's home about a mile away.

"The first big washing I did was after we had dug our own well nearly seven months after our arrival," Mrs. Alexander recalls. "I had two baby girls by this time but I had been forced to just dabble out a few pieces at a time because of the lack of a sufficient supply of water. It seemed a wonderful luxury to draw quantities of it from our own 110-foot well.

"I felt like washing everything on the place and it was well toward the close of the day's work before I remembered that I did not have a clothes line and no grass, even, in the yard that would be sufficient to lay so many wet garments on.

"On our homestead, there was not a single post, or tree or shed on which I could have fastened a clothesline if I had found one. I finally carried the bundle of wet clothes down into the draw east of the house and spread them out for what would now be blocks where ever I could find a clump of grass large enough to do service."

Mrs. Alexander gives an excellent description of the grasshopper plague telling it from a little different angle from most of the stories of pioneers.

Grasshopper Plague.

"One of our new forms of recreation was for the children and I to go down to the store and postoffice to see Mr. Alexander after I had finished my work in the afternoon," she says.

Stratford Manor will be of Interest to All Prospective Home Builders

BEST MATERIALS IN 'IDEAL HOME'

Stratford Manor To Have Brick Foundation—Basement Important.

"A Home Enduring" For Future Generation Is Plan of Builders.

The building of Stratford Manor Lincoln's home beautiful, is intended to exemplify the best practices in the selection of materials and the most modern methods of good construction. Its erection is intended as a lesson to those interested in home building, teaching all the processes as they are complete.

The thousands of people who will inspect this home during its period of construction will notice first of all its foundation. Built of enduring, hard-burned, shale brick, neither frost nor fire nor time can affect it. Unsightly cracks sticking doors, and rattling windows follow improperly constructed foundations.

Good Basement Assured

The foundation will not only carry the weight of the house securely, but its quality will insure a dry basement, where it will be pleasant to launder and attend the furnace. It will also furnish a pleasant workshop and an efficient place for storage and for a fruit-cellar.

Carefully laid brick makes an attractive basement wall. The tight joints prevent the entrance of mice and rats, and absorption of water.

Too many house-builders in their selection of homes have forgotten that the basement represents from a half to a fourth of the total available space in a house and with the idea of saving a few dollars they have compromised with quality in their foundations only to discover later that they have had to pay dearly for their economy, paying out in repairs and additional coal bills. The housewife has paid dearly too, for she has been compelled to attend to the family laundry in an unsightly, damp and depressing basement.

No Brick Shortage in City

Lincoln is fortunate in having a local supply of quality brick available at a low cost. Any home can have such a foundation without adding any great amount to the total expense.

Stratford Manor built on a firm foundation, will not only be a home beautiful, but will also be a home enduring, a heritage for the owner's children.

Many Nebraska Women, Who Will Be Out of State On November 4, Vote By Mail

They are going to put a new pocket in overnight bags—and call it the ballot box.

Every little overnight bag has a new burden this year—and no place to take care of the newcomer.

Hidden amongst the lip sticks and complexion creams and eyebrow pencils dashing about the country there's a ballot, a fine long ballot liberally besprinkled with names. It's an election ballot and it is guarded amost as carefully as the rouge and the nail white.

Every vote has a meaning all its own this year and no feminine voter is going to be so enraptured with nature or so overcome with grandure that she can't take time to mark a few X's here, there and everywhere.

Absentee voting is rather a new thing for the women.

Last presidential election it was all they could do to vote when at home. That was duty nobly done. Voting by mail was a new and almost untried possibility.

They hadn't learned the possibilities of a ballot.

The women didn't know that porters might be kept on one foot, taxis ticking wildly trains standing with steam up—while they hunted for the ballot that had been forgotten.

They didn't know what lovely scrambles might ensue while wild-eyed maids and pessimistic bell boys peered in dark crevasses for the ballot that would help decide the fate of the nation.

They didn't know what a perfect center of attention they might be—while they desperately flung negligees and pink nothing and beaded gowns about in search of that strip of paper in the southwest corner of the bottom section of a three tier trunk.

But this year all is changed.

Send For Ballots.

The ladies if they haven't taken a ballot with them are having one sent. If there's anything that can be done in the way of voting that they don't have a hand in from now on—it hasn't been found yet.

Perhaps they've gone away to earn the daily bread by teaching the young. Perhaps they have some other occupation which takes them far from the home fireside.

Some of them are spending the winters in climes less rigorous than Nebraska. Some are just taking a rest cure between seasons—between the rush of summer and the dash of winter. Some of them have gone east and some west to furnish the cold weather wardrobe with a few fripperies. Some are just visiting—sons daughters friends.

But they'll be gone on November 4—and all of them have or will have a ballot of their very own whether they be on India's coral strands or Minnesota's icy grounds.

The ladies' votes are coming from at least seventeen of the forty-eight states for the election. Perhaps by that time the number will be increased but that many will be represented in the Nebraska election.

Mrs M H Everett has gone east at present but she will cast her ballot from the Everett winter home at Bradentown Fla. Mrs Cora B Coffman is voting from a distant point, Goose Creek Tex. and Miss Teresa Morrow daughter of Mr and Mrs J C Morrow in the Lei Lau Farl, is sending in a ballot from Casper, Wyo. where she teaches.

Miss Madeleine Haecker, daughter of Mr and Mrs A L Haecker 503 South Twenty-sixth street is voting the democratic ticket from Globe, Ariz where she is the guest of her brother, Frederick W Haecker and Mrs Haecker. Mrs Vera E Morrison, formerly of College View is voting in Nebraska from Washington D C where her son teaches in the Tacoma Park college.

Another vote from the national capital is Mrs J L Walters, who is voting on the republican ticket, and Rachel Thompson has had a ballot mailed her at the same place.

Teachers Send In Ballots

Several of the teachers are sending ballots to Lincoln from their temporary homes. Miss Etta Reed, daughter of Mrs J R Reed, 1245 South Twenty-seventh street is in the Bozeman Mont, high school and she is voting from there. Miss Cecil Baldwin 2633 Garfield street is sending a ballot from Bismark N D where she is teaching as is Miss Magdalen F Lau from North Bend Neb.

Miss Martha Walton will vote from New York City where she is spending the winter and Miss Myrtle Beverage from Kearney, where she is in the office of the Boys Industrial school. Mrs Lewis H Triester will be in Excelsior Springs, Mo, on election day and she is casting her ballot from there. Miss Annette M Page is voting in Nebraska from Princeton, Ill, where she was called by illness in her family.

Miss Genevieve McCandless is sending a ballot in Muscatine, Ia where she is teaching. Miss Alice Hunter, former university professor, is at Ward Belmont school in Nashville Tenn, this year and is sending a ballot from that city.

Among the California voters are Mrs Sadie G Elbour Mrs Jennie M Minor, and Mrs Lydia M Broekema who are spending some time in the west. Mrs Carrie A Dodd is voting from Hastings, Mrs Elsie Sutter from Corpus Christi, Tex, Mrs Frances Helen Van Houten from Topeka, Kans, Mrs Rebecca Eveland and Miss Margaret Eveland from Marysville, Kans. Mrs Mary Jane Evans will send a vote from Denver Col.

Mrs W H Ferguson is in Chicago at present and will send her November 4 choice from the metropolis. Mrs Cable Jackson is voting from Detroit, Mich where she and Mr Jackson are making their home this winter. Miss Marion Anderson the daughter of Mr and Mrs Charles B Anderson 1950 C street, is attending Simmons college in Boston, and her vote will come from there.

PARLIAMENTARY LAW SIMPLIFIED IS INTERESTING

Mrs. Slaker's Chart Makes Study of Procedure An Absorbing One.

"Madam Chairman, I move that Mrs Slaker's parliamentary chart be consulted."

Thus we may find business meetings transformed into study clubs in the near future for the study of parliamentary law is becoming an absorbing one, and one which is more and more studied.

Subsidiary motions, auxiliary motions, points of order—all these are becoming common chatter. It is the unusual person, however, who has mastered the rudimentary part of the parliamentary procedure, says Mrs John Slaker of Hastings, who has, because of general unfamiliarity with such matters, composed a chart to bring out the salient features of this law.

"Justice and courtesy one thing at a time, the rule of the majority, and the right of the minority," Mrs Slaker says, "are the four principles of parliamentary law. If you know these, you will be able to hold your own in any metting, and to transact business with the least possible wear and tear."

Adopted in schools in Los Angeles and in Denver, Mrs Slaker's chart presenting the fundamentals of parliamentary law is indeed an interesting one. The first division presents the making of the motion, with the obtaining of the floor. The second division takes up seconding for which one does not need to obtain the floor.

A cleverly-arranged flap arranged after the fashion of a window-curtain to be raised at will, forms the third section, and the fourth gives the passage of the motion after the putting of the question.

"What is under the flap?" you ask. There are the auxiliary or subsidiary motions — motion to amend, motion to refer to committee, motion to withdraw the motion and a host of others. These are not necessary to the passage of a motion, and are in fact very seldom used, Mrs Slaker says. The author of the chart tells of her own experiences in the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs of which she is a former president and in the biennial convention of the national federation, where she served on the board of directors. At both these meetings she noticed that not once was anything but the original motion used.

High school students both boys and girls, and students in the junior high schools, as well, are becoming more and more interested in the simplified parliamentary procedure, and are particularly interested in being able to hold orderly meetings with "honest-to-goodness" parliamentary procedure.

Following her work in lecturing to women's clubs throughout the state, particularly in connection with her work as state president, the parliamentary chart comes as a natural outgrowth. Mrs Slaker tells of her first experience with parliamentary law, when she discovered that some people in the meeting knew even less than she. Through numerous club activities she had mixed ideas on parliamentary law, until she finally studied it out in the present simplified form in her own chart which came from the press in June.

Mrs Slaker is the author of a series of articles on parliamentary law which appeared in state papers, including The Lincoln Star, and has been radiocasting for some time on this subject."

Laughingly, Mrs Slaker tells of the most appreciated compliment she has received. Educators and officers of womens clubs had been loud in their praises but the palm of Mrs Slaker's mind goes to the high school sophomore who, after listening to her talk on parliamentary law for almost an hour said to his parents that 'She made it so plain you couldn't help understanding it. I tell you she's got the goods.'

BEST MATERIALS IN 'IDEAL HOME'

"A Home Enduring" For Future Generation Is Plan of Builders.

The building of Stratford Manor, Lincoln's home beautiful, is intended to exemplify the best practices in the selection of materials and the most modern methods of good construction. Its erection is intended as a lesson to those interested in home building, teaching all the processes as they are complete.

The thousands of people who will inspect this home during its period of construction will notice first of all its foundation. Built of enduring, hard-burned, shale brick, neither frost nor fire nor time can affect it. Unsightly cracks, sticking doors, and rattling windows follow improperly constructed foundations.

Good Basement Assured.

The foundation will not only carry the weight of the house securely, but its quality will insure a dry basement, where it will be pleasant to launder and attend the furnace. It will also furnish a pleasant workshop and an efficient place for storage and for a fruit-cellar.

Carefully laid brick makes an attractive basement wall. The tight joints prevent the entrance of mice and rats, and absorption of water.

Too many house-builders in their selection of homes have forgotten that the basement represents from a half to a fourth of the total available space in a house, and with the idea of saving a few dollars, they have compromised with quality in their foundations, only to discover later that they have had to pay dearly for their economy, paying out in repairs and additional coal bills. The housewife has paid dearly too, for she has been compelled to attend to the family laundry in an unsightly, damp, and depressing basement.

No Brick Shortage in City.

Lincoln is fortunate in having a local supply of quality brick available at a low cost. Any home can have such a foundation without adding any great amount to the total expense.

Stratford Manor, built on a firm foundation, will not only be a home beautiful, but will also be a home enduring, a heritage for the owner's children.

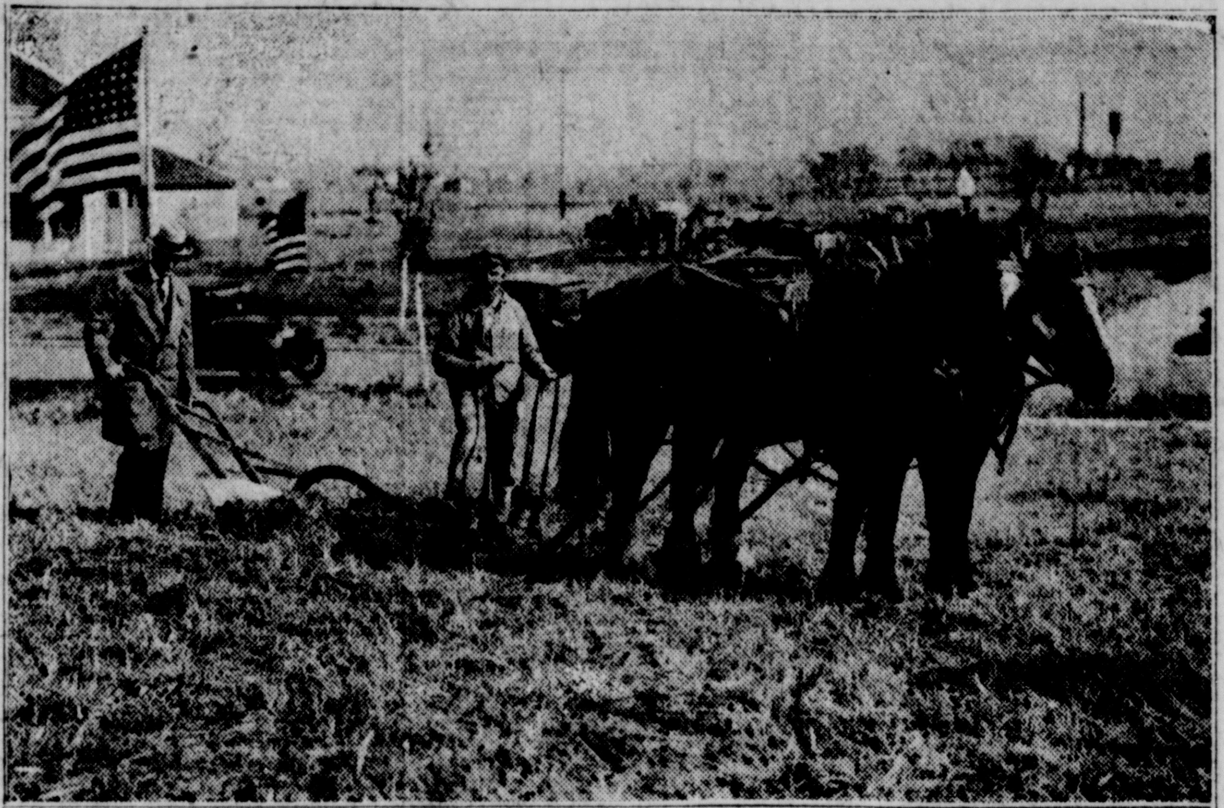
Mayor Breaks Ground For Home Beautiful



—Macdonald Photograph.

Mayor Frank Zehrung was snapped just as he finished plowing the first furrow on the site of Stratford Manor, Lincoln's home beautiful, to be erected at Stratford avenue and Rathbone Road.

The ground-breaking ceremonies were held Friday morning at 11 o'clock, and about a hundred Lincoln people watched the mayor demonstrate his ability as a "dirt farmer," as he guided the plow that turned up a twenty-two foot furrow.

Many Nebraska Women, Who Will Be Out of State On November 4, Vote By Mail

They are going to put a new pocket in overnight bags—and call it the ballot box.

Every little overnight bag has a new burden this year—and no place to take care of the newcomer.

Hidden amongst the lip sticks and complexion creams and eyebrow pencils dashing about the country, there's a ballot, a fine long ballot liberally besprinkled with names. It's an election ballot and it is guarded amost as carefully as the rouge and the nail white.

Every vote has a meaning all its own this year and no feminine voter is going to be so enraptured with nature or so overcome with grandure that she can't take time to mark a few X's here, there and everywhere.

Absentee voting is rather a new thing for the women.

Last presidential election it was all they could do to vote when at home. That was duty nobly done. Voting by mail was a new and almost untried possibility.

They hadn't learned the possibilities of a ballot.

The women didn't know that porters might be kept on one foot, taxis ticking wildly, trains standing with steam up—while they hunted for the ballot that had been forgotten.

They didn't know what lovely scrambles might ensue while wild-eyed maids and pessimistic bell boys peered in dark crevasses for the ballot that would help decide the fate of the nation.

They didn't know what a perfect center of attention they might be—while they desperately flung negligees and pink nothing and beaded gowns about in search of that strip of paper in the southwest corner of the bottom section of a three tier trunk.

But this year all is changed.

Send For Ballots.

The ladies, if they haven't taken a ballot with them, are having one sent. If there's anything that can be done in the way of voting that they don't have a hand in from now on—it hasn't been found yet.

A GALLANT WARRIOR.

In the face of odds which would benumb the stoutest heart John W Davis has never faltered

Since his nomination after a bitter convention fight he has played a [illegible] smiling undismayed by the seemingly insurmountable barriers which have beset his path his faith in the ultimate triumph of his cause unshaken

It takes a great soul to make the battle John W Davis has made History reveals but few of them In this campaign now drawing to a close without a precedent or parallel in American history the democratic standard bearer alone has made a fight worthy of commissioning him to speak for the greatest democracy in the world

What of La Follette?

For thirty years his greying locks have been in the thick of battle For over a quarter of a century his eloquent voice pleaded for the things for which he stood Then in the sunset of his career with the greatest adventure given to an American citizen stretching before him La Follette turned his head from the west which was waiting for him to carry his fight in a half dozen states which were wavering in the balance to invade new fields where it was freely confessed he has not a chance

Why?

Because La Follette wants Calvin Coolidge a reactionary to win if he can't He wants Coolidge to win because he wants this country to endure four more years of what it has gone through in the last three and a half in order that it will be ripe for the great revolt which is to sweep into power La Follette's new party in 1928 This coloring of supreme selfishness which has characterized the La Follette campaign robbed his drive in the last few days of all of the appeal which it might have had Today the La Follette strategy stands revealed in all of its hideousness Despairing of victory for himself La Follette has set about to divide the opposition to Coolidge in these wavering eastern states in order to insure the triumph of Coolidge Then this embittered old man will sit back and calmly survey the trouble he has brewed While reaction rides in the saddle he will survey the lines for the new party which he hopes to build in 1928 a situation made possible because liberal views cannot find expression under Coolidge

What is the proof of this assertion?

It has been pointed out that La Follette's only hope rested in the west In that section a dozen states were hanging in the balance But La Follette is not seeking electoral votes He recognizes but is not honest enough to admit that no possible combination can give him enough votes in the electoral college to win He seeks only to make a strong showing in the west and to divide the east sufficiently to insure the triumph of a reactionary

The latest testimony on this point is furnished by the correspondent of the Chicago Daily News who has followed Senator La Follette throughout the campaign Although his paper is supporting President Coolidge he writes as follows

"This correspondent is convinced that Senator La Follette if he cannot be elected himself, would prefer to see Calvin Coolidge go to the White House by popular vote than to have John W Davis become president through a decision of the house

"La Follette regards Davis as a much abler, and therefore a more dangerous man from the independent point of view than President Coolidge Election of Davis by congress which he regards as highly probable, would be a severe blow to independent hopes because it would give the country a kind of liberal administration which La Follette dislikes and would inject new life in the democratic party, which La Follette hopes will be killed save as a regional party after this election

'That one of the by products of the eastern tour may be the making more certain the election of Coolidge is not distasteful to La Follette '

That is the lofty cause to which La Follette in the closing days of his fight has dedicated his soul For selfishness and callous disregard of the best interests of his country he has never been equalled in American political history As between a liberal of outstanding ability and a reactionary lacking all of the essential qualities of leadership even among those of the same political thought he picks the reactionary and pursues the course to make certain his election

No word or action of Calvin Coolidge in this campaign could have quickened the pulses of the hundreds of thousands of republicans following blindly where party tradition and party loyalty leads

He has been the dumb idol in the temple

Behind the fortress of silence he has resisted every endeavor and every attempt to bare his thoughts and reveal his personality to the American people

At this time when the American people are being asked to entrust their fortunes to him no man can honestly say that he knows the real Coolidge In only one direction have they seen him reveal a positiveness of opinion Calvin Coolidge is deeply devoted to the traditional conservatism of the New England doctrine of republicanism He is a firm apostle of the theory of high protection which is nothing more than a governmental favor or privilege for a special group

Few men have had the opportunity which was presented Calvin Coolidge to impress his personality upon the American people When Washington was rocking with the revelations which came with the uncovering of the Veterans bureau scandal Teapot Dome and the mal administration of the department of justice under Daugherty the president could have with one stroke removed all opposition to his election Vigorous decisive action on his part would have eliminated further discussion of those issues But he temporized and apologized and then hit back at congress which was responsible for the investigations Before the Associated Press he declared but the wonder is not that this corruption is so much and so many corruptionists rather that it is so little and so few

The same timidity the same unwillingness to meet issues frankly and courageously has characterized the relative unimportant part that he has played in his campaign He has proceeded with the idea of winning the office by saying as little as he could What follows in the next four years is of little concern now If congress continues in its refusal to follow him the resultant confusion is of no importance The practical side of Calvin Coolidge prescribes a course to win office at any sacrifice

What a marked contrast in the fight that John W Davis has been making?

Though the burden of a single handed fight without adequate funds or organization is heavy this chosen son of democracy has gone about his task with a dignity a courage a faith that has inspired the discouraged workers in his own party

He has smoothed out party differences and united democracy under a single banner. He has instilled new hope and new faith in those who wearied in the fight The victim of the most ignoble conspiracy of which a great political party can be guilty—the efforts of Chairman Butler of the republican national committee to lead the voters into believing that this fight was between La Follette and Coolidge — Mr Davis has never complained, but he has forced Mr Butler and his associates to recognize him Instead of the great majority which Mr Butler was claiming for President Coolidge, the republican chairman now foresees an effort to prevent the American people from making a choice by throwing this election into congress

In the last message which Mr Davis addressed to the American people he bespoke confidence in the cause which he represents

Why?

Because he has faith in the American people

He believes in the crusade which he is leading to restore government to the people of this country and to wipe out favoritism and special privilege from Washington He believes that in the new permanent tax law which is to be written in the matter of the protective tariff in the protection of public domain—in all of those matters which affect the lives and liberties of the American people the fundamental principles of government so clearly enunciated by [illegible] Thomas Jefferson [illegible] That sublime confidence in the inherent good of this nation has given him the strength to go about his task, undisturbed

John W Davis faith in the honesty fairness and purpose of the American people is the sole sublime high light of this campaign

THE AWAKENING OF BROWNVILLE

A few years ago a visitor to Brownville Nemaha county down in the southeast corner of the state was forcefully reminded of Goldsmith's Deserted Village," for such Brownville appeared to be Large buildings which in an earlier and more prosperous day had appeared imposing and which were gazed upon with pride and exultation by the inhabitants of the then thriving young metropolis stood vacant and lonely, their empty windows gazing out upon a scene of sleepy solitude the room occupied only by bats and birds

Brownville had been pronounced dead but the pronouncement was all wrong Brownville was only in a state of coma and there has been a revival and the pioneer village has come to be one of the livest and most wideawake to be found in any section of this splendid and flourishing commonwealth

Electricity has been defined as life ' and certainly it has contributed not a little to reviving and rejuvenating Brownville Recently a transmission line from a big central power plant was built into the village and now not only are the streets brilliantly lighted each night but the homes and business houses are also made bright with the same magic current that has banished the washboard and other crude and primitive domestic utensils

The prime cause of the revival of Brownville however is not the putting in of the transmission line which is but one indication that life had already returned Brownville is one of the biggest fruit shipping points in this state which is rapidly gaining a reputation as a producer of fruits of the very highest quality and flavor With the advent of trained scientific orchardists co operative marketing or the selling according to business principles and the bringing into general use of the refrigerator car orchard lands in Nebraska have attained an income producing value undreamed of in this section a few years ago

There is no half way awakening about Brownville Its citizens are thoroughly aroused they are building good roads to their village and are marking them so that all who ride may read They have installed a first class ferry across the Missouri river, which was once the great highway of commerce which brought to the town emigrants and freight from the east and south and they are inviting all the world to come and see them As the village is situated in one of the most picturesque sections of the state the invitation is worth while accepting

A CURE FOR LEPROSY

The United States Public Health Service has submitted an interesting showing in answer to its own inquiry as to whether leprosy can be cured

Recently the department states three lepers were discharged from the colony at the National Leprosarium at Carville Louisiana after a careful examination showed they had no manifestations of the disease To all intents and purposes they have been cured although the doctors in certifying their release merely indicated the disease had been arrested and the lepers could no longer be considered a menace to public health

Of all diseases leprosy probably has aroused more fear Mention of it is found in the earliest records of civilization but in spite of all scientific advance no claim has ever been made that a cure for it has been perfected Until recently the victim of leprosy has been condemned to ostracism with death alone releasing him

It is a really remarkable work which the federal health service has been accomplishing in the colony at Carville Unquestionably isolation and treatment under the conditions provided there will wipe out leprosy in America. Certainty of a cure would represent a glorious triumph for science but far-reaching steps to wipe it out through rigid isolation and treatment will attain the same results for the coming generations

INCREASING POPULATIONS

A noted professor of John Hopkins School of Hygiene has determined that America's maximum population will be 197 000 000 people and that this figure will be reached in 2100 if the conditions of the Nineteenth century remain permanently unaltered

Prof Raymond Pearl who makes the calculations arrives at his conclusions in a coldly scientific way

All growth including that of population is fundamentally a biological matter Every living thing starts its separate individual existence as a single cell This state is however of extremely brief duration In the case of a higher multicellular organism like man the single cell divides itself into two then four eight sixteen and so on to a number which becomes unaccountably large

Pearl goes on to demonstrate that human life differs not in the slightest from other life in population increase

But the fact that America will ultimately nearly double her population does not signify any increase in human wretchedness due to over population Professor Pearl declares The increases in the past are the best proof he declares that a very considerable growth can be accommodated without tending in any way to reduce the standards of living which have been established

Of considerably greater importance is the capacity which America has shown herself to be possessed of to adapt herself to changing conditions A greater population will unquestionably call for improvements in the matter of production Man with the same effort will have to be able to produce twice as much as he does today So reasons Professor Pearl the matter of an increasing population must be met with the maximum use of invention and science to increase production

REDUCING BY OPERATION

The extreme in feminine measures to reduce has been reached

A former musical comedy star Miss Truly Shattuck underwent an operation in a Chicago hospital to reduce her weight from 19? pounds to 123 The operation according to reports from the hospital was entirely successful and a 52 inch waistline was narrowed to a shadowy 34 inch

It is hardly probable however that many of the women who are anxious to lose a few pounds will resort to the heroic measures which Miss Shattuck adopted

CEDARS.

It is no mystery to me
That cedars wear such dignity:
Their roots reach out through earth and time
To sub-soils of antiquity:
Beneath the sea's broad floor they run
To find the springs of Lebanon,
And, quickened thence, each fiber dreams
Of ancient temples, graven beams,
Of kings and priests and altars gold,
And all the storied days of old

It is no mystery to me
That cedars wear such dignity,
Or that with such a lordly pride
They dominate my garden-side.

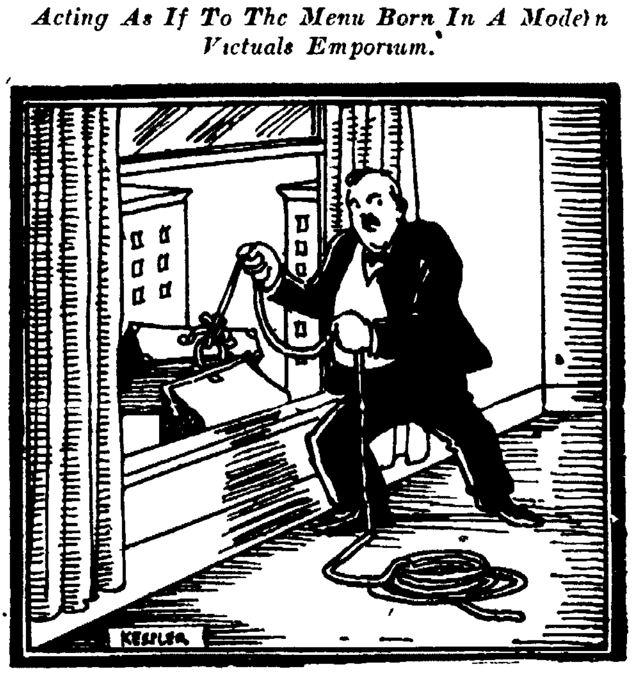
LIVING IN A HOTEL

Acting As If To The Menu Born In A Modern Victuals Emporium.



The next step is the quiet removal of the luggage '

It is my lot to live a great deal in hotels And the hotels in which I live are of the sumptuous order with marble pillars and rubber trees and with two girls with waving golden hair sitting at a desk and running a telephone exchange There is a grill room where they serve lobster newburg and hot dog all night and a palm room where they play music all day and where expensive looking women eat French pastry with anaemic men

There is a ballroom where on nearly any evening you can see a debuante's dance going on and wish you were twenty years younger and a concert room where you hear an Italian basso singing an aria CHI QUAL CHIANTI to a Ladies Fortnightly Musical Club

It is in such a place that I always abide It is generally advertised—this kind of hotel—as the most homelike hotel in the country But this is only a joke Home is not really like that

I always take care to have a room and a bath. I find by experience that a bath comes in extremely handy If anybody gives you a bouquet of roses you keep them in the bath for days perfectly fresh or you can use it to put your overcoat in when you come home at night in fact it's handy in a dozen ways And there's a tone about it! It sounds so nice to say I have a room and a bath at the Palatial or Won't you come in some time and see me in my room and bath? and things like that

Picking a Quarrel

People think hotel life dull This is a great mistake In a hotel there is always some form of amusement something doing to while away the time Thus in the mornings it is always possible to spend a pleasant moment or two leaning over the glass case where the girl with golden hair sells souvenirs and theatre tickets and letting her tell you that her epople came from Bradford but that she has a gentleman friend who she thinks comes your home town or has visited in it As long as you keep on buying souvenirs and letting her talk about her gentleman friend this girl will go on for ever! And there is an ease and charm in her conversation not found in outside society

Personally I find that for pleasurable excitement the best thing in hotel life is to pick a quarrel with the head waiter In a good hotel the head waiter expects it and is trained for it It is part of his job Picking a quarrel with him is quite simple you just have him summoned over to your table and accuse him of extortion or malappropriation or perversion or arson—it doesn't matter what All crimes are alike to him He's been accused of all of them His part in the quarrel is to keep on saying I'm very sorry sir —when you get yourself worked up into complete infuriation with him then tell him you will leave the hotel

This is supposed to crush the life right out of him Then when you have him reduced to pulp the moment has come for suddenly discovering that he was right and you were wrong you give way to a burst of generous enthusiasm, call him to you and kiss him give him five dollars and swear to live with him in the hotel for ever This little comedy can be observed going on at all times of the day between the guests and the Head Waiter

Profound Gastronomic Thought

But the principal charm of hotel life is the meals What more exquisite than to draw one's chair in to the breakfast table and have the pleasure of selecting breakfast out of a list of two hundred items

Every morning when I sit down in the hotel dining room to order breakfast I spend at least twenty minutes in deep thought over the bill of fare

At the end of it I order bacon and eggs

Very often—in fact usually—I call the waiter into consultation as to what kind of a suitable agreeable more or less novel breakfast a man might profitably take When he has done his talk I order bacon and eggs

Sometimes I get the Head Waiter in on it and ask him questions about fish I ask him how is his sole this morning and he says it is excellent I ask him can he recommend his sea bass and he says he can As a final and definite inquiry I ask him what about his grilled plaice and he says his grilled plaice is delicious I say to him in that case will he kindly bring me some bacon and eggs

In fact I believe that all other men who live in hotels are like this At every hotel I see them sitting at the breakfast table with a bill of fare in front of them thinking deeply with a waiter standing behind them babbling about grilled plaice and in the end I always hear the waiter say B[illegible] eggs yes sir

Indeed my own opinion is that in all the big hotels they don't really have anything else to eat in the place except bacon and eggs They just write down all that stuff about grilled plaice to look well and to let the guests think In reality there is only bacon and eggs

Dressing up a Name

Much the same thing happens at dinner Here there is again a card of two hundred items beginning with POTAGE S GERMAIN and ending with GALFRETTES A LA CHINOISE But somewhere coiled up in it, under some name or other is roast beef with Yorkshire pudding and I always take that Some hotels have the effrontery to call it straight out by its own name But that is hardly fair In that case the guest is lost at once, in the whole catalogue he sees nothing but the words ROAST BEEF AND YORKSHIRE PUDDING and he rushes straight at it But in the better hotels it is at least disguised at ROSBIF AU POUDIN D YORK which gives the guest a run for his money before he tracks it down At other times it is more completely hidden as TOURNEDOS A LANGLAISE or FILET DE BOEUF YORK but it is always there and under one name or the other I have eaten it every day for several years

The most intricate business in life in a hotel is found in the method of leaving This is a technical matter demanding long practice for its performance As the moment approaches the guest should lull the waiters and porters into a false sense of security by letting fall remarks about remaining for a month This puts them off their guard and they cease to watch his coming in and going out

The next step is the quiet removal of luggage This may be done by letting it down on a rope from the bedroom window but it is is always possible to get it out by bribing a single porter and making him take an oath of secrecy One's hat coat and stick may next be moved into some cloak room or placed near the front door The guest then gathers him for a single spring past the cashier's office and shouting Send my bill after me to Pittsburgh! he leaps at one bound into a taxi and disappears in a cloud of petroleum

If this is not absolutely and exactly the way of leaving at any rate I notice the performance being done on this model

Very often after doing this the guest discovers that he has left upstairs in his room a silk umbrella with a gold band around it He never sees it again But this is only divine justice

PROPER MEDICINE

(Harvard Courier)

The state bankers association has a definite program in mind for agricultural development The newspapers have it in mind to help them put it over The bankers have figured out that a difference of a dollar or so an acre in the cash value of farm crops often makes the difference between prosperity and hard times It is up to all of us to help farmers get the most possible out of their business There will be less demand for political nostrums if we all take the practical interest in farming that we should take

The Nebraska Press

(Falls City Journal)

One of the best arguments against direct legislation as expressed in the primary, the initiative and the referendum is the fact that normally voters will willingly cast a ballot for the men running for office but there is always a much smaller number of ballots cast for any proposed legislation or constitutional changes

Every voter should study the proposals submitted to the voters this year Every voter should decide what should be done And then each one should remember to cast his or her ballot one way or the other on every proposal

The American people are too prone to fight for a thing only to neglect it after it has been obtained Nearly every citizen would fight for the ballot if it was denied them yet in the last general election half of the voters in this country did not even go to the polls

Let this section at least hang up a new record this year Instead of having the smallest percentage of voters go to the polls, let it have the largest For years the percentage has been dwindling It is time to go the other way Let every citizen first of all be sure to vote then assist in getting out the vote of others Let each one insist that his or her family vote and that friends and neighbors do likewise

When the American people take the trouble to go to the polls and vote intelligently, then there will be no complaint about government Failure to vote is an invitation to politicians to ignore the desire of the people

Voting is not only a privilege—it is a duty as well

Punishing The Guilty

(Nebraska City News)

President Coolidge is punishing the guilty ' in the Tea Pot Dome and other oil leases

He endorses young Teddy Roosevelt for governor of New York Young Roosevelt who in his official conduct seems almost the exact opposite of his father was the official who carried the papers in the lease matters to be signed by the president It was this lot of papers from which was lost somewhere between the navy department and the white house the protest against the leases of Admiral Griffin It was Roosevelt who sent the United States marines to maintain Sinclair's possession of the Tea Pot Dome

The president promotes Rear Admiral Robinson Robinson was the only high naval officer who approved the leasing plan In fact he became interested in Doheny years before when young Doheny was a subordinate officer under him Robinson originated the idea that the leasing laws protecting the navy's oil could be circumvented by paying the oil leasors in all for building storage tanks—two barrels of oil for storage for one barrel

Worries Republicans

(Nebraska City News)

Since Gov Al Smith was defeated for the nomination for president at the democratic convention the republicans have been claiming that he was the only democrat who could carry New York this fall and with that state would go New Jersey To read the lamentations of the Coolidge men one would believe that they felt sorry because the democrats missed their golden opportunity Without Smith the republicans had a sure cinch on New York they boasted Well Smith has decided to again be a candidate for governor and on the authority of the republicans is sure to be elected His entrance into the arena will cause the republicans more worry than the entrance of Daugherty and Means

Giving Back The Money

(Rushville Standard)

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has reported that he returns $120 000 000 per year to the wealthy income taxpayers This is a stupendous sum and it is hardly possible that the millionaires of this country would overpay their income taxes to such an extent It is charged that these wealthy men send in their correct income taxes Then the Treasury Department finds that John Jones has paid income taxes on $1 000 000 which he invested in purchasing warehouses and other property for the carrying on of his business Mr Mellon ruled that that million dollars was legitimate expense of the business and so he returns to John Jones the $200 000 taxes which he Mellon claims should have been classed as expense and therefore not taxable This is nothing but favoritism Then when all such cases are taken up and the refunds made under this ruling by the Treasury Department then another rule is made exempting another class So when the Treasury Department returns this money to these wealthy taxpayers they of course will say We cannot help it if the Government gives the money back to us This is one of the most outrageous things that was ever known in any of the government departments No wonder the American people are groaning under such heavy taxes when the government 's giving back millions upon millions to the wealthy taxpayers Is it not time to turn the rascals out?

Chinese Sport

(Fremont Tribune)

China is waking up in the matter of sports among other things A recent cable tells of a [illegible] athletic meet held in Wuchang with such characteristics as might be found in any similar meet in an American college town

It was surprisingly American not only in spirit but in vocabulary The comments of spectators are said to have been couched largely in American sport slang There were frequent cries of Come on boy and Stick to it kid and Wipe the butter off your fingers

There must have been quite a few returned Chinese-Americans in that crowd But very likely the Chinese in borrowing American sports are borrowing the American sport lingo along with them The same thing is observable in France in connection with American games like baseball Other French sports borrowed from England use the English terminology

The most surprising thing about Chinese athletic events however is that they occur at all China has never been much of a land for sport The innovation is one of the most heathful signs in that country And there is no reason why the Chinese should not develop great prowess in many branches of athletics

A Bad Amendment

(Nebraska City Press)

The proposal of the Shouters of Nonsense to destroy the efficacy of the ballot in Nebraska by eliminating the party circle and the political designations following names of candidates for office should be defeated

Voters should not forget in their interest in candidates to express an opinion on this proposition to eliminate the party designation

It is still necessary in Nebraska to inform the voter for whom he is voting It is still necessary to have parties—even the gentlemen who are behind the move to destroy the party circle believe in organization

Vote NO on the proposed amendment to the Nebraska election regulations

Regarding Taxes

LINCOLN Neb, Oct 25—To the Editor of The Lincoln Star In an attached clipping from a local newspaper the writer thereof attempts to ridicule Governor Bryan's claim of lower taxes during his administration

From the clipping the figures show and prove so far as the state taxes are concerned that under Mr Bryan's two years those state taxes are lower than either one of the three years mentioned as under Governor McKelvie's administration

For instance taking the figures from the clipping of today and combining the state taxes and capitol building taxes and those figures show as follows

Governor McKelvie's administration
1920 taxes were $3 07 per $1 000
1921 taxes were $3 30 per $1 000
1922 taxes were $2 30 per $1 000
Governor Bryan's administration
1923 taxes were $2 per $1 000
1924 taxes were $1 80 per $1 000

Neither Mr McKelvie or Bryan had or have control over the other taxes mentioned in the clipping and which other taxes are strictly local being county and city

A GALLANT WARRIOR.

In the face of odds which would benumb the stoutest heart, John W. Davis has never faltered.

Since his nomination after a bitter convention fight, he has played a heroic role—smilingly, undismayed by the seemingly insurmountable barriers which have beset his path, his faith in the ultimate triumph of his cause unshaken.

It takes a great soul to make the battle John W. Davis has made. History reveals but few of them. In this campaign now drawing to a close, without a precedent or parallel in American history, the democratic standard bearer alone has made a fight worthy of commissioning him to speak for the greatest democracy in the world.

What of La Follette?

For thirty years his greying locks have been in the thick of battle. For over a quarter of a century his eloquent voice pleaded for the things for which he stood. Then in the sunset of his career, with the greatest adventure given to an American citizen stretching before him, La Follette turned his head from the west, which was waiting for him to carry his fight in a half dozen states which were wavering in the balance, to invade new fields where it was freely confessed he has not a chance.

Why?

Because La Follette wants Calvin Coolidge, a reactionary, to win if he can't. He wants Coolidge to win because he wants this country to endure four more years of what it has gone through in the last three and a half in order that it will be ripe for the great revolt which is to sweep into power La Follette's new party in 1928. This coloring of supreme selfishness, which has characterized the La Follette campaign robbed his drive in the last few days of all of the appeal which it might have had. Today the La Follette strategy stands revealed in all of its hideousness. Despairing of victory for himself, La Follette has set about to divide the opposition to Coolidge in these wavering eastern states in order to insure the triumph of Coolidge. Then this embittered old man will sit back and calmly survey the trouble he has brewed. While reaction rides in the saddle, he will survey the lines for the new party which he hopes to build in 1928, a situation made possible because liberal views cannot find expression under Coolidge.

What is the proof of this assertion?

It has been pointed out that La Follette's only hope rested in the west. In that section a dozen states were hanging in the balance. But La Follette is not seeking electoral votes. He recognizes, but is not honest enough to admit, that no possible combination can give him enough votes in the electoral college to win. He seeks only to make a strong showing in the west and to divide the east sufficiently to insure the triumph of a reactionary.

The latest testimony on this point is furnished by the correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, who has followed Senator La Follette throughout the campaign. Although his paper is supporting President Coolidge, he writes as follows:

> "This correspondent is convinced that Senator La Follette, if he cannot be elected himself, would prefer to see Calvin Coolidge go to the White House by popular vote than to have John W. Davis become president through a decision of the house.
> "La Follette regards Davis as a much abler, and therefore a more dangerous man from the independent point of view than President Coolidge. Election of Davis by congress, which he regards as highly probable, would be a severe blow to independent hopes, because it would give the country a kind of liberal administration which La Follette dislikes and would inject new life in the democratic party, which La Follette hopes will be killed save as a regional party after this election.
> "That one of the by-products of the eastern tour may be the making more certain the election of Coolidge is not distasteful to La Follette."

That is the "lofty" cause to which La Follette, in the closing days of his fight, has dedicated his soul. For selfishness and callous disregard of the best interests of his country, he has never been equalled in American political history. As between a liberal of outstanding ability and a reactionary, lacking all of the essential qualities of leadership even among those of the same political thought, he picks the reactionary and pursues the course to make certain his election.

No word or action of Calvin Coolidge in this campaign could have quickened the pulses of the hundreds of thousands of republicans following blindly where party tradition and party loyalty leads.

He has been the dumb idol in the temple.

Behind the fortress of silence he has resisted every endeavor and every attempt to bare his thoughts and reveal his personality to the American people.

At this time, when the American people are being asked to entrust their fortunes to him, no man can honestly say that he knows the real Coolidge. In only one direction have they seen him reveal a positiveness of opinion. Calvin Coolidge is deeply devoted to the traditional conservatism of the New England doctrine of republicanism. He is a firm apostle of the theory of high protection, which is nothing more than a governmental favor or privilege for a special group.

Few men have had the opportunity which was presented Calvin Coolidge to impress his personality upon the American people. When Washington was rocking with the revelations which came with the uncovering of the Veterans' bureau scandal, Teapot Dome and the mal-administration of the department of justice under Daugherty, the president could have with one stroke removed all opposition to his election. Vigorous, decisive action on his part would have eliminated further discussion of those issues. But he temporized and apologized and then hit back at congress, which was responsible for the investigations. Before the Associated Press he declared "but the wonder is not that this corruption is so much and so many corruptionists; rather that it is so little and so few."

The same timidity, the same unwillingness to meet issues frankly and courageously has characterized the relative unimportant part that he has played in his campaign. He has prcoeeded with the idea of winning the office by saying as little as he could. What follows in the next four years is of little concern now. If congress continues in its refusal to follow him, the resultant confusion is of no importance. The practical side of Calvin Coolidge prescribes a course to win office at any sacrifice.

What a marked contrast in the fight that John W. Davis has been making?

Though the burden of a single-handed fight, without adequate funds or organization, is heavy, this chosen son of democracy has gone about his task with a dignity, a courage, a faith that has inspired the discouraged workers in his own party.

He has smoothed out party differences and united democracy under a single banner. He has instilled new hope and new faith in those who wearied in the fight. The victim of the most ignoble conspiracy of which a great political party can be guilty—the efforts of Chairman Butler of the republican national committee to lead the voters into believing that this fight was between La Follette and Coolidge — Mr. Davis has never complained, but he has forced Mr. Butler and his associates to recognize him. Instead of the great majority which Mr. Butler was claiming for President Coolidge, the republican chairman now foresees an effort to prevent the American people from making a choice by throwing this election into congress.

In the last message which Mr. Davis addressed to the American people he bespoke confidence in the cause which he represents.

Why?

Because he has faith in the American people.

He believes in the crusade which he is leading to restore government to the people of this country and to wipe out favoritism and special privilege from Washington. He believes that in the new permanent tax law which is to be written, in the matter of the protective tariff, in the protection of public domain—in all of those matters which affect the lives and liberties of the American people, the fundamental principles of government, so clearly enunciated by the immortal Thomas Jefferson shall prevail. That sublime confidence in the inherent good of this nation has given him the strength to go about his task, undisturbed.

John W. Davis' faith in the honesty, fairness and purpose of the American people is the sole, sublime high light of this campaign.

THE AWAKENING OF BROWNVILLE.

A few years ago a visitor to Brownville, Nemaha county, down in the southeast corner of the state, was forcefully reminded of Goldsmith's "Deserted Village," for such Brownville appeared to be. Large buildings which in an earlier and more prosperous day had appeared imposing and which were gazed upon with pride and exultation by the inhabitants of the then thriving young metropolis, stood vacant and lonely, their empty windows gazing out upon a scene of sleepy solitude, the room occupied only by bats and birds.

Brownville had been pronounced dead; but the pronouncement was all wrong. Brownville was only in a state of coma, and there has been a revival and the pioneer village has come to be one of the livest and most wideawake to be found in any section of this splendid and flourishing commonwealth.

Electricity has been defined as "life," and certainly it has contributed not a little to reviving and rejuvenating Brownville. Recently a transmission line from a big central power plant was built into the village and now not only are the streets brilliantly lighted each night, but the homes and business houses are also made bright with the same magic current that has banished the washboard and other crude and primitive domestic utensils.

The prime cause of the revival of Brownville, however, is not the putting in of the transmission line, which is but one indication that life had already returned. Brownville is one of the biggest fruit shipping points in this state, which is rapidly gaining a reputation as a producer of fruits of the very highest quality and flavor. With the advent of trained, scientific orchardists, co-operative marketing or the selling according to business principles, and the bringing into general use of the refrigerator car, orchard lands in Nebraska have attained an income producing value undreamed of in this section a few years ago.

There is no half way awakening about Brownville. Its citizens are thoroughly aroused; they are building good roads to their village and are marking them so that all who ride may read. They have installed a first class ferry across the Missouri river, which was once the great highway of commerce which brought to the town emigrants and freight from the east and south and they are inviting all the world to come and see them. As the village is situated in one of the most picturesque sections of the state the invitation is worth while accepting.

A CURE FOR LEPROSY.

The United States Public Health Service has submitted an interesting showing in answer to its own inquiry as to whether leprosy can be cured.

Recently, the department states, three lepers were discharged from the colony at the National Leprosarium at Carville, Louisiana, after a careful examination showed they had no manifestations of the disease. To all intents and purposes they have been cured although the doctors in certifying their release, merely indicated the disease had been arrested, and the lepers could no longer be considered a menace to public health.

Of all diseases, leprosy probably has aroused more fear. Mention of it is found in the earliest records of civilization, but in spite of all scientific advance, no claim has ever been made that a cure for it has been perfected. Until recently the victim of leprosy has been condemned to ostracism, with death alone releasing him.

It is a really remarkable work which the federal health service has been accomplishing in the colony at Carville. Unquestionably isolation and treatment under the conditions provided there will wipe out leprosy in America. Certainty of a cure would represent a glorious triumph for science, but far-reaching steps to wipe it out through rigid isolation and treatment will attain the same results for the coming generations.

INCREASING POPULATIONS.

A noted professor of John Hopkins School of Hygiene has determined that America's maximum population will be 197,000,000 people, and that this figure will be reached in 2100 if the conditions of the Nineteenth century remain permanently unaltered.

Prof. Raymond Pearl, who makes the calculations, arrives at his conclusions in a coldly scientific way.

"All growth, including that of population is fundamentally a biological matter. Every living thing starts its separate, individual existence as a single cell. This state is, however, of extremely brief duration. In the case of a higher multicellular organism, like man, the single cell divides itself into two, then four, eight, sixteen, and so on to a number which becomes unaccountably large."

Pearl goes on to demonstrate that human life differs not in the slightest from other life in population increase.

But the fact that America will ultimately nearly double her population does not signify any increase in human wretchedness, due to over-population, Professor Pearl declares. The increases in the past are the best proof, he declares, that a very considerable growth can be accommodated without tending in anyway to reduce the standards of living which have been established.

Of considerably greater importance is the capacity which America has shown herself to be possessed of to adapt herself to changing conditions. A greater population will unquestionably call for improvements in the matter of production. Man, with the same effort, will have to be able to produce twice as much as he does today. So, reasons Professor Pearl, the matter of an increasing population must be met with the maximum use of invention and science to increase production.

REDUCING BY OPERATION.

The extreme in feminine measures to reduce has been reached.

A former musical comedy star, Miss Truly Shattuck, underwent an operation in a Chicago hospital to reduce her weight from 192 pounds to 123. The operation, according to reports from the hospital, was entirely successful, and a 52-inch waistline was narrowed to a shadowy 34-inch.

It is hardly probable, however, that many of the women who are anxious to lose a few pounds, will resort to the heroic measures which Miss Shattuck adopted.

CEDARS.

It is no mystery to me
That cedars wear such dignity:
Their roots reach out through earth and time
To sub-soils of antiquity:
Beneath the sea's broad floor they run
To find the springs of Lebanon,
And, quickened thence, each fiber dreams
Of ancient temples, graven beams,
Of kings and priests and altars gold,
And all the storied days of old.

It is no mystery to me
That cedars wear such dignity,
Or that with such a lordly pride
They dominate my garden-side.

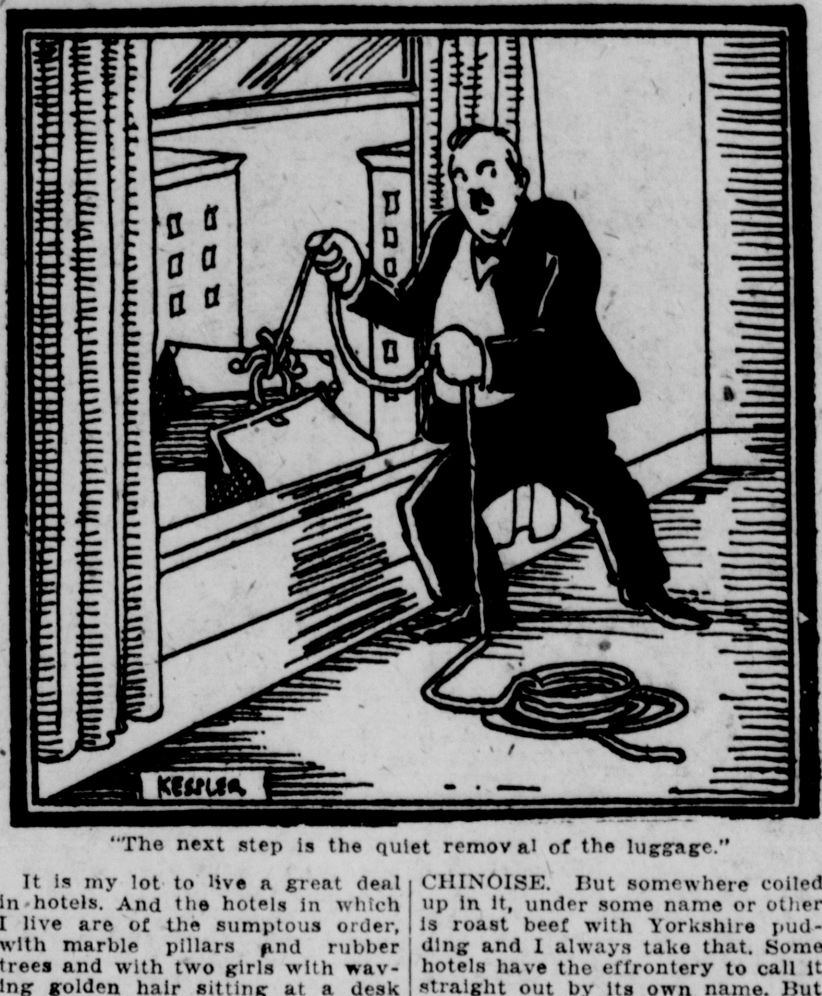
LIVING IN A HOTEL

Acting As If To The Menu Born In A Modern Victuals Emporium.



"The next step is the quiet removal of the luggage."

It is my lot to live a great deal in hotels. And the hotels in which I live are of the sumptous order, with marble pillars and rubber trees and with two girls with waving golden hair sitting at a desk and running a telephone exchange. There is a grill room where they serve lobster newburg and hot dog all night and a palm room where they play music all day and where expensive looking women eat French pastry with anaemic men.

There is a ballroom where on nearly any evening you can see a debuante's dance going on and wish you were twenty years younger, and a concert room where you hear an Italian basso singing an aria CHI QUAL CHIANTI to a Ladies Fortnightly Musical Club.

It is in such a place that I always abide. It is generally advertised—this kind of hotel—as the most homelike hotel in the country. But this is only a joke. Home is not really like that.

I always take care to have a room and a bath. I find by experience that a bath comes in extremely handy; if anybody gives you a bouquet of roses you keep them in the bath for days perfectly fresh; or you can use it to put your overcoat in when you come home at night; in fact it's handy in a dozen ways. And there's a tone about it! It sounds so nice to say "I have a room and a bath at the Palatial," or "Won't you come in some time and see me in my room and bath?" and things like that.

Picking a Quarrel.

People think hotel life dull. This is a great mistake. In a hotel there is always some form of amusement, something doing to while away the time. Thus in the mornings it is always possible to spend a pleasant moment or two leaning over the glass case where the girl with golden hair sells souvenirs and theatre-tickets and letting her tell you that her epople came from Bradford but that she has a gentleman friend who she thinks comes your home town or has visited in it. As long as you keep on buying souvenirs and letting her talk about her gentleman friend this girl will go on for ever! And there is an ease and charm in her conversation not found in outside society.

Personally, I find that for pleasurable excitement the best thing in hotel life is to pick a quarrel with the head waiter. In a good hotel the head waiter expects it and is trained for it. It is part of his job. Picking a quarrel with him is quite simple; you just have him summoned over to your table and accuse him of extortion, or malappropriation, or perversion, or arson—it doesn't matter what. All crimes are alike to him. He's been accused of all of them. His part in the quarrel is to keep on saying "I'm very sorry, sir"—when you get yourself worked up into complete infuriation with him, then tell him you will leave the hotel.

This is supposed to crush the life right out of him. Then when you have him reduced to pulp the moment has come for suddenly discovering that he was right and you were wrong; you give way to a burst of generous enthusiasm, call him to you and kiss him, give him five dollars and swear to live with him in the hotel for ever. This little comedy can be observed going on at all times of the day between the guests and the Head Waiter.

Profound Gastronomic Thought.

But the principal charm of hotel life is the meals. What more exquisite than to draw one's chair in to the breakfast table and have the pleasure of selecting breakfast out of a list of two hundred items.

Every morning when I sit down in the hotel dining room to order breakfast, I spend at least twenty minutes in deep thought over the bill of fare.

At the end of it I order bacon and eggs.

Very often—in fact usually—I call the waiter into consultation as to what kind of a suitable, agreeable, more or less novel breakfast a man might profitably take. When he has done his talk, I order bacon and eggs.

Sometimes I get the Head Waiter in on it, and ask him questions about fish. I ask him how is his sole this morning, and he says it is excellent. I ask him can he recommend his sea bass and he says he can. As a final and definite inquiry I ask him what about his grilled plaice, and he says his grilled plaice is delicious, I say to him, in that case will he kindly bring me some bacon and eggs.

In fact I believe that all other men who live in hotels are like this. At every hotel I see them sitting at the breakfast table with a bill of fare in front of them, thinking deeply, with a waiter standing behind them babbling about grilled plaice; and in the end I always hear the waiter say "Bacon and eggs, yes, sir."

Indeed, my own opinion is that in all the big hotels they don't really have anything else to eat in the place except bacon and eggs. They just write down all that stuff about grilled plaice to look well and to let the guests think. In reality, there is only bacon and eggs.

Dressing up a Name.

Much the same thing happens at dinner. Here there is again a card of two hundred items beginning with POTAGE ST. GERMAIN and ending with GAUFRETTES A LA CHINOISE. But somewhere coiled up in it, under some name or other is roast beef with Yorkshire pudding and I always take that. Some hotels have the effrontery to call it straight out by its own name. But that is hardly fair. In that case the guest is lost at once; in the whole catalogue he sees nothing but the words ROAST BEEF AND YORKSHIRE PUDDING and he rushes straight at it. But in the better hotels it is at least disguised at ROSBIF AU POUDIN D'YORK which gives the guest a run for his money before he tracks it down. At other times, it is more completely hidden as TOURNEDOS A L'ANGLAISE, or FILET DE BOEUF YORK, but it is always there and under one name or the other I have eaten it every day for several years.

The most intricate business in life in a hotel is found in the method of leaving. This is a technical matter demanding long practice for its performance. As the moment approaches the guest should lull the waiters and porters into a false sense of security by letting fall remarks about remaining for a month. This puts them off their guard and they cease to watch his coming in and going out.

The next step is the quiet removal of luggage. This may be done by letting it down on a rope from the bedroom window but it is is always possible to get it out by bribing a single porter and making him take an oath of secrecy. One's hat, coat and stick may next be moved into some cloak-room or placed near the front door. The guest then gathers him for a single spring past the cashier's office and shouting, "Send my bill after me to Pittsburgh" he leaps at one bound into a taxi and disappears in a cloud of petroleum.

If this is not absolutely and exactly the way of leaving, at any rate I notice the performance being done on this model.

Very often after doing this the guest discovers that he has left upstairs in his room a silk umbrella with a gold band around it. He never sees it again. But this is only divine justice.

PROPER MEDICINE.

(Harvard Courier.)

The state bankers association has a definite program in mind for agricultural development. The newspapers have it in mind to help them put it over. The bankers have figured out that a difference of a dollar or so an acre in the cash value of farm crops often makes the difference between prosperity and hard times. It is up to all of us to help farmers get the most possible out of their business. There will be less demand for political nostrums if we all take the practical interest in farming that we should take.

The Duty of Voting.

One of the best arguments against direct legislation as expressed in the primary, the initiative and the referendum, is the fact that normally voters will willingly cast a ballot for the men running for office, but there is always a much smaller number of ballots cast for any proposed legislation or constitutional changes.

Every voter should study the proposals submitted to the voters this year. Every voter should decide what should be done. And then each one should remember to cast his or her ballot one way or the other on every proposal.

The American people are too prone to fight for a thing only to neglect it after it has been obtained. Nearly every citizen would fight for the ballot if it was denied them, yet in the last general election half of the voters in this country did not even go to the polls.

Let this section at least, hang up a new record this year. Instead of having the smallest percentage of voters go to the polls, let it have the largest. For years the percentage has been dwindling. It is time to go the other way. Let every citizen first of all be sure to vote, then assist in getting out the vote of others. Let each one insist that his or her family vote, and that friends and neighbors do likewise.

When the American people take the trouble to go to the polls and vote intelligently, then there will be no complaint about government. Failure to vote is an invitation to politicians to ignore the desire of the people.

Voting is not only a privilege—it is a duty as well.

Punishing The Guilty.

(Nebraska City News.)

President Coolidge is "punishing the guilty" in the Tea Pot Dome and other oil leases.

He endorses young Teddy Roosevelt for governor of New York. Young Roosevelt, who in his official conduct seems almost the exact opposite of his father, was the official who carried the papers in the lease matters to be signed by the president. It was this lot of papers from which was lost somewhere between the navy department and the white house, the protest against the leases of Admiral Griffin. It was Roosevelt who sent the United States marines to maintain Sinclair's possession of the Tea Pot Dome.

The president promotes Rear Admiral Robinson. Robinson was the only high naval officer who approved the leasing plan. In fact, he became interested in Doheny years before when young Doheny was a subordinate officer under him. Robinson originated the idea that the leasing laws protecting the navy's oil could be circumvented by paying the oil leasors in all for building storage tanks—two barrels of oil for storage for one barrel.

Worries Republicans.

(Nebraska City News.)

Since Gov. Al Smith was defeated for the nomination for president at the democratic convention the republicans have been claiming that he was the only democrat who could carry New York this fall, and with that state would go New Jersey. To read the lamentations of the Coolidge men one would believe that they felt sorry because the democrats missed their golden opportunity. Without Smith the republicans had a sure cinch on New York, they boasted. Well, Smith has decided to again be a candidate for governor, and on the authority of the republicans is sure to be elected. His entrance into the arena will cause the republicans more worry than the entrance of Daugherty and Means.

Giving Back The Money.

(Rushville Standard.)

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has reported that he returns $120,000,000 per year to the wealthy income taxpayers. This is a stupendous sum and it is hardly possible that the millionaires of this country would overpay their income taxes to such an extent. It is charged that these wealthy men send in their correct income taxes. Then the Treasury Department finds that John Jones has paid income taxes on $1,000,000 which he invested in purchasing warehouses and other property for the carrying on of his business. Mr. Mellon ruled that that million dollars was legitimate expense of the business and so he returns to John Jones the $200,000 taxes which, he, Mellon, claims should have been classed as expense and therefore not taxable. This is nothing but favoritism. Then when all such cases are taken up and the refunds made under this ruling by the Treasury Department, then another rule is made exempting another class. So when the Treasury Department returns this money to these wealthy taxpayers they, of course, will say "We cannot help it if the Government gives the money back to us." This is one of the most outrageous things that was ever known in any of the government departments. No wonder the American people are groaning under such heavy taxes when the government is giving back millions upon millions to the wealthy taxpayers. Is it not time to turn the rascals out?

Chinese Sport.

(Fremont Tribune.)

China is waking up in the matter of sports, among other things. A recent cable tells of a national athletic meet held in Wuchang, with such characteristics as might be found in any similar meet in an American college town.

It was surprisingly American, not only in spirit, but in vocabulary. The comments of spectators are said to have been couched largely in American sport slang. There were frequent cries of "Come on, boy" and "Stick to it, kid!" and "Wipe the butter off your fingers."

There must have been quite a few returned Chinese-Americans in that crowd. But very likely the Chinese, in borrowing American sports, are borrowing the American sport lingo along with them. The same thing is observable in France, in connection with American games like baseball. Other French sports borrowed from England use the English terminology.

The most surprising thing about Chinese athletic events, however, is that they occur at all. China has never been much of a land for sport. The innovation is one of the most heathful signs in that country. And there is no reason why the Chinese should not develop great prowess in many branches of athletics.

A Bad Amendment.

(Nebraska City Press.)

The proposal of the Shouters of Nonsense to destroy the efficacy of the ballot in Nebraska by eliminating the party circle and the political designations following names of candidates for office should be defeated.

Voters should not forget, in their interest in candidates, to express an opinion on this proposition to eliminate the party designation.

It is still necessary in Nebraska to inform the voter for whom he is voting. It is still necessary to have parties—even the gentlemen who are behind the move to destroy the party circle believe in organization.

Vote "NO" on the proposed amendment to the Nebraska election regulations.

Regarding Taxes.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 25.—To the Editor of The Lincoln Star: In an attached clipping from a local newspaper the writer thereof attempts to ridicule Governor Bryan's claim of lower taxes during his administration.

From the clipping the figures show and prove so far as the state taxes are concerned that under Mr. Bryan's two years those state taxes are lower than either one of the three years mentioned as under Governor McKelvie's administration.

For instance, taking the figures from the clipping of today and combining the state taxes and capitol building taxes and those figures show as follows:

Governor McKelvie's administration:
1920 taxes were $2.07 per $1,000.
1921 taxes were $3.30 per $1,000.
1922 taxes were $2.30 per $1,000.
Governor Bryan's administration:
1923 taxes were $2 per $1,000.
1924 taxes were $1.80 per $1,000.

Neither Mr. McKelvie or Bryan had or have control over the other taxes mentioned in the clipping and which other taxes are strictly local, being county and city.

Registration for the second term will begin Monday, November 10.

Irma Croft and Helen Hille, both students of the schools, gave a short program at the dinner given by the Brotherhood of the Grace M. E. church Wednesday.

The first of the regular Wednesday afternoon recitals for this year will be held in the corridors of the School October 29.

Dean John M. Rosborough was a visitor in Northfield, Minnesota last week where he was a guest of F. M. Christiansen, director of the St. Olaf choir.

Student members of the Mu Phi Epsilon sorority gave a program for Community Night at the church in College View Friday evening.

"Want a little tonic for the blues? Take a dose of American jazz, but the size of the dose for the aesthetically inclined should not exceed one hour.'

This is what Isa Kremer has to say about American jazz and her prescription for the blues. The well known Russian singer continued:

"Your American jazz is good for the soul! I recommend it to anyone suffering from melancholy. I get quite a kick out of it myself, but only for an hour, after that it gets on my nerves, I get fed up and bored with it.

"When I was in Europe I found the people over there, in order to forget their miseries, had taken to jazz as some Americans do to drink. Colored jazz singers were quite the rage wherever I went. While they cannot get real Negroes, they get black-faced comedians, or anybody who can pass an imitation of an American Nebro. The craze has run through all classes, jazz from morning to night. And that is what jazz amounts to, it is a drug, that's all, and not harmful unless taken in large doses. One hour is enough for anyone, beyond that the effect is dangerous."

The British Broadcasting company is arranging a further series of concerts this season, and this year the company is taking Covent Garden from which to broadcast them. The concerts will be open to the regular public, prices of seats being particularly small. The first concert will take place on December 10, other dates being January 15 and February 12; details of concerts which will take place in March, April and May, are not yet arranged. The conductors already engaged include Bruno Walter, Pierre Monteux, Ernest Ansermet and Marinuzzi. Leading artists will appear at each concert.

Most successful of the seven seasons of open-air orchestral concerts at the stadium of the City College in New York is that which has just come to a close. Audiences of 10,000 and over, exhausting the capacity of the big stone and concrete amphitheatre and the field seats, have not been infrequent, and programs of a high order have been the rule.

The 105 players were the men of the New York Philharmonic orchestra and they were led by Willem van Hoogstraten, one of the orchestra's regular conductors, with guest conductors in the persons of Fritz Reiner, director of the Cincinnati orchestra, and Arnold Volpe, under whose baton the stadium concerts originally began. A fine new, portable band stand costing $15,000 and equipped with the best acoustics for outdoor music, together with a fairly steady run of good weather, were contributing factors to the success of the series.

Perhaps the most noteworthy feature of the season was the public response to the presentation of Beethoven's Ninth symphony, with augmented orchestra and chorus of 200 more than 21,000 persons heard the two performances of this work, and hundreds were turned away from the first one.

On the closing night a request program was given, the numbers chosen indicating the high standards of taste of the New York masses, for it is the so-called masses which are the main element in the audiences. The votes for the selections were cast by those attending the concerts of an earlier week, and thousands of ballots were turned in. Tschaikowsky's "Pathetic" symphony received more votes than any other symphony, with Beethoven's Fifth a close second. "Die Meistersinger" proved to be the favorite overture, and Liszt's "Les Preludes" led the symphonic poems. Johann Strauss' "Blue Danube Waltz" was included in the program as the best loved miscellaneous work. Besides such well tried works, thirty novel were greeted favorably by the public.

An innovation was introduced in the annual scheme of auditions for the choice of soloists. The awards to the successful competitors were first, an appearance with the stadium orchestra and then prizes of a size varying according to the degree of favor they met with the auditors. The five young men and women who received the coveted honor were presented in a single concert, with the audience as judge of their merits. The two ranking highest in public approval were Ignace Hilsberg, pianist, and Miron Poliakin, violinist. As prize winners they will be presented in New York recitals under the auspices of the Stadium Concerts committee. The three others received cash awards.

The chairman of the stadium series is Mrs. Charles S. Guggenheimer, and the honorary chairman Adolph Lewisohn, donor of the Stadium. The manager is Arthur Judson.

Well, well, well! There is nothing so new about music after all. Prof. Curt Sachs, of the University of Berlin, has just translated, so to say, a popular song of Babylon, which he calculates to be about 3,000 years old. It is recorded on a plate from Assur, and the lyric is still there, too. The tune sticks to a five-tone scale without half tones, according to the professor, and the accompaniment was played on an eighteen-stringed harp, with double stops used—whatever that may mean on a harp. The only thing that was lacking is the name of the piece and its authors and a statement as to whether or not it was copyrighted for all foreign countries, including the Scandinavian. Our guess is, that further study will show that this gaysome lyric of antiquity is entitled Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin, words by Nebuchadnezzar, music by Belshazzar, copyright 2018 B. C. by the Tower Publishing Company, Babel. —Musical Courier.

Vlado Kolitsch, a young Croatian violinist, who hails from the little town of Zagreb, arrived in New York recently and will be heard in the metropolis in January. Before playing here, he will tour Canada and other parts of the United States.

Kolitsch is a pupil of Vaclav Hulm of Prague, who, by the way, is a nephew of Milka Jernina, the singer so prominent at the Metropolitan Opera House some years ago. The young violinist brings to this country what is said to be the most famous of the Stainer violins. It was loaned the youth by the well known Lobkowicz family, whose castle at Roudnice, near Prague, is considered one of the show places in Central Europe. For centuries the Lobkowicz family have been great collectors of valuable manuscripts. In its library are many of the original manuscripts of Mozart, Haydn, Beethoven, and other famous composers, besides original copies of rare books. The family has numerous old violins and other musical instruments. The Strainer was given the family by the maker more than one hundred years before the time of Mozart, and was loaned to Bozart during his sojourn in Prague. When the composer returned it, Prince Leopold Lobkowicz gave Mozart another Stainer violin, which is now at the composer's birthplace in Salzburg.

The real Cinderella of musical instruments is the beautiful but neglected viola. When you are tempted to use "second fiddle" as a figure of speech, say instead "viola." It is more to the point and has the advantage of being terse. (Of course, in the orchestra family the two are not synonymous.)

"In orchestration the old masters did not appreciate the possibilities of the viola," explains Carlton Cooley of the Cleveland Institute of Music. "They used it as a subordinate voice, as an instrument to finish a phrase, or sound at last note for the sake of harmony. However, the classicists gave this instrument some of its just due in writing chamber music. Some very lovely viola literature is contained in compositions for string quartets.

"Now more and more composers are glimpsing its potentialities. They have found in it a new color for the musical spectrum. Some of the modern English composers, among them Arnold Bax and York Bowen, are using it to gain warm, gracious effects they could secure on no other instrument. Our own Ernest Bloch (director of the Cleveland Institute) gained a measure of his immediate American recognition through his Suite for Viola and Piano, which was awarded the Coolidge prize in 1919.

"I am confident that the viola is on the brink of great popularity. As the new music shows its solo quality, musicians will be attracted to it rather than to the violin. The viola is the contralto of the strings. Because it has not the brilliancy nor the spectacular appeal of the high pitched soprano it has so far languished in semi-oblivion. With beautiful music written for it, its subtle beauty cannot help but win its appreciative audiences."

"Ravinia is the ideal place for summer opera," declared Merle Alcock, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, returning to her home in New York from a season of ten weeks with the Ravinia Park Opera Company. "Moreover, Ravinia Park is the ideal place for a summer vacation.

"People told me before I went out there that I would return home tired and worn out. They told me I was trying to do too much, with my operatic work at the Metropolitan and my heavy concert season, but I feel freshed, and I feel that the experience in stage work, which was one of the things I want out there for, has been invaluable to me.

"Mr. Eckstein is doing wonderful things for Americans and American artists. For the thing it gives, Ravina Park is unique, and I don't think it can be duplicated anywhere.

"First of all, it is a lovely park and a beautiful place to rest. The cool lake breezes do not make working a hardship. I stayed at the Moraine Hotel and had rooms overlooking the lake, it was only a short distance from the park and I don't know when I have spent such a splendid summer. Although I sang twenty-four times in the ten weeks, I am not tired, and I am more ready for my autumn concert and operatic work than I would have been if I had spent the summer doing nothing at all."

RETURNS TO COLUMBIA

Seattle Stowater, son of Judge E. A. Stowater of University Place, who has recently received his master's degree from Columbia. He is a graduate of the Sterling high school and of Nebraska Wesleyan in 1922, where he is a member of Delta Omega Phi. Mr. Stowater has returned to Columbia, where he will continue work for his doctorate. Last year, Mr. Stowater traveled in Europe with a party of Columbia students and has been in government service in the west during the past summer.

The season at Ravinia Park practically completes for Miss Alcock her first year in opera. Miss Alcock made her operatic debut last November at the Metropolitan as Beppe in L'Amico Fritz, and in the past year she has appeared in nineteen different roles, besides learning other roles and carrying on extensive concert work. This is a record for one year that is unique in the annals of concert singers who have just entered operatic work and carry it on with triumphant success in addition to recital and oratorio activities.

At Ravinia Park Miss Alcock appeared in such roles as Lola, Maddelena, as the Mother in the Tales of Hoffman, Suzuki, Rosette, Mallika, Ortrud, Beppe, as The Countess in Andrea Chenier, Madelon, and she also appeared four times as soloist in the Monday evening concerts, besides several minor roles.

"One of the things which made me feel so much at home out there was the fact that the orchestral conductors and most of the singers and stage directors came from the Metropolitan," added Miss Alcock "They were all very kind to me, and it certainly was a wonderful experience and a splendid place to spend the summer."

Lincoln Women Learned About Beauty From Madame Louise Tuesday At First Show Held Here

They learned about beauty from Madame Louise last week.

The Giffen, Harper, and Marinello beauty shops brought the Frenchwoman, who has studied the beauty of women for many years. Seven or eight hundred women found out the most becoming coifure, the newest modernities in hair dressings, the latest fads of fashion for applying the boxed bloom of youth, of manicuring, of fixing the eyebrows, through her Lincoln demonstration.

"The most important event of her local visit was the beauty style show, held at the Lincoln hotel Tuesday evening. The affair was arranged under the direction of Mrs. Edith Belle Lewis, owner of the three shops. It was the first style show of the kind ever given in Lincoln.

There was a definite idea behond the beauty show.

Women are more active than they used to be and the dash and the buzz of life is telling on them and beauty aids are needed as they were never were before. Business, golf, motoring—all take their toll of woman's beauty and she needs something to counteract the effects of prairie winds, sumer suns, long hours at the desk or typewriter.

Life is one grand rush after another and there's always danger that a woman will be careless of her appearance. In the rush to get another on the wire before the time clock rings, in her eagerness to meet a tea appointment on the stroke of the hour, she may neglect some of the finer touches—smear the rouge a little too thickly, have the eyelash beads a little rotund, prepare the cupid's bow for too perfect and much too vivid.

That gilding the lily is a delicate art was the lesson behind the beauty style show. That every woman can stand a little improvement on nature and that the improvement must be done with care and tact, was learned by hundreds of women at the beauty demonstration.

The show didn't consist of a long and theoretical discussion on beauty. Beauty grew and blossomed before the eyes of the spectators. Where there had been no beauty, beauty suddenly appeared.

The show opened with a playette, "The Blooming of a Rose" Betty Webster was the society matron, Frances McChesney was Rose, the country, E. Hart Jenks, the husband, and Arline Lewis, the maid. The play depicted the change in appearance, poise, and grace of manner of Rose as she learned to make the most of her appearance and to make artificial beauty her servant

The evening and the show centered about living models, under the direction of Madam Louise Eight girls who demonstrated that it is quite as necessary to have certain types of hair dressing for evening as it is to have the proper gowns and shoes and wraps. Unlike most style shows, the hair and not the costumes were the points upon which attention was fixed.

During the first of the demonstration, the girls, in evening gowns, were coiffured properly, those coiffures which fashion is dictating for the present mode. After modeling for some minutes, the girls were shown in their straight, shingle, or boyish bobs to illustrate graphically that the bob is not the correct coiffure for evening clothes. They were then made up again.

In fashion circles, the hair is being done up for evening and in the smartest places, even as far west as Kansas City it is no longer worn with sport clothes. "Bobs is bobs," however, and one can't make a French twist out of the wisps of hair left on most feminine heads today. Bobs must have aid before they can grow into curls and braids and twists.

Eight methods by which a bob may be changed for evening use were shown at the beauty demonstration.

The transformation is a new head of hair, long, softly waved, natural appearing. It is expensive but it does permit a woman to have a psyche knot in the evening and a Dutch cut in the morning It is fastened on by the old familiar hook and eye. A grey transformation, softly blended gray and white hair, was shown as especially adaptable for a French twist

The Bobbie braid, the latest arrangement for evening to camouflage a shingle, is a thick fat braid, ending in a couple of round buns for the ears The bobbed hair is drawn back in front, caught under the buns, and the braid pinned over the bob. A bandeaux swirl is a loose switch swathed around the head tightly and completely covering the under hair.

For those who must have bobs and whose hair is thin, there's a transparent bob wig, marcelled, bobbed, already to slip on like a baby bonnet. Other methods shown were the combination switch with Grecian curls dangling coquettishly over the ears, Gloria Swanson braids, and sixteenth century curls.

A Dolphin dance and a jazz dance was given by Miss Madeline Brown and Miss Pearl Swenson. Frank Salantay, vice president of the Nebraska State association of Hairdressers and Cosmetologists spoke briefly to the spectators and later at great length to the professionals in the audience.

STEINWAY

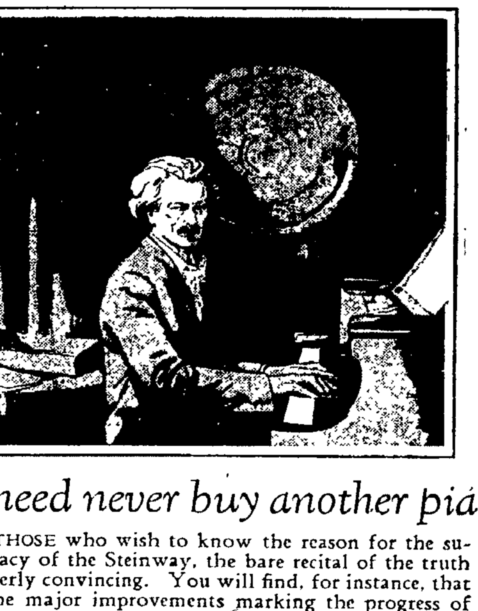
[IGNACE PADEREWSKI AT HIS STEINWAY]



You need never buy another piano

TO THOSE who wish to know the reason for the supremacy of the Steinway, the bare recital of the truth is utterly convincing. You will find, for instance, that all the major improvements marking the progress of the piano were originated, and were brought to perfection, in the Steinway workshops. You will discover that five years and eleven months of painstaking preparation and workmanship is required to build a Steinway piano. You will find that literally scores of the most famous pianists in the musical world not only use the Steinway on the concert stage, but in their homes: subjecting them, day after day and year after year, to the most strenuous practice.

And afterward, when you are seated at any one of the many Steinway models . . . try the beautiful liquid treble, crystal clear . . . sense the rolling sonority of the bass . . . touch the middle section and set the singing, golden mezzo tones floating. . . . Then, if you are a really careful and logical buyer, you become the owner of the Steinway.

Any new Steinway may be purchased with a small cash deposit, and the balance will be extended over a period of two years. *Used pianos accepted in partial exchange.

Prices: $ 875 and up

Registration for the second term will begin Monday, November 10.

Irma Croft and Helen Hille, both students of the schools, gave a short program at the dinner given by the Brotherhood of the Grace M. E. church Wednesday.

The first of the regular Wednesday afternoon recitals for this year will be held in the corridors of the School October 29.

Dean John M. Rosborough was a visitor in Northfield, Minnesota last week where he was a guest of F. M. Christiansen, director of the St. Olaf choir.

Student members of the Mu Phi Epsilon sorority gave a program for Community Night at the church in College View Friday evening.

"Want a little tonic for the blues? Take a dose of American jazz, but the size of the dose for the aesthetically inclined should not exceed one hour.'

This is what Isa Kremer has to say about American jazz and her prescription for the blues. The well known Russian singer continued:

"Your American jazz is good for the soul! I recommend it to anyone suffering from melancholy. I get quite a kick out of it myself, but only for an hour, after that it gets on my nerves, I get fed up and bored with it.

"When I was in Europe I found the people over there, in order to forget their miseries, had taken to jazz as some Americans do to drink. Colored jazz singers were quite the rage wherever I went. While they cannot get real Negroes, they get black-faced comedians, or anybody who can pass an imitation of an American Nebro. The craze has run through all classes, jazz from morning to night. And that is what jazz amounts to, it is a drug, that's all, and not harmful unless taken in large doses. One hour is enough for anyone, beyond that the effect is dangerous."

The British Broadcasting company is arranging a further series of concerts this season, and this year the company is taking Covent Garden from which to broadcast them. The concerts will be open to the regular public, prices of seats being particularly small. The first concert will take place on December 10, other dates being January 15 and February 12; details of concerts which will take place in March, April and May, are not yet arranged. The conductors already engaged include Bruno Walter, Pierre Monteux, Ernest Ansermet and Marinuzzi. Leading artists will appear at each concert.

Most successful of the seven seasons of open-air orchestral concerts at the stadium of the City College in New York is that which has just come to a close. Audiences of 10,000 and over, exhausting the capacity of the big stone and concrete amphitheatre and the field seats, have not been infrequent, and programs of a high order have been the rule.

The 105 players were the men of the New York Philharmonic orchestra and they were led by Willem van Hoogstraten, one of the orchestra's regular conductors, with guest conductors in the persons of Fritz Reiner, director of the Cincinnati orchestra, and Arnold Volpe, under whose baton the stadium concerts originally began. A fine new, portable band stand costing $15,000 and equipped with the best acoustics for outdoor music, together with a fairly steady run of good weather, were contributing factors to the success of the series.

Perhaps the most noteworthy feature of the season was the public response to the presentation of Beethoven's Ninth symphony, with augmented orchestra and chorus of 200 more than 21,000 persons heard the two performances of this work, and hundreds were turned away from the first one.

On the closing night a request program was given, the numbers chosen indicating the high standards of taste of the New York masses, for it is the so-called masses which are the main element in the audiences. The votes for the selections were cast by those attending the concerts of an earlier week, and thousands of ballots were turned in. Tschaikowsky's "Pathetic" symphony received more votes than any other symphony, with Beethoven's Fifth a close second. "Die Meistersinger" proved to be the favorite overture, and Liszt's "Les Preludes" led the symphonic poems. Johann Strauss' "Blue Danube Waltz" was included in the program as the best loved miscellaneous work. Besides such well tried works, thirty novel were greeted favorably by the public.

An innovation was introduced in the annual scheme of auditions for the choice of soloists. The awards to the successful competitors were first, an appearance with the stadium orchestra and then prizes of a size varying according to the degree of favor they met with the auditors. The five young men and women who received the coveted honor were presented in a single concert, with the audience as judge of their merits. The two ranking highest in public approval were Ignace Hilsberg, pianist, and Miron Poliakin, violinist. As prize winners they will be presented in New York recitals under the auspices of the Stadium Concerts committee. The three others received cash awards.

The chairman of the stadium series is Mrs. Charles S. Guggenheimer, and the honorary chairman Adolph Lewisohn, donor of the Stadium. The manager is Arthur Judson.

Well, well, well! There is nothing so new about music after all. Prof. Curt Sachs, of the University of Berlin, has just translated, so to say, a popular song of Babylon, which he calculates to be about 3,000 years old. It is recorded on a plate from Assur, and the lyric is still there, too. The tune sticks to a five-tone scale without half tones, according to the professor, and the accompaniment was played on an eighteen-stringed harp, with double stops used—whatever that may mean on a harp. The only thing that was lacking is the name of the piece and its authors and a statement as to whether or not it was copyrighted for all foreign countries, including the Scandinavian. Our guess is, that further study will show that this gaysome lyric of antiquity is entitled Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin, words by Nebuchadnezzar, music by Belshazzar, copyright 2018 B. C. by the Tower Publishing Company, Babel. —Musical Courier.

Vlado Kolitsch, a young Croatian violinist, who hails from the little town of Zagreb, arrived in New York recently and will be heard in the metropolis in January. Before playing here, he will tour Canada and other parts of the United States.

Kolitsch is a pupil of Vaclav Hulm of Prague, who, by the way, is a nephew of Milka Jernina, the singer so prominent at the Metropolitan Opera House some years ago. The young violinist brings to this country what is said to be the most famous of the Stainer violins. It was loaned the youth by the well known Lobkowicz family, whose castle at Roudnice, near Prague, is considered one of the show places in Central Europe. For centuries the Lobkowicz family have been great collectors of valuable manuscripts. In its library are many of the original manuscripts of Mozart, Haydn, Beethoven, and other famous composers, besides original copies of rare books. The family has numerous old violins and other musical instruments. The Strainer was given the family by the maker more than one hundred years before the time of Mozart, and was loaned to Bozart during his sojourn in Prague. When the composer returned it, Prince Leopold Lobkowicz gave Mozart another Stainer violin, which is now at the composer's birthplace in Salsburg.

Kolitsch has also brought with him a rare eighteenth century spinet, to be used for the Mozart works that will appear on his programs.

The real Cinderella of musical instruments is the beautiful but neglected viola. When you are tempted to use "second fiddle" as a figure of speech, say instead "viola." It is more to the point and has the advantage of being terse. (Of course, in the orchestra family the two are not synonymous.)

"In orchestration the old masters did not appreciate the possibilities of the viola," explains Carlton Cooley of the Cleveland Institute of Music. "They used it as a subordinate voice, as an instrument to finish a phrase, or sound at last note for the sake of harmony. However, the classicists gave this instrument some of its just due in writing chamber music. Some very lovely viola literature is contained in compositions for string quartets.

"Now more and more composers are glimpsing its potentialities. They have found in it a new color for the musical spectrum. Some of the modern English composers, among them Arnold Bax and York Bowen, are using it to gain warm, gracious effects they could secure on no other instrument. Our own Ernest Bloch (director of the Cleveland Institute) gained a measure of his immediate American recognition through his Suite for Viola and Piano, which was awarded the Coolidge prize in 1919.

"I am confident that the viola is on the brink of great popularity. As the new music shows its solo quality, musicians will be attracted to it rather than to the violin. The viola is the contralto of the strings. Because it has not the brilliancy nor the spectacular appeal of the high pitched soprano it has so far languished in semi-oblivion. With beautiful music written for it, its subtle beauty cannot help but win its appreciative audiences."

"Ravinia is the ideal place for summer opera," declared Merle Alcock, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, returning to her home in New York from a season of ten weeks with the Ravinia Park Opera Company. "Moreover, Ravinia Park is the ideal place for a summer vacation.

"People told me before I went out there that I would return home tired and worn out. They told me I was trying to do too much, with my operatic work at the Metropolitan and my heavy concert season, but I feel freshed, and I feel that the experience in stage work, which was one of the things I went out there for, has been invaluable to me.

"Mr. Eckstein is doing wonderful things for Americans and American artists. For the thing it gives, Ravina Park be unique, and I don't think it can be duplicated anywhere.

"First of all, it is a lovely park and a beautiful place to rest. The cool lake breezes do not make working a hardship. I stayed at the Moraine Hotel and had rooms overlooking the lake. It was only a short distance from the park and I don't know when I have spent such a splendid summer. Although I sang twenty-four times in the ten weeks, I am not tired, and I am more ready for my autumn concert and operatic work than I would have been if I had spent the summer doing nothing at all."

The season at Ravinia Park practically completes for Miss Alcock her first year in opera. Miss Alcock made her operatic debut last November at the Metropolitan as Beppe in L'Amico Fritz, and in the past year she has appeared in nineteen different roles, besides learning other roles and carrying on extensive concert work. This is a record for one year that is unique in the annals of concert singers who have just entered operatic work and carry it on with triumphant success in addition to recital and oratorio activities.

At Ravinia Park Miss Alcock appeared in such roles as Lola, Maddelena, as the Mother in the Tales of Hoffman, Suzuki, Rosette, Mallika, Ortrud, Beppe, as The Countess in Andrea Chenier, Madelon, and she also appeared four times as soloist in the Monday evening concerts, besides several minor roles.

"One of the things which made me feel so much at home out there was the fact that the orchestral conductors and most of the singers and stage directors came from the Metropolitan," added Miss Alcock. "They were all very kind to me, and it certainly was a wonderful experience and a splendid place to spend the summer."

Lincoln Women Learned About Beauty From Madame Louise Tuesday At First Show Held Here

They learned about beauty from Madame Louise last week.

The Giffen, Harper, and Marinello beauty shops brought the Frenchwoman, who has studied the beauty of women for many years. Seven or eight hundred women found out the most becoming coifure, the newest modernities in hair dressings, the latest fads of fashion for applying the boxed bloom of youth, of manicuring, of fixing the eyebrows, through her Lincoln demonstration.

"The most important event of her local visit was the beauty style show, held at the Lincoln hotel Tuesday evening. The affair was arranged under the direction of Mrs. Edith Belle Lewis, owner of the three shops. It was the first style show of the kind ever given in Lincoln.

There was a definite idea behond the beauty show.

Women are more active than they used to be and the dash and the buzz of life is telling on them and beauty aids are needed as they were never were before. Business, golf, motoring—all take their toll of woman's beauty and she needs something to counteract the effects of prairie winds, sumer suns, long hours at the desk or typewriter.

Life is one grand rush after another and there's always danger that a woman will be careless of her appearance. In the rush to get another on the wire before the time clock rings, in her eagerness to meet a tea appointment on the stroke of the hour, she may neglect some of the finer touches—smear the rouge a little too thickly, have the eyelash beads a little rotund, prepare the cupid's bow for too perfect and much too vivid.

That gilding the lily is a delicate art was the lesson behind the beauty style show. That every woman can stand a little improvement on nature and that the improvement must be done with care and tact, was learned by hundreds of women at the beauty demonstration.

The show didn't consist of a long and theoretical discussion on beauty. Beauty grew and blossomed before the eyes of the spectators. Where there had been no beauty, beauty suddenly appeared.

The show opened with a playette, "The Blooming of a Rose.' Betty Webster was the society matron, Frances McChesney was Rose, the country, E. Hart Jenks, the husband, and Arline Lewis, the maid. The play depicted the change in appearance, poise, and grace of manner of Rose as she learned to make the most of her appearance and to make artificial beauty her servant.

The evening and the show centered about living models, under the direction of Madam Louise. Eight girls who demonstrated that it is quite as necessary to have certain types of hair dressing for evening as it is to have the proper gowns and shoes and wraps. Unlike most style shows, the hair and not the costumes were the points upon which attention was fixed.

During the first of the demonstration, the girls, in evening gowns, were coiffured properly, those coiffures which fashion is dictating for the present mode. After modeling for some minutes, the girls were shown in their straight, shingle, or boyish bobs to illustrate graphically that the bob is not the correct coiffure for evening clothes. They were then made up again.

In fashion circles, the hair is being done up for evening and in the smartest places, even as far west as Kansas City it is no longer worn with sport clothes. "Bobs is bobs," however, and one can't make a French twist out of the wisps of hair left on most feminine heads today. Bobs must have aid before they can grow into curls and braids and twists.

Eight methods by which a bob may be changed for evening use were shown at the beauty demonstration.

The transformation is a new head of hair, long, softly waved, natural appearing. It is expensive but it does permit a woman to have a psyche knot in the evening and a Dutch cut in the morning. It is fastened on by the old familiar hook and eye. A grey transformation, softly blended gray and white hair, was shown as especially adaptable for a French twist.

The Bobbie braid, the latest arrangement for evening to camouflage a shingle, is a thick fat braid, ending in a couple of round buns for the ears. The bobbed hair is drawn back in front, caught under the buns, and the braid pinned over the bob. A bandeaux swirl is a loose switch swathed around the head tightly and completely covering the under hair.

For those who must have bobs and whose hair is thin, there's a transparent bob wig, marcelled, bobbed, already to slip on like a baby bonnet. Other methods shown were the combination switch with Grecian curls dangling coquettishly over the ears, Gloria Swanson braids, and sixteenth century curls.

A Dolphin dance and a jazz dance was given by Miss Madeline Brown and Miss Pearl Swenson. Frank Salantay, vice president of the Nebraska State association of Hairdressers and Cosmetologists, spoke briefly to the spectators and later at great length to the professionals in the audience.

STEINWAY

You need never buy another piano

TO THOSE who wish to know the reason for the supremacy of the Steinway, the bare recital of the truth is utterly convincing. You will find, for instance, that all the major improvements marking the progress of the piano were originated, and were brought to perfection, in the Steinway workshops. You will discover that five years and eleven months of painstaking preparation and workmanship is required to build a Steinway piano. You will find that literally scores of the most famous pianists in the musical world not only use the Steinway on the concert stage, but in their homes; subjecting them, day after day and year after year, to the most strenuous practice.

And afterward, when you are seated at any one of the many Steinway models . . . try the beautiful liquid treble, crystal clear . . . sense the rolling sonority of the bass . . . touch the middle section and set the singing, golden mezzo tones floating. . . . Then, if you are a really careful and logical buyer, you become the owner of the Steinway.

*Any new Steinway may be purchased with a small cash deposit, and the balance will be extended over a period of two years. Used pianos accepted in partial exchange.

Prices: $ 875 and up

The most recent of William A. Brady's offerings, a dramatization of the famous Robert Kaeble novel, "Simon Called Peter," will be presented at the Orpheum theater, Thursday, October 30.

Litle did Mr. Brady know the obstacles that he would be forced to overcome when he decided on the production of "Simon Called Peter." There were several managers after the rights of this famous novel and he had to bid a little higher than the rest of them if he really wanted it—and when Brady is after a thing it is a known fact that he generally gets it. He secured the rights. The next thing to do was to get some one to dramatize the novel. After much eliminating he selected Jules Eckert Goodman and Edward Knoblock, both well-known playwrights, who have succeeded admirably in the dramatization. Seats now on sale.

ANSWERS TO Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—There is a man whom I have never seen anything about in your department, and yet in my estimation he is one of the best character actors on the screen. It is William V. Mong. I have seen him many times in many pictures, and he has always played the role he had in a most satisfactory manner. Will you tell me all you can about him, and give me his address? THANK YOU.

Mr. Mong does seem to have been sadly neglected in my columns, but it was not intentional, I'm sure. He is one of our best character actors. Mr. Mong was born in Chambersburg, Pa., forty-nine years ago, and started his stage career with Newton Beers in "Lost in London." He is a writer as well as an actor, and played in vaudeville in his own plays, "The Clay Baker," "The House Next Door," and "The Light in the Window." He started his screen career as scenerio editor for Essanay and Selig. He later directed and acted for Universal. He has played in such pictures as "Burning Daylight," "Mutink of the Elsinore," "Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," "Ladies Must Live," and many other pictures of equal importance. He is five feet nine inches tall and he weighs 140. His hair and eyes are brown, and you may write him at Your Duroc Farm, Whittier, Calif.

Dear Movie Editor—Tell me, please, did not Nazimova make "Revelation" several years ago? What company was she with at that time. Please give me the cast of the picture with Viola Dana in the leading role. I would also like to have the cast for "America" if you have it. I expect to see the picture sometime in the near future, and want to be prepared to know who the leading characters are. So often they are flashed on and off so quickly that I don't half get through before they are gone and I don't know who half of them are. I will be deeply indebted to you for the information above. ELEANOR.

Yes, Nazimova was featured in "Revelation" for Metro about eight years ago. The cast of the Dana version of the drama is "Joline Hofer," Viola Dana; "Paul Granville," Monte Blue; "Mlle. Brevoort," Marjorie Daw; "Count De Roche," Lew Cody; "The Prior," Frank Currior; "Augustin," Edward Connelly; "Madonna," Kathleen Key; "Mms. Hofer," Ethel Wales; "Hofer," George Siegmann; "Du Clos," Otto Matiesen; "Jean Hofer," Bruce Guerin.

Dear Movie Editor—I just hate to have to bother you so often, but I have so many questions to ask about the movies that I just can't help it. I wait just as long as I can before writing, and then I begin to overflow with curiosity, and I just can't wait any longer. I'll try not to make a nuisance of myself today, however, and maybe you will forgive me for writing so often.

What is Jack Holt's next picture? I just love that man. I hope he has an outdoor role again, because that is what he is best in. I think he is just adorable in hiking togs. Is he married, and if so to whom? His wife must be proud of him, because he is the best looking man.

Does Marian Davies have bobbed hair? What is her latest release? Is that her real name? I have heard that she is said to be one of the most beautiful blondes in America, but I'll have to confess I don't see where they get it. I've seen lots of blondes that I thought were just as good looking as she is.

What is Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.'s next picture after "Stephen Steps Out?" Why has it never been in Lincoln? I thought he was a charming youngster. Very much like his father, but better loking.

Well, I promised not to write too much today, so I think I had better ring off. As before, I am a QUESTION MARK.

I'm perfectly willing to be bothered as often as you care to write. Jack Holt is making "North of 36." It's another out-in-the-open picture. He is married to a nonprofesional, and they have three little Holts.

Marion's hair is bobbed. She had it cut very short when she was making "Little Old New York." She recently released "Janice Meredith." Douras is her real name.

We haven't seen Douglas Jr. since "Stephen Steps Out," because "Douglas stepped out" after having made the one picture. He is returning to the silver sheet about the first of November. The title of his first picture has not yet been announced, but it will be an American boy story.

Screen Siftings

Two Hollywood Marriages—Two marriages of importance in Hollywood last week were those of James Cruze and Betty Compson, and Kenneth Harlan and Marie Prevost. All of the parties involved have been through the mill before, except Miss Compson. James Cruze is divorced from Marguerite Snow. Kenneth Harlan's first wife was Flo Hart, a Ziegfeld Follies girl, and Marie Prevost just recently secured a divorce from her former husband "Sonny" Gerke.

Death of Kate Lester—Kate Lester, the "Grand Dame" of the films, died recently as the result of burns in an explosion of unknown origin in her dressing room at Universal Studio. Miss Lester in private life was Mrs. Sarah Cody, and was known as a stage beauty a generation ago.

A Traveling Bungalow—Reginald Denny, Universal star, is travelling around in a complete bungalow on wheels these days. The bungalow was built at Universal City at a cost of $20,000 and contains everything from a piano to a bath tub. It is drawn by a high powered roadster and is a "set" built for the filming of Mr. Denny's latest picture, "California Straight Ahead," a tale by Byron Morgan. The open road will be the locale of the picture which Harry Pollard is directing.

A Changed Milla—Veteran playgoers, who remember Milla Davenport, once known as the shapeliest woman in vaudeville, will have difficulty in recognizing her in the fat, Dutch cook of "So Big," which Colleen Moore is making for First National Pictures.

Picture Shows Forest Fire—Many of the scenes in the sequence of "The Lost World," the screen version of Conan Doyle's story, were taken during the forest fires in California, which authorities claim cost the people of that state at least $10,000,000. The forest fire scene in the sequence of the picture is supposed to have been started through a volcanic eruption, and it drives more than thirty species of prehistoric dinosaurs from their lairs. The pictrue is being made under the direction of Watterson Rothacker.

Replaces Miss Ferguson—Frances Howard has been chosen to replace Elsie Ferguson in "The Swan," which Paramount is producing. Miss Ferguson left the production after seeing the rushes of her first week's work. Dimitri Buckowitzki is directing. Miss Howard is a Jesse Lasky "find," nineteen years ol dand a beauty. It will be her first role before the camera, although she has been on the legitimate stage for five years.

Takes Leading Part—Robert Frazer, who has come forward in the leading man ranks with great strides during the past year, has been chosen to play the leading masculine role in "Judgment," which Frank Lloyd has just started. Mr. Frazer will have the role of a young business man of wealth and social position in the picture.

To Visit Family—Alice Joyce has finished work on her current Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture and has gone to New York to visit her family. She will return to Hollywood later to play the leading role in the picturization of the noted stage play, "Daddy Goes a Hunting," which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will produce.

COMEDY HEADS THEATRE MENU FOR NEW YORK

Brett Page Does Not Try to Classify Types of Humor Staged.

"The Farmer's Wife" Billed at Comedy Theatre is a New Kind.

BY BRETT PAGE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25. — Comedy heads the theatrical menu of Broadway comedies of various kinds. So many are the varieties that those who crowd the lobbies during intermissions, make them ring with earnest debate as to which particular division each new comedy belongs.

"High comedy," "pure comedy," "comedy with a tinge of farce," "farce comedy," "mere silliness," "just fun," "burlesque"—these are only a few of the efforts at exact definition. But, after all, the laughter of the audience is the best defining expression of each new offering. So I shall report as Broadways bouquet of comedies today without attempting to give definitions with which you might not agree after you have witnessed the plays yourself.

There is "The Farmer's Wife," for instance, in which Lee Shuberet presents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coburn at the Comedy theater. Written by Eden Philpotts in his very best Devonshire dialect, "The Farmer's Wife" presents a picture of English country characters in laugh provoking situations, and the characters, themselves, are charming as well as funny.

Mr. Coburn plays a Devon squire who has long been a widower. His two daughters are being wooed by two young men who have difficulty in expressing their love. One — a veritable bumpkin — unexpectedly falls heir to "a pot of money" while the other has only his good looks and engaging manners to recommend him. While the young couples are engaged in finding each other and asking each other the fatal questions, the squire decides that he cannot live alone after they have left the big house, so he starts out to find a wife for himself.

Down the list of the eligible ladies of his acquaintance, the squire works his way. Proposing to each in turn, the squire is astounded at being refused by everyone he thought would leap at the chance to become his wife. And then, suddenly, the squire's eyes are opened. In the fine woman who has kept his house ever since his good wife died, the squire realizes lies his hope of idea happiness. She accepts him and then one by one the others he has asked, change their minds — but he will have none of them now. And down comes the curtain on the happy matings of the squire and his charming daughters.

Cast in far different mold from that to which we are accustomed, "The Farmer's Wife" evoked chuckles, laughter, unrestrained roars of delight from the audience the night I saw the play. Not the least of the credit must be given the fine playing of Mr. and Mrs. Coburn and the almost perfect cast with which Mr. Shubert has surrounded them. Chief among the Coburn support are Walter Edwin, who plays a man servant unctuously, and Roselind Puller and Violet Blythe, who pleasingly play the squire's daughters.

Blaze of Comedy Glory.

The theater guild has begun its season at the Gerrick theater in a blaze of comedy glory with "The Guardsmen," by Frenz Molner. But it is not to Molner so much as to the deft staging of the play by Phillip Moeller, and the fine playing of Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne, Dudley Digges, Helen Westley and their aids, that the success of this comedy is due.

Yet within the theme itself lies the germ of the success of "The Guardsmen." An actor has been married to an actress for less than three months, but even as the first curtain rises, the seeds of discord are vociferously sown. He fears that she is weary of him, not because they continuously quarrel, but because it is May and she will persist in playing Chopin. "Ah" his prophetic soul wails. "This is indisputable evidence that she is hungering for love!"

To an old friend of theirs, a critic, the actor discloses that he is taking no chances. He has sent her flowers. He has written her notes of admiration of her art and of her lovely self. But he has been wise. He has not sent them as coming from him. Ah, no! He has figured out that the type of men for which her heart yearns is a Russian guardsman. This hour is to demonstrate whether she really loves him, her husband, or another, this guardsmen. For he—the great actor—is to call upon her by appointment, acting the guardsman of her dreams.

The struggle between the husband, as the husband, and the husband playing the guardsman, is inevitable in its involved fun. Even at the final curtain the audience does not know—it can only guess—whether the wife has recognized her husband acting the role of the guardsman. And here lies another cause of strife. If she does recognize him, ah, then his heart is broken because he is not as great an actor as he has believed himself. And so the last curtain falls on the same note of strife on which the first curtain rose.

Yes, "The Guardsman" is artirficial, but it is great art as Alfred Lunt plays the actor, Lynn Fontanne plays the actress, Dudley Digges plays the critic and Helen Westley plays a stage name. Chuckles and burst of surprised and delighted laughter punctuated this comedy as its nuences were sensed by the appreciative audience.

"A domestic farcical comedy" far different in every way from those we have so far considered, is "The Busybody" which George Choos brought to the Bijou theater and now is offering at the Times Square theater. Yes, a quick change of theaters indeed.

"The Busybody"—written by Dorrence Davis, has a laugh, if my ears are to be trusted, in nearly every line and certainly in every situation. It is one of those comedies that strive for laughter so hard that character development and logic of situation are thrown away or tossed in the air, to win the

It would be far too difficult a task for me to attempt to give you a clear idea of the plot of "The Busybody"—it is strangely involved. It is only necessary to say that the night I saw its curious story unfold, the audience alternately roared its delight and gazed in surprise, silent wonder. Those standbys, Ada Lewis and Josephine Drake, do yeoman work in winning the tribute of laughter.

Rida Johnson Young, as playwright, and James Forbes, as director are a combination that is hard to equal in our theaters. The Dramatic theater, inc.—the dramatists are taking their turn just as the actors are taking theirs in The Actors' theater obviously believed this, for they are sponsoring "Cock O' the Roost" at the Liberty theater.

Into the home of a hack writer strolls a youth who looks at the detective stories the author pounds out, gazes at the near-luxury in which the penman and his family live and in effect exclaims:

The trouble with this family is the same thing that troubles every other struggling family—fear! Banish fear and succes will come in golden measure!"

Whereupon the youth — fondly gazing at the lovely daughter of the family—proceeds to banish fear from the house. He arranges that the author shall stop his hack writing and devote a year to the writing of his long-delayed masterpiece. He changes nearly everything else and everyone else in that house, performs the miracle of moving them to another house, and then he gasps and chokes and stammers with fear as he strives to summon courage to propose to the girl. It is father who rushes to the rescue so that the first curtain may descend on happiness for all.

Rather a slim story, isn't it? But it is not lean in the playing "Cock O' the Roost" may not be a great comedy, but it is a chuckleful production as it is played with careful attention to every detail that makes for laughter. Donald Foster as the foe of fear, is a joy. Henry Lavenport plays the author-father engagingly. Elizabeth Risdon, in a role unusual to her, that of a fluffy mother, is pleasing. While the daughter is convincingly played by Sylvia Field. The rest of the cast are well-matched with these premier players.

Upon the pleasing personality and the sense of comedy of Margaret Lawrence, rests the success of "In His Arms," Lynn Sterling's new comedy which Sam H. Harris has brought to the Fulton theater. Here is a play that does not depend for success upon carefully built-up moments of tensely funny situations, but upon a daring idea and lines that are clever.

She bounces up into an engagement with a man she does not love. A A few days before they are to be married, she meets and falls desperately in love with a third young man. He it is who conceives the daring idea of stealing her from her bridegroom-to-be even as the wedding march is being played. And steal her he does to her vast relief and delight.

On the stage practically every minute of the three acts, Margaret Lawrence carries the comedy ts success. Her best aids are Geoffrey Kerr as the fiance left to march to the altar alone, Vernon Steele as her daringly successful lover, and Edna May Oliver and Cornelia, Otis Skinner — yes, the daughter of Otis Skinner—in minor roles.

Here, then, within the space of a few days we have on Broadway five new comedies of very different kinds. I have not, as I promised complicated matters by attempting to define each exactly. But they present comedy fare for every lover of laughter, and some of them will leave Broadway—soon or late—for tours that in one or two instances should extend from coast to coast.

Returns To Pacific Coast—Corinne Griffith, who left Hollywood for New York immediately after completing "Wilderness," where she expected to make "DeClasse" has changed her mind and expects to return to the Pacific coast this week. She has decided to make "DeClasse" in Hollywood and will start work early in November.

There were several managers after the rights of this famous novel and he had to bid a little higher than the rest of them if he really wanted it—and when Brady is after a thing it is a known fact that he generally gets it. Dear Movie Editor—Tell me, please, did not Nazimova make "Revelation" several years ago? What company was she with at that time. Please give me the cast of the picture with Viola Dana in the leading role. I would also like to have the cast for "America" if you have it. I expect to see the picture sometime in the near future, and want to be prepared to know who the leading characters are, so often they are flashed on and off so quickly that I don't half get through before they are gone and I don't know who half of them are. I will be deeply indebted to you for the information above. ELEANOR.

Dear Movie Editor—I just hate to have to bother you so often, but I have so many questions to ask about the movies that I just can't help it. I wait just as long as I can before writing, and then I begin to overflow with curiosity, and I just can't wait any longer. I'll try not to make a nuisance of myself today, however, and maybe you will forgive me for writing so often.

What is Jack Holt's next picture? I just love that man. I hope he has an outdoor role again, because that is what he is best in. I think he is just adorable in hiking togs. Is he married, and if so to whom? His wife must be proud of him, because he is the best looking man.

Does Marian Davies have bobbed hair? What is her latest release? Is that her real name? I have heard that she is said to be one of the most beautiful blondes in America, but I'll have to confess I don't see where they get it. I've seen lots of blondes that I thought were just as good looking as she is.

What is Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.'s next picture after "Stephen Steps Out?" Why has it never been in Lincoln? I thought he was a charming youngster. Very much like his father, but better loking.

Well, I promised not to write too much today, so I think I had better ring off. As before, I am a QUESTION MARK.

I'm perfectly willing to be bothered as often as you care to write. Jack Holt is making "North of 36." It's another out-in-the-open picture. He is married to a nonprofesional, and they have three little Holts.

Marion's hair is bobbed. She had it cut very short when she was making "Little Old New York." She recently released "Janice Meredith." Douras is her real name.

We haven't seen Douglas Jr. since "Stephen Steps Out," because "Douglas stepped out" after having made the one picture. He is returning to the silver sheet about the first of November. The title of his first picture has not yet been announced, but it will be an American boy story.

Screen Siftings

Two Hollywood Marriages—Two marriages of importance in Hollywood last week were those of James Cruze and Betty Compson, and Kenneth Harlan and Marie Prevost. All of the parties involved have been through the mill before, except Miss Compson. James Cruze is divorced from Marguerite Snow. Kenneth Harlan's first wife was Flo Hart, a Ziegfeld Follies girl, and Marie Prevost just recently secured a divorce from her former husband "Sonny" Gerke.

Death of Kate Lester—Kate Lester, the "Grand Dame" of the films, died recently as the result of burns in an explosion of unknown origin in her dressing room at Universal Studio. Miss Lester in private life was Mrs. Sarah Cody, and was known as a stage beauty a generation ago.

A Traveling Bungalow—Reginald Denny, Universal star, is travelling around in a complete bungalow on wheels these days. The bungalow was built at Universal City at a cost of $20,000 and contains everything from a piano to a bath tub. It is drawn by a high powered roadster and is a "set" built for the filming of Mr. Denny's latest picture, "California Straight Ahead," a tale by Byron Morgan. The open road will be the locale of the picture which Harry Pollard is directing.

A Changed Milla—Veteran playgoers, who remember Milla Davenport, once known as the shapeliest woman in vaudeville, will have difficulty in recognizing her in the fat, Dutch cook of "So Big," which Colleen Moore is making for First National Pictures.

Picture Shows Forest Fire—Many of the scenes in the sequence of "The Lost World," the screen version of Conan Doyle's story, were taken during the forest fires in California, which authorities claim cost the people of that state at least $10,000,000. The forest fire scene in the sequence of the picture is supposed to have been started through a volcanic eruption, and it drives more than thirty species of prehistoric dinosaurs from their lairs. The pictrue is being made under the direction of Watterson Rothacker.

Replaces Miss Ferguson—Frances Howard has been chosen to replace Elsie Ferguson in "The Swan," which Paramount is producing. Miss Ferguson left the production after seeing the rushes of her first week's work. Dimitri Buckowitzki is directing. Miss Howard is a Jesse Lasky "find," nineteen years ol dand a beauty. It will be her first role before the camera, although she has been on the legitimate stage for five years.

Takes Leading Part—Robert Frazer, who has come forward in the leading man ranks with great strides during the past year, has been chosen to play the leading masculine role in "Judgment," which Frank Lloyd has just started. Mr. Frazer will have the role of a young business man of wealth and social position in the picture.

To Visit Family—Alice Joyce has finished work on her current Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture and has gone to New York to visit her family. She will return to Hollywood later to play the leading role in the picturization of the noted stage play, "Daddy Goes a Hunting," which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will produce.

COMEDY HEADS THEATRE MENU FOR NEW YORK

Brett Page Does Not Try to Classify Types of Humor Staged.

"The Farmer's Wife" Billed at Comedy Theatre is a New Kind.

BY BRETT PAGE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25. — Comedy heads the theatrical menu of Broadway comedies of various kinds. So many are the varieties that those who crowd the lobbies during intermissions, make them ring with earnest debate as to which particular division each new comedy belongs.

"High comedy," "pure comedy," "comedy with a tinge of farce," "farce comedy," " mere silliness," "just fun," "burlesque"—these are only a few of the efforts at exact definition. But, after all, the laughter of the audience is the best defining expression of each new offering. So I shall report as Broadways bouquet of comedies today without attempting to give definitions with which you might not agree after you have witnessed the plays yourself.

There is "The Farmer's Wife," for instance, in which Lee Shuberet presents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coburn at the Comedy theater. Written by Eden Philpotts in his very best Devonshire dialect, "The Farmer's Wife" presents a picture of English country characters in laugh provoking situations, and the characters, themselves, are charming as well as funny.

Mr. Coburn plays a Devon squire who has long been a widower. His two daughters are being wooed by two young men who have difficulty in expressing their love. One — a veritable bumpkin — unexpectedly falls heir to "a pot of money" while the other has only his good looks and engaging manners to recommend him. While the young couples are engaged in finding each other and asking each other the fatal questions, the squire decides that he cannot live alone after they have left the big house, so he starts out to find a wife for himself.

Down the list of the eligible ladies of his acquaintance, the squire works his way. Proposing to each in turn, the squire is astounded at being refused by everyone he thought would leap at the chance to become his wife. And then, suddenly, the squire's eyes are opened. In the fine woman who has kept his house ever since his good wife died, the squire realizes lies his hope of idea happiness. She accepts him and then one by one the others he has asked, change their minds — but he will have none of them now. And down comes the curtain on the happy matings of the squire and his charming daughters.

Cast in far different mold from that to which we are accustomed, "The Farmer's Wife" evoked chuckles, laughter, unrestrained roars of delight from the audience the night I saw the play. Not the least of the credit must be given the fine playing of Mr. and Mrs. Coburn and the almost perfect cast with which Mr. Shubert has surrounded them. Chief among the Coburn support are Walter Edwin, who plays a man servant unctuously, and Roselind Puller and Violet Blythe, who pleasingly play the squire's daughters.

Blaze of Comedy Glory.

The theater guild has begun its season at the Gerrick theater in a blaze of comedy glory with "The Guardsmen," by Frenz Molner. But it is not to Molner so much as to the deft staging of the play by Phillip Moeller, and the fine playing of Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne, Dudley Digges, Helen Westley and their aids, that the success of this comedy is due.

Yet within the theme itself lies the germ of the success of "The Guardsmen." An actor has been married to an actress for less than three months, but even as the first curtain rises, the seeds of discord are vociferously sown. He fears that she is weary of him, not because they continuously quarrel, but because it is May and she will persist in playing Chopin. "Ah" his prophetic soul wails. "This is indisputable evidence that she is hungering for love!"

To an old friend of theirs, a critic, the actor discloses that he is taking no chances. He has sent her flowers. He has written her notes of admiration of her art and of her lovely self. But he has been wise. He has not sent them as coming from him. Ah, no! He has figured out that the type of men for which her heart yearns is a Russian guardsman. This hour is to demonstrate whether she really loves him, her husband, or another, this guardsmen. For he—the great actor—is to call upon her by appointment, acting the guardsman of her dreams.

The struggle between the husband, as the husband, and the husband playing the guardsman, is inevitable in its involved fun. Even at the final curtain the audience does not know—it can only guess—whether the wife has recognized her husband acting the role of the guardsman. And here lies another cause of strife. If she does recognize him, ah, then his heart is broken because he is not as great an actor as he has believed himself. And so the last curtain falls on the same note of strife on which the first curtain rose.

Yes, "The Guardsman" is artirficial, but it is great art as Alfred Lunt plays the actor, Lynn Fontanne plays the actress, Dudley Digges plays the critic and Helen Westley plays a stage name. Chuckles and burst of surprised and delighted laughter punctuated this comedy as its nuences were sensed by the appreciative audience.

"A domestic farcical comedy" far different in every way from those we have so far considered, is "The Busybody" which George Choos brought to the Bijou theater and now is offering at the Times Square theater. Yes, a quick change of theaters indeed.

"The Busybody"—written by Dorrence Davis, has a laugh, if my ears are to be trusted, in nearly every line and certainly in every situation. It is one of those comedies that strive for laughter so hard that character development and logic of situation are thrown away or tossed in the air, to win the

It would be far too difficult a task for me to attempt to give you a clear idea of the plot of "The Busybody"—it is strangely involved. It is only necessary to say that the night I saw its curious story unfold, the audience alternately roared its delight and gazed in surprise, silent wonder. Those standbys, Ada Lewis and Josephine Drake, do yeoman work in winning the tribute of laughter.

Rida Johnson Young, as playwright, and James Forbes, as director are a combination that is hard to equal in our theaters. The Dramatic theater, inc.—the dramatists are taking their turn just as the actors are taking theirs in The Actors' theater obviously believed this, for they are sponsoring "Cock O' the Roost" at the Liberty theater.

Into the home of a hack writer strolls a youth who looks at the detective stories the author pounds out, gazes at the near-luxury in which the penman and his family live and in effect exclaims:

"The trouble with this family is the same thing that troubles every other struggling family—fear! Banish fear and succes will come in golden measure!"

Whereupon the youth — fondly gazing at the lovely daughter of the family—proceeds to banish fear from the house. He arranges that the author shall stop his hack writing and devote a year to the writing of his long-delayed masterpiece. He changes nearly everything else and everyone else in that house, performs the miracle of moving them to another house, and then he gasps and chokes and stammers with fear as he strives to summon courage to propose to the girl. It is father who rushes to the rescue so that the first curtain may descend on happiness for all.

Rather a slim story, isn't it? But it is not lean in the playing "Cock O' the Roost" may not be a great comedy, but it is a chuckleful production as it is played with careful attention to every detail that makes for laughter. Donald Foster as the foe of fear, is a joy. Henry Lavenport plays the author-father engagingly. Elizabeth Risdon, in a rofe unusual to her, that of a fluffy mother, is pleasing. While the daughter is convincingly played by Sylvia Field. The rest of the cast are well-matched with these premier players.

Upon the pleasing personality and the sense of comedy of Margaret Lawrence, rests the success of "In His Arms," Lynn Sterling's new comedy which Sam H. Harris has brought to the Fulton theater. Here is a play that does not depend for success upon carefully built-up moments of tensely funny situations, but upon a daring idea and lines that are clever.

The heroine has recently been jilted by a young man she loved. tribute of a roar.

She bounces up into an engagement with a man she does not love. A A few days before they are to be married, she meets and falls desperately in love with a third young man. He it is who conceives the daring idea of stealing her from her bridegroom-to-be even as the wedding march is being played. And steal her he does to her vast relief and delight.

On the stage practically every minute of the three acts, Margaret Lawrence carries the comedy ts success. Her best aids are Geoffrey Kerr as the fiance left to march to the altar alone. Vernon Steele as her daringly successful lover, and Edna May Oliver and Cornelia, Otis Skinner — yes, the daughter of Otis Skinner—in minor roles.

Here, then, within the space of a few days we have on Broadway five new comedies of very different kinds. I have not, as I promised complicated matters by attempting to define each exactly. But they present comedy fare for every lover of laughter, and some of them will leave Broadway—soon or late—for tours that in one or two instances should extend from coast to coast.

Returns To Pacific Coast—Corinne Griffith, who left Hollywood for New York immediately after completing "Wilderness," where she expected to make "DeClasse" has changed her mind and expects to return to the Pacific coast this week. She has decided to make "DeClasse" in Hollywood and will start work early in November.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I haven't written to you for about six months, so I think it's time I bothered you again for a little while. Where is Harold Lloyd now? Isn't he making any more pictures? It seems like a long time since I saw him in one. What is the title of his latest and has it been released yet? Who plays the leading feminine role in it? Ho wold is Harold and where was he born? I always had heard that he was a Nebraska boy, but I had a friend who was here from San Diego, Calif., and she insists that he was born and raised there. Which is right, please?

Where is Walter Hiers now? I always thought he would take Fatty Arbuckle's place in the movies, but he doesn't seem to have put it over.

Please give me Raymond Griffith's address, and tell me what color hair and eyes he has.

What picture is Joseph Schildkraut making at the present time?

Is Betty Blythe married and if so to whom? She is a striking looking woman, and would make an ideal vamp in pictures. I should like to see her more often. How old is she? She must be about five eight or nine in height, isn't she?

Please tell me all you can about Mae Busch, including her age, where born, height, weight, color of hair and eyes, etc.

Hoping I have not taken up too much room in your mail today, I am Sincerely yours, BROWN-EYED VAMP.

"I'll have to shorten your leave of absence hereafter. Six months is a long time.

Harold Lloyd is working hard on a new picture. It's a football story, but the title has not yet been decided upon. Jobyna Ralston is again playing opposite him. Harold's latest release, "Hot Water," in which Jobyna also assisted him, is now being shown and is said to be the funniest he has made to date. Harold gives Nebraska all of the credit for his birth. He was raised around Pawnee City and Omaha, and started his stage career from Omaha. He does admit, however, that he received part of his education in San Diego.

Walter Hiers is working in what is said to be one of the best comedy roles he has ever played. It is in "Excuse Me," which Rupert Hughes is making for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Address Mr. Griffith in care of the Los Angeles Athletic Club. He has dark hair and hazel eyes.

Mr. Schildkraut is not playing in pictures just at present. He is starring in a stage play, "The Firebrand," at a New York theatre.

Betty Blythe is married to Paul Scardon. She displayed her vampish talents in "Potash and Perlmutter in Hollywood." She is thirty-one and five feet seven inches tall.

Mae Bush was born in Melbourne, Australia twenty-five years ago. She received her education in a convent at Madison, N. J. Her stage career started as leading woman for Eddie Foy, and she played on the screen with Eddie Foy and Weber and Fields in Keystone comedies. She is five feet five inches tall and weighs 125. Her hair is black and her eyes gray.

Dear Movie Editor—I went to see "Monsieur Beaucaire" recently and I certainly thought it a wonderful moving picture. I thought the women rather poor, though. I liked Alice Terry opposite Rudolph Valentino so much better than Bebe Daniels. I think he should always choose little blonde women for his leading ladies to make more of a contrast with his dark hair and eyes. Bebe Daniels is too much on his type to make a good leading lady for him.

Please tell me if Rudolph Valentino is his real name, and if not what his real name is? Is he a Spaniard or an Italian? I know he is some kind of a foreigner. I thought he gave a perfect characterization of the true aristocrat of the period in French history which was shown in "Monsieur Beaucaire." He is a real artist in every sense of the word. Is he married, and to whom? Does he have and children? How old is he?

I hope you will forgive me if you have answered all of these questions before, but I have never been interested in him before, and have never paid much atention to anything that was written about him. I did think he did very well in "The Four Horsemen," but since that time I haven't cared for him at all. I think he tried to put the man forward instead of the artist, and in "Monsieur Beaucaire" the artist again revealed himself.

Thanking you kindly for your trouble, MOVIE LOVER, Beatrice, Nebr.

It's too bad you didn't like Bebe with Rudolph in "Monsieur Beaucaire," when it was really the best work Bebe ever did, and about the first chance she has had to show us what she really could do.

Rudolph's real name is Guigelimo,—at least that's the nearest I can come to spelling it. He changed it to Valentino, so people could remember better. What fan would want a favorite, whose name they couldn't pronounce? Rudy was born in Castellaneta, Italy in 1895. He has been married twice, the first time to Jean Acker, and the second to Winifred Hudnut, or Natacha Rambova as she is known professionally. They have no children.

Dear Movie Editor—This is my first time in writting to you and I hope to be welcome in your column. Please give me the names of some of the most favorite actors and actresses.

Is Mrs. Wallace Reid going to make any more pictures after "Human Wreakage?" If so what is the name of her latest, and who plays in it? Will it be another story about narcotics like "Human Wreakage?"

What is Gloria Swanson's next picture? What is Thomas Meighan's next. Please tell me the height weight and age of Thomas? Where does he live? Is he married and if so to whom? Has he any children?

I hope this letter is printed. Thank you, A FAN, Friend, Nebr.

I'm happy to welcome a new fan from Friend to my department. Nearly all of the leading actors and actresses are favorites with somebody. It's their popularity with the fans that make them popular with the companies who employ them. The more letters they receive from their admirers, the speedier is their climb upward. Among the popular actors we have Rudy, of course, Douglas Fairbanks, Conrad Nagel, Milton Sills, Conway Tearle, Thomas Meighan, Richard Dix, Richard Barthelmess, Ramon Novarro, Reginald Denny, Ben Lyons, Donald Colman, and Harold Lloyd.

The list of popular actresses includes Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson, Colleen Moore, Norma and Constance Talmadge, Mae Murray, Madge Bellamy, Patsy Ruth Miller, Anna Q. Nilsson, Bebe Daniels, Alice Terry, and on down the line.

Mrs. Reid has just completed "Broken Laws." It is a story dealing with mother love and the need for law observance on the part of citizens. It is a story of law abiding citizens, who would not murder or steal, but do not hesitate to break some of the minor laws, such as speeding and bootlegging. The leading roles are played by Mrs. Reid, Percy Marmont, Jacqueline Saunders, Ramsey Wallace, Virginia Lee Corbin and Arthur Rankin.

Gloria Swanson has gone to Europe, where she is working on "Madame Sane-Gene."

Thomas Meighan is working on the Peter Clarke MacFarlane story "Tongues of Flame." He was born in 1880 with dark hair and eyes. He is six feet tall and weighs 170. Frances Ring was the maiden name of Mrs. Meighan. They have no children. They live in New York now, where Thomas Meighan makes most of his pictures.

Dear Movie Editor—I can't let many weeks go by without coming to you for some help about the movies. I'm a great lover of serials and I wonder why it is that we never see Ruth Roland in serials anymore. Isn't she making them, and if not, what is she doing? Is she married and if so to whom? What color hair and eyes has she?

I would like to know something about the character actress, Lillian Leighton. Where was she born? Has she always been on the stage or screen? How long has she been playing in pictures? How tall is she and how much does she weigh? What is her address?

Has Betty Brice ever made any pictures, and if so, what are they? Is Margaret Landis related in any way to Cullen Landis?

How old is Anne Luther and what color hair and eyes does she have?

What is the name of Cecil B. DeMille's picture after "Feet of Clay." Who will play the leading roles in it? Please tell me whether Mr. DeMille works in California or in New York. I would like to have his address. Is he related to William DeMille? How old is D. W. Griffith? Is he married to Lillian Gish? How many Ince brothers are there? Which is the oldest?

I would like to see my letter in print next Sunday, but I will watch until I see it, if you can't get it in then. ZELDA B.

Ruth Roland is making feature productions now instead of serials. Guess she found the life of serial queen too strenuous. Her next picture is "Out Where the West Begins," and Matt Moore and Roy Stewart are her chief supporters. She was married to Lionel Kent, but she didn't like him very well as a husband, so she made him her business manager. She says its a much more satisfactory arrangement. She has reddish brown hair and violet eyes.

Lillian Leighton was born in Auroraville, Wis. She was the editor of a country weekly before she started on a stage career. She played in stock and vaudeville for twelve years, and has been on the screen for eleven years. She is five feet three and one-half inches tall and weighs 160. Address her at 1962 Cheremoya Ave., Los Angeles Calif.

Betty Brice made "The Spenders, "A Beggar in Purple" and "The Money Changers."

Margaret Landis and Cullen are brother and sister.

Anne Luther is thirty years old and has titian hair and blue eyes.

Cecil DeMille is making "The Golden Bed" with Verta Reynolds, Rod La Rocque, Theodore Kosloff, Warner Baxter, Lillian Rich, Henry Walthall and Julia Faye. The picture is being made in California, where Mr. DeMille produces most of his photoplays. Address him in care of. Lasky Studio, Hollywood, Calif. He is a brother to William.

Mr. Griffith is only forty-four. He is married to Linda Griffith, and not Lillian Gish.

There are three Ince boys in pictures, John, Ralph and Thomas. John is the oldest, having been born in 1879. Thomas is forty-two.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—I haven't written to you for about six months, so I think it's time I bothered you again for a little while. Where is Harold Lloyd now? Isn't he making any more pictures? It seems like a long time since I saw him in one. What is the title of his latest and has it been released yet? Who plays the leading feminine role in it? Ho wold is Harold and where was he born? I always had heard that he was a Nebraska boy, but I had a friend who was here from San Diego, Calif., and she insists that he was born and raised there. Which is right, please?

Where is Walter Hiers now? I always thought he would take Fatty Arbuckle's place in the movies, but he doesn't seem to have put it over.

Please give me Raymond Griffith's address, and tell me what color hair and eyes he has.

What picture is Joseph Schildkraut making at the present time?

Is Betty Blythe married and if so to whom? She is a striking looking woman, and would make an ideal vamp in pictures. I should like to see her more often. How old is she? She must be about five eight or nine in height, isn't she?

Please tell me all you can about Mae Busch, including her age, where born, height, weight, color of hair and eyes, etc.

Hoping I have not taken up too much room in your mail today, I am Sincerely yours, BROWN-EYED VAMP.

"I'll have to shorten your leave of absence hereafter. Six months is a long time.

Harold Lloyd is working hard on a new picture. It's a football story, but the title has not yet been decided upon. Jobyna Ralston is again playing opposite him. Harold's latest release, "Hot Water," in which Jobyna also assisted him, is now being shown and is said to be the funniest he has made to date. Harold gives Nebraska all of the credit for his birth. He was raised around Pawnee City and Omaha, and started his stage career from Omaha. He does admit, however, that he received part of his education in San Diego.

Walter Hiers is working in what is said to be one of the best comedy roles he has ever played. It is in "Excuse Me," which Rupert Hughes is making for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Address Mr. Griffith in care of the Los Angeles Athletic Club. He has dark hair and hazel eyes.

Mr. Schildkraut is not playing in pictures just at present. He is starring in a stage play, "The Firebrand," at a New York theatre.

Betty Blythe is married to Paul Scardon. She displayed her vampish talents in "Potash and Perlmutter in Hollywood." She is thirty-one and five feet seven inches tall.

Mae Bush was born in Melbourne, Australia twenty-five years ago. She received her education in a convent at Madison, N. J. Her stage career started as leading woman for Eddie Foy, and she played on the screen with Eddie Foy and Weber and Fields in Keystone comedies. She is five feet five inches tall and weighs 125. Her hair is black and her eyes gray.

Dear Movie Editor—I went to see "Monsieur Beaucaire" recently and I certainly thought it a wonderful moving picture. I thought the women rather poor, though. I liked Alice Terry opposite Rudolph Valentino so much better than Bebe Daniels. I think he should always choose little blonde women for his leading ladies to make more of a contrast with his dark hair and eyes. Bebe Daniels is too much on his type to make a good leading lady for him.

Please tell me if Rudolph Valentino is his real name, and if not what his real name is? Is he a Spaniard or an Italian? I know he is some kind of a foreigner. I thought he gave a perfect characterization of the true aristocrat of the period in French history which was shown in "Monsieur Beaucaire." He is a real artist in every sense of the word. Is he married, and to whom? Does he have and children? How old is he?

I hope you will forgive me if you have answered all of these questions before, but I have never been interested in him before, and have never paid much atention to anything that was written about him. I did think he did very well in "The Four Horsemen," but since that time I haven't cared for him at all. I think he tried to put the man forward instead of the artist, and in "Monsieur Beaucaire" the artist again revealed himself.

Thanking you kindly for your trouble, MOVIE LOVER, Beatrice, Nebr.

It's too bad you didn't like Bebe with Rudolph in "Monsieur Beaucaire," when it was really the best work Bebe ever did, and about the first chance she has had to show us what she really could do.

Rudolph's real name is Guigelimo,—at least that's the nearest I can come to spelling it. He changed it to Valentino, so people could remember better. What fan would want a favorite, whose name they couldn't pronounce? Rudy was born in Castellaneta, Italy in 1895. He has been married twice, the first time to Jean Acker, and the second to Winifred Hudnut, or Natacha Rambova as she is known professionally. They have no children.

Dear Movie Editor—This is my first time in writting to you and I hope to be welcome in your column. Please give me the names of some of the most favorite actors and actresses.

Is Mrs. Wallace Reid going to make any more pictures after "Human Wreakage?" If so what is the name of her latest, and who plays in it? Will it be another story about narcotics like "Human Wreakage?"

What is Gloria Swanson's next picture? What is Thomas Meighan's next. Please tell me the height weight and age of Thomas? Where does he live? Is he married and if so to whom? Has he any children?

I hope this letter is printed. Thank you, A FAN, Friend, Nebr.

I'm happy to welcome a new fan from Friend to my department. Nearly all of the leading actors and actresses are favorites with somebody. It's their popularity with the fans that make them popular with the companies who employ them. The more letters they receive from their admirers, the speedier is their climb upward. Among the popular actors we have Rudy, of course, Douglas Fairbanks, Conrad Nagel, Milton Sills, Conway Tearle, Thomas Meighan, Richard Dix, Richard Barthelmess, Ramon Novarro, Reginald Denny, Ben Lyons, Donald Colman, and Harold Lloyd.

The list of popular actresses includes Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson, Colleen Moore, Norma and Constance Talmadge, Mae Murray, Madge Bellamy, Patsy Ruth Miller, Anna Q. Nilsson, Bebe Daniels, Alice Terry, and on down the line.

Mrs. Reid has just completed "Broken Laws." It is a story dealing with mother love and the need for law observance on the part of citizens. It is a story of law abiding citizens, who would not murder or steal, but do not hesitate to break some of the minor laws, such as speeding and bootlegging. The leading roles are played by Mrs. Reid, Percy Marmont, Jacqueline Saunders, Ramsey Wallace, Virginia Lee Corbin and Arthur Rankin.

Gloria Swanson has gone to Europe, where she is working on "Madame Sane-Gene."

Thomas Meighan is working on the Peter Clarke MacFarlane story "Tongues of Flame." He was born in 1880 with dark hair and eyes. He is six feet tall and weighs 170. Frances Ring was the maiden name of Mrs. Meighan. They have no children. They live in New York now, where Thomas Meighan makes most of his pictures.

Dear Movie Editor—I can't let many weeks go by without coming to you for some help about the movies. I'm a great lover of serials and I wonder why it is that we never see Ruth Roland in serials anymore. Isn't she making them, and if not, what is she doing? Is she married and if so to whom? What color hair and eyes has she?

I would like to know something about the character actress, Lillian Leighton. Where was she born? Has she always been on the stage or screen? How long has she been playing in pictures? How tall is she and how much does she weigh? What is her address?

Has Betty Brice ever made any pictures, and if so, what are they? Is Margaret Landis related in any way to Cullen Landis?

How old is Anne Luther and what color hair and eyes does she have?

What is the name of Cecil B. DeMille's picture after "Feet of Clay." Who will play the leading roles in it? Please tell me whether Mr. DeMille works in California or in New York. I would like to have his address. Is he related to William DeMille? How old is D. W. Griffith? Is he married to Lillian Gish? How many Ince brothers are there? Which is the oldest?

I would like to see my letter in print next Sunday, but I will watch until I see it, if you can't get it in then. ZELDA B.

Ruth Roland is making feature productions now instead of serials. Guess she found the life of serial queen too strenuous. Her next picture is "Out Where the West Begins," and Matt Moore and Roy Stewart are her chief supporters. She was married to Lionel Kent, but she didn't like him very well as a husband, so she made him her business manager. She says its a much more satisfactory arrangement. She has reddish brown hair and violet eyes.

Lillian Leighton was born in Auroraville, Wis. She was the editor of a country weekly before she started on a stage career. She played in stock and vaudeville for twelve years, and has been on the screen for eleven years. She is five feet three and one-half inches tall and weighs 160. Address her at 1962 Cheremoya Ave., Los Angeles Calif.

Cecil DeMille is making "The Golden Bed" with Verta Reynolds, Rod La Rocque, Theodore Kosloff, Warner Baxter, Lillian Rich, Henry Walthall and Julia Faye. The picture is being made in California, where Mr. DeMille produces most of his photoplays. Address him in care of, Lasky Studio, Hollywood, Calif. He is a brother to William.

Mr. Griffith is only forty-four. He is married to Linda Griffith, and not Lillian Gish.

There are three Ince boys in pictures, John, Ralph and Thomas. John is the oldest, having been born in 1879. Thomas is forty-two.

Goblins and Witches Cast Their Spell Over Society On Last Night of October

Hallowe'en, the last night of October, is the eve of the vigil of All Hallow's or All Saints' day when superstitious lore, the charms and ill luck of black cats, goblins and witches cast their spell over society's affairs for a brief night or two. It is above all an evening of fun and laughter and in celebration of the Hallowe'en season many festivities are planned for the coming week.

The first affair for this season of the Cotillion club will be the annual Hallowe'en dinner dance Friday evening at the Country club. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Woods will be the leaders of the cotillion and among the guests will be Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Holland who are coming from Omaha for the party and the week end.

The Forty-Niners will also open their series of winter parties with a Hallowe'en dinner dance Thursday evening at the Lincoln hotel. The committee in charge of arrangements includes Roy Wythers, chairman; Harold Hartley, Burks Harley, John Lawlor, Fred Archibald, Rolla Van Kirk and Leonard Kline. New members of this club, which was organized last season are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Dibble, Mr. and Mrs R. E. Matheson, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Seneca Yule, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Swanson, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Kinsey, Walden Howey, Leland Coryell and J. L. Hastings.

A Hallowe'en season dance will be given Tuesday evening at the Rosewilde by the members of the Tuesday Night Dancing club. Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Sidles are chairmen of the committee made up of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Assenmacher, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Colhapp and Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. Kiles.

The Mafa club will have its Hallowe'en dance Monday evening at Rosewilde. The Hallowe'en colors of orange and black will be used in the decorations and favors and will be repeated in the refreshments which will be served the latter part of the evening.

The same evening the Paul Neyron club will have the second of its series of winter dances at the Lincoln hotel.

Eastridge Dinner Dance.

The Eastridge mid-week dinner dance Wednesday evening will be a Hallowe'en affair. Pumpkins and the combined colors of orange and black throughout the large lounge and ballroom will suggest the Hallowe'en season and during the dinner hour a special cabaret program will entertain the guests.

The first of the dinner dances to be given this season at the University club will be Friday evening of this week and will also be a Hallowe'en affair. Reservations for small parties have been made by H. R. Jobst, 6; Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Davis, 8; Mr and Mrs. Cedric Potter, 2, William Chamberlin, 4. The greater number of the reservations will be made early this week.

The University club will also serve dinner Wednesday evening and Saturday evening following the Missouri-Nebraska football game when a number of university folk will meet at the club for dinner. Tuesday evening of next week the club will have one of its stag dinners.

The Country club has arranged a dinner dance for Saturday evening to follow the Missouri-Nebraska game.

A wedding gown of silver brocade modeled after the quaint style of the Elizabethian period was worn by Miss Eleanor Zimmer for her wedding to John P. Rose of Auburn which took place Thursday morning at St. Mary's cathedral. Her veil of Chantilly lace fell from a coronet of lace and pearls. A wedding breakfast followed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Zimmer, 1820 B street. Mr. Rose and his bride left in the afternoon for an eastern motor trip and after their return will be at home in Auburn.

Betty Sain and Dorothy Jackson in "The Booga Man."

Sarah Jane Johnson's group in "How the Jack O'Lanterns Scared the Indians Away."

Gladys Sidles' group in "A Fairy Story."

The girls of Miss Grace Young's campfire group of Bethany had charge of the games. Dorothy Williams taught the girls new blue bird songs including the campfire girls walking song. Louise Van Sicle and her girls had charge of the refreshments. Camp Kiwanis songs were sung by all the girls.

KATHERINE M. KING

Pretty, peppy university co-eds will contribute their interesting bit of song and dance to the annual Shrine "Jollies", which will be presented at the Orpheum theatre Friday and Saturday evening of this week, October 31 and November 1. Song and dance numbers in choruses and solos executed by the girls in dainty costumes combined with the wit and jokes of the minstrels bid fair to make this year's show far surpass those of the preceding years. University girls who will take part in the fun making are Arline Rosenberry, Gertrude Butler, Katherine King, Helen Schwager, Antoinette Beall, Marion Gardner and Virginia Green.

Numbered among the attractive visitors is Mrs. Ira L. Watson of Inman with her lovely family of three, Patricia Ann, John Chenoweth and Ruth Jeannette. Mrs. Watson came to Lincoln for a visit with her brother, Wilbur Chenoweth, following his return from Europe and her mother, Mrs. Anna B. Pierson of University Place before she leaves with Mr. Chenoweth to spend the winter in New York.

Shrine "Jollies" Show To Be Given This Week Said To Surpass Any Ever Presented

Lincoln Shriners will stage their annual "Jollies" at the Orpheum on Friday and Saturday of this week. With a long line of previous successes to their credit, this year's offering promises to eclipse former productions in numerous features. The show, which is built along the lines of many current Broadway revues, has fourteen scenes in its two acts. A more lavish display of scenery and costumes will be seen for the staging of these numerous scenes. The cast will be made of Shriners, university girls and boys and the pick of the city's musical and vocal talent. Intensive rehearsals during the past week under the direction of George L. Stevens, of the Chris Ming company, of Houston, Tex., give clear indication that the entire show will run with a professional smoothness next Friday and Saturday nights.

The first act, which is in the form of a concise musical history, introduces Lee Ager as the soloist in the prologue. He will be assisted in this by Miss Frances Burgess as the "Spirit of Old Songs," L. J. Strain as the "Spirit of Minstrelsy."

The "Spirt of Jazz."

Miss Harriet Cruise as the "Spirit of Jazz. The classical age will be interpreted by Miss Lenore Burkett in songs, accompanied by Miss Betty Luce on the violin and Mrs. L. J. Strain at the piano. The various musical spirits of the prologue each presents a scene typical of the music each represents during the first act. Miss Cruise will present in her scene, depicting the jazz music, the Serenaders under the direction of Ted Cowell, a specially written song, "What You Goin' To Do" with herself as the soloist, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Carroll as the specialty dancers and a jazz chorus consisting of Misses Marion Gardner, Lucile Hill, Edith Replogle, Helen Schwager, Antoinette Beall, Elsie Neely, Katherine King, Grace Hall, Josephine Caster, Helen Aach, Virginia Green, Gertrude Butler, Dorothy Howard, Jean Miner, Sarah Eischeide, Frances McChesney, Gertrude Barber, Isabelle Myers and Ted Ratcliff, Oliver Adams, Pike O'Brien, Grant Whitford, Willis Zing, Don Russell, Henry Lay, Emmett Gillaspie, Harry Sidles and Joe Iverson.

Miss Burgess will present as her sample of old songs, another specially written song, "Sing the Old Songs Again," which will have Lee Ager as the soloist with six specialty dancers as follows:—Misses Maxine Ziemer as the "Glow Worm" girl, Arline Rosenberry as the "School Days" girl, Florence Sturdevant as the "Bedelia" girl, Betty Luce as the "Annie Rooney" girl, Maurine Champ as the "Alexander's Ragtime Band" girl and Genevieve Clark as the "Sweet Adeline" girl.

Minstrel Show.

The minstrel first part, introduced by L. J. Strain will present thirty Shriners augmented by a university chorus. The end-men will be Lute Morse, Ray Farquhar, Trev Gillaspie, Jerry Latsch, L. J. Strain, Dana Col, L. E. Gunderson and Leonard Kline. Ballads will be sung by Reuben Walt, Earl Middlekauff and Guy King with Claude S. Wilson acting as interlocutor.

H. O. Ferguson will be the soloist in a spectacular song number, "Will She Come from the East, North, West, or South" in the second act. He will be assisted by twenty girls, each group appearing in front of individual scenic settings and attractively costumed. Miss Frances McChesney and A. D. Meyers will be the principals in a clever sketch, "The Information Bureau." Another skit of unusual cleverness will be "If Men Played Cards as Women Do" and presented by L. J. Strain, Trev Gillaspie, H. S. Knapp and Lee Ager. Dana Cole will be the soloist in the unusually attractive Dutch number, "In the Land Where the Sweet Tulips Grow," assisted by Miss Cruise and a university chorus of ten girls doing a wooden shoe dance. Miss Flavia Waters will be the dancer in one of the outstanding numbers of the show, "The Life of a Rose," which will be sung by Miss Frances Burgess.

Seats for both performances will go on sale tomorrow morning at the Orpheum box office. Advance tickets sold by Shriners must be exchanged for reserved seats.

Weddings

SCHAFER-KLAPPER

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schafer, 1915 Sumner street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Minerva, to Charles Klapper of Chicago. The young people will make their home in Chicago.

Engagements

Of interest in Lincoln and university circles is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Finis James Garrett of Dresden, Tenn., of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Virginia Lee, to Ben Gund Koehler of Lincoln, a former student of the University of Nebraska and member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. The announcement of Miss Garnett's engagement was received with sincere interest throughout the south and in eastern social circles.

As the daughter of Congressman Garrett, she has enjoyed widespread popularity in Washington where she was graduated from Gunston Hall and entered society in official circles. She also attended Vanderbilt university.

Mr. Koehler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barthold Koehler of Geneva, is a graduate of the United States naval academy at Annapolis and at present is associated with the Standard Bridge company of Omaha.

The wedding will take place November 5 in the Methodist church of Dresden. The groom's mother and a brother, Jack Koehler, will go south for the wedding. Mr. Koehler will be his brother's best man

Pretty, peppy university co-eds will contribute their interesting bit of song and dance to the annual Shrine "Jollies" which will be presented at the Orpheum theatre Friday and Saturday evening of this week, October 31 and November 1. Song and dance numbers in choruses and solos executed by the girls in dainty costumes combined with the wit and jokes of the minstrels bid fair to make this year's show far surpass those of the preceding years. University girls who will take part in the fun making are Arline Rosenberry, Gertrude Butler, Katherine King, Helen Schwager, Antoinette Beall, Marion Gardner and Virginia Green.

Engagements

Mrs. Jennie Foreman announces the engagement of her daughter, Anna Marie Breiner, to Fred T. Graves. The wedding will take place early in November.

Shrine "Jollies" Show To Be Given This Week Said To Surpass Any Ever Presented

Lincoln Shriners will stage their annual "Jollies" at the Orpheum on Friday and Saturday of this week. With a long line of previous successes to their credit, this year's offering promises to eclipse former productions in numerous features. The show, which is built along the lines of many current Broadway revues, has fourteen scenes in its two acts. A more lavish display of scenery and costumes will be seen for the staging of these numerous scenes. The cast will be made of Shriners, university girls and boys and the pick of the city's musical and vocal talent. Intensive rehearsals during the past week under the direction of George L. Stevens, of the Chris Ming company, of Houston, Tex., give clear indication that the entire show will run with a professiondal smoothness next Friday and Saturday nights.

The first act, which is in the form of a concise musical history, introduces Lee Ager as the soloist in the prologue. He will be assisted in this by Miss Frances Burgess as the "Spirit of Old Songs," L. J. Strain as the "Spirit of Minstrelsy."

The "Spirt of Jazz."

Miss Harriet Cruise as the "Spirit of Jazz. The classical age will be interpreted by Miss Lenore Burkett in songs, accompanied by Miss Betty Luce on the violin and Mrs. L. J. Strain at the piano. The various musical spirits of the prologue each presents a scene typical of the music each represents during the first act. Miss Cruise will present in her scene, depicting the jazz music, the Serenaders under the direction of Ted Cowell, a specially written song, "What You Goin' To Do" with herself as the soloist, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Carroll as the specialty dancers and a jazz chorus consisting of Misses Marion Gardner, Lucile Hill, Edith Replogle, Helen Schwager, Antoinette Beall, Elsie Neely, Katherine King, Grace Hall, Josephine Caster, Helen Aach, Virginia Green, Gertrude Butler, Dorothy Howard, Jean Miner, Sarah Eischeide, Frances McChesney, Gertrude Barber, Isabelle Myers and Ted Ratcliff, Oliver Adams, Parke O'Brien, Grant Whitford, Willis Zing, Don Russell, Henry Lay, Emmett Gillaspie, Harry Sidles and Joe Iverson.

Miss Burgess will present as her sample of old songs, another specially written song, "Sing the Old Songs Again," which will have Lee Ager as the soloist with six specialty dancers as follows:—Misses Maxine Ziemer as the "Glow Worm" girl, Arline Rosenberry as the "School Days" girl, Florence Sturdevant as the "Bedelia" girl, Betty Luce as the "Annie Rooney" girl, Maurine Champ as the "Alexander's Ragtime Band" girl and Genevieve Clark as the "Sweet Adeline" girl.

Minstrel Show.

The minstrel first part, introduced by L. J. Strain will present thirty Shriners augmented by a university chorus. The end-men will be Lute Morse, Ray Farquhar, Trev Gillaspie, Jerry Latsch, L. J. Strain, Dana Col, L. E. Gunderson and Leonard Kline. Ballads will be sung by Reuben Walt, Earl Middlekauff and Guy King with Claude S. Wilson acting as interlocutor.

H. O. Ferguson will be the soloist in a spectacular song number, "Will She Come from the East, North, West, or South" in the second act. He will be assisted by twenty girls, each group appearing in front of individual scenic settings and attractively costumed. Miss Frances McChesney and A. D. Meyers will be the principals in a clever sketch, "The Information Bureau." Another skit of unusual cleverness will be "If Men Played Cards as Women Do" and presented by L. J. Strain, Trev Gillaspie, H. S. Knapp and Lee Ager. Dana Cole will be the soloist in the unusually attractive Dutch number, "In the Land Where the Sweet Tulips Grow," assisted by Miss Cruise and a university chorus of ten girls doing a wooden shoe dance. Miss Flavia Waters will be the dancer in one of the outstanding numbers of the show, "The Life of a Rose," which will be sung by Miss Frances Burgess.

Seats for both performances will go on sale tomorrow morning at the Orpheum box office. Advance tickets sold by Shriners must be exchanged for reserved seats.

George Brothers' HOUSE OF GIFTS BEAUTIFUL

From Oriental Lands

Come rare bits of pottery, imported especially to make houses home-like, and to add color and charm to one's room We have just received an interesting importation of that FAMOUS IMA portation of that FAMOUS IMARI WARE including ROSE JARS like the above, also vases which we make into wonderful lamps The assortment includes a variety of designs and sizes and the prices are astonishingly moderate.

PARTIES whether formal or informal, should be dressed up just like people. We all remember the party which, from every view point showed careful planning on the part of the hostess. Perhaps her place cards were made to order, or carefully selected and arranged so that they seem to have been made for that particular individual to whom they were given, or that her playing cards—score cards and tallies were embossed with her own monogram, while the favors were so different.

FAVORS play an important part at any party. If they are comic, you just have oodles of fun with them, and they very often make a wonderful party out of what otherwise would have been a very common-place affair, and how the kiddies love to have you bring them home; or, if they are some dainty little souvenir, you cherish them and ever find them, gentle reminders, of a happy afternoon or evening

Our Line of Favors is larger, better and more varied than ever. Carrying them as we do in large quantities, we are in position to make immediate delivery, therefore eliminating all chances of disappointments.

SAYS BUSINESS NEEDS EDUCATED PERSONS

The following extract is taken from a talk made by Evans Woollen, president of the Fletcher Savings and Trust company of Indianapolis, to the Federation of Business and Professional Women in West Baden convention last summer. "In my opinion the business world needs educated persons more than it needs vocational trainees" is a statement made by Evans Woollen, president of the Fletcher Savings and Trust company of Indianapolis, at the West Baden convention. Further Mr. Woollen said: "Business has in its service too many of those who are vocationally trained but uneducated. That may seem a heretical statement in these days of vocational training; but in the report of the Carnegie Foundation last year attention was called to the fact that our schools are trying to teach something of every form of knowledge in which the modern world interests itself. It is my conviction, arising out of some years of experience, that the best thing the schools could do for business would be to leave off the effort to fit their pupils for business; that if the schools would only fit their pupils for life, we men of business, better than they, could do the rest. The business man knows that in his organization next to character he needs the capacity for clear thinking, that is helped and proved by clear expression. He needs the clear thinking of women for the long pull far more than the vocationally trained with their very temporary advantage, and these are more likely to be had, I believe, from the high school than the business school—from the college of liberal arts than from the college of business administration."

BUSINESS WOMEN'S LEAGUE

The Thursday evening program of the Business Women's League in charge of Mrs. Caroline Ayer, consisted of several vocal selections by Mrs. Bernice Reed Mallatt, whose splendid voice and expression made a delightful rendition of "Merrily I Roam," Scheilfarrth; 'Will o' the Wisp," Vinne; "Two Little Stars," O'Hara and "Little Stars," La Forge. Miss Doris Bocock acted as accompanist, and also rendered several piano selections to the great pleasure of the nearly fifty members present.

Mrs. John Slaker of Hastings, a guest, told interesting facts regarding the International Council of Women, which was formed in 1888 at Washington, under the leadership of Susan B. Anthony, and now consists of 36 million women, representing forty-two countries. Thirty-eight national women's organizations are represented, including the National Federation of Business and Professional Women. The next meeting will be in Washington, the first to be held in the country of its birth. This will be in the spring of 1925. These women are working intelligently for world peace, building up instead of tearing down; there are small things in which they differ, but which are meager beside the very great matters upon which they agree.

Miss Clara Slade gave a report from the dinner to Miss Lathrop held during the week, and to which she and President Berggren were invited to represent the league. Miss Ruth Hartzwell made report of an Omaha club meeting attended by several members of the league, where the national emblem was exemplified in tableaux. Miss Grace Trott told of a meeting at Fremont, where members of Lincoln and Omaha clubs were guests, reporting a delightful time. Fremont has 80 members, and served a three course dinner at the Country club.

Next Wednesday evening, recreation night, Miss Esther Wilson announces a masquerade party, where members may invite all guests they desire, both men and women, and all may come masked or otherwise. Music will be provided for dancing and other amusements will entertain everybody. The affair will be in the nature of a Hallowe'en party, and will be the last meeting to be held in the present club rooms.

ART OF COOKERY TAUGHT BY RADIO

Mrs. Anna J. Peterson at KYW Conducts Huge Morning Classes.

"Of all the arts cookery is by far the most intimate" said a great man once. Wouldn't it be surprising then if one woman managed to conduct classes in this art over an expanse of 3,000 miles every day and became so intimate with her pupils that they are able to call her name though they have never met?

Mrs Anna J Peterson is the woman and her teacher's desk is in the KYW Westinghouse station at Chicago. The class room extends over the middle west. In two years she has talked almost every morning at 11 30 o'clock to thousands of students in the intimate art.

For ten years before she began her radio courses Mrs Peterson was an expert with the Corn Products company and before that she had graduated with degrees in this subject and had taken post graduate courses along the same line.

Gifts are constantly being received by Mrs Peterson from her radio pals. At graduation time heaps of flowers are sent. She has come to know her students so well by voice that some of them have recognized her and claimed acquaintance.

Of course Mrs Peterson is a good cook. She tells thousands of others how to do it every morning and even plans their menus for them so that a whole neighborhood is liable to have the same dishes for breakfast—at the suggestion of the radio. But telling how and what to cook are small parts of the activities which have been begun by Mrs Peterson's talks.

A letter sent to the Westinghouse station a stamp or even a telephone call will elicit a reply by mail immediately. These questoins come on every sort of a home topic—home budgeting clothes buying money investing or garden making.

The school proper begins October ?5. Two series of twelve lessons each were given last season and nearly 3,000 diplomas delivered. Eight of these were to men—some to those with invalid wives and some who had a curiosity for the thing itself.

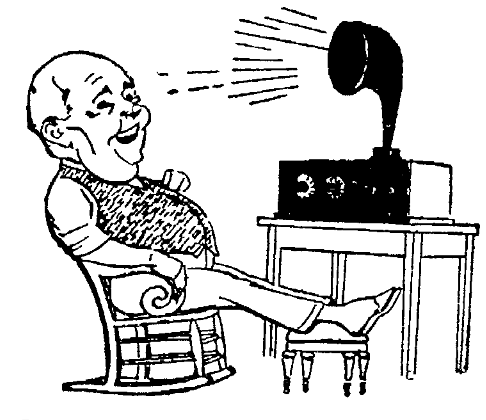
Each radio cooking lesson was delivered to the pupil then tried. If successful the report was mailed in. If not, the report was made with equal interest and corrected the difficulty remedied and a satisfactory result achieved. This done the second lesson would be undertaken.

"Original Radio Girl" Still Has A Wireless Job

Vaughn de Leath the 'original radio girl' at WDAR who claims that she has more stage Johnnies persuing her and notes rolling in than ever a Follies beauty is still singing and chatting at the microphone.

'Veathy,' as she calls herself and as she is called by hundreds of fans stopped her entertainments for a while last winter while appearing in David Belasco's production of Laugh Fool Laugh. Both she and her managers feared at first that her old wireless friends would forget the voice. Nothing of the kind. Someone who tried to immitate her during the winter was hissed out of the ether. Her return was greeted as joyfully as that of a movie beauty.

Like many another popular announcer or singer Miss de Leath has been recognized on the streets by the sound of her voice. For when standing at the business end of "mike" as she says herself there's 'something in those old pipes of mine that opens up a flood of understanding and appreciation from the listeners.'



If the President Talked To You, Would It Thrill You?

YES it would—and this very thing is possible with the new Stromberg Carlson Radio. This set places at your finger tips the words of famous men, the songs of leading writers, the music of master musicians.

Radio Digest

Range of Receiving Set

The receiving range of a set is determined by testing for signals between 11 o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Stations that can be picked up regularly between these hours are the ones upon which the receiving range should be based.

An Indoor Antenna

Sometimes an indoor antenna can be successfully operated by erecting the wires on ordinary doors in the house. It provides a good soluution for the indoor antenna problem since the swinging door alters the directional effect and acts as a regular loop antenna.

The Required Number of Tubes

Never use more tubes than are sufficient for the results desired. It frequently happens that inexperienced operators will have more tubes burning than are necessary and then detune to lessen the volume of sound. For local stations for instance the first audio stage is amply sufficient.

Non Corrosive Flux

Celluloid dissolved in acetone makes a very good binder for radio work. It should be used in place of shellac collodion etc. Rosin dissolved in rubbing alcohol with a couple of drops of glycerin makes an absolutely non corrosive flux. A drop on a piece of wire suffices for most joints and makes a neat and noiseless job.

Placement of the Receiver

Noises in a set are often picked up as a result of placing the receiver in the magnetic field surrounding lighting wires running behind the wall and the receiver should therefore be moved to another part of the room to make [illegible] ter valve transformers are not picking up interference from this source.

Inspection of Aerial and Ground

Because winter storms mean heavy strains on aerial and ground installations now is the time to make a thorough inspection of the outdoor wiring system. See if the guy wires holding the aerial masts and the aerial wires in place are all taut and tight. Look over all soldered connections and try to determine if they have become corroded during the hot summer months.

Old 'B' Batteries Cause Noises

An old B battery makes a receiving set noisy. As the battery becomes run down its resistance increases and gives rise to noises that are annoying to say the least. When the voltage of the plate battery has dropped 20 per cent it is advisable to replace it thus a ??½ volt battery becomes useless when it has dropped to 17 volts. Larger batteries can be figured in the same proportion.

Requisite Radio Tools

For the Notebook

A vernier condenser is necessary for sharp tuning.

Radio sets now range in price from $14 to $5,000.

When a storage battery fails to take a charge it is an indication that it needs to be overhauled at a battery service station.

Wire for the antenna should be a good conductor of electricity. Some good conductors are copper phosphor bronze and aluminum.

Joints of an antenna should be first soldered and then wrapped with several layers of tinfoil and then a layer of water proof tape.

Radiograms

Farmers throughout the United States own 364,800 radio sets.

California with 44 stations leads the states in number of broadcasting stations in operation. New York city with 12 stations is first among the cities.

Radio spongers are so numerous in Germany that the police threaten a general raid on houses suspected of having unlicensed sets. Owners must pay a license fee of 50 cents a month.

As the result of a long series of observations made in England it [illegible] best during the full moon period. When the moon changes from full to new moon reception is poorest.

Edward H R Greene of South Dartmouth Mass son of the famous Hetty Green is said to have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on the development of radio during the past few years. He is building the largest private wireless station in the United States.

An international broadcasting test is scheduled for November 24 to 30. On these dates stations in the United States will send from 10 to 11 P M Eastern Standard time and the foreign stations will transmit from 11 o'clock to midnight. Stations not participating in the test will be silenced so that broadcast listeners will all have an opportunity to test the sensitiveness and range of their receivers without interference.

RADIO HELPED WORLD FLIERS

Without Its Aid Airmen Would Have Been Unable to Undertake Trip.

The glory of the world circling flight belongs of course to the three heroes who made it but they could never have finished the job had it not been for the ever present help of radio.

Four planes started out March 1? 1924. Everyone was lost at some time or other as well as the machines of foreign aviators who accompanied the American officers for short distances but all were found again with the exception of Captain Martin's and enabled to continue their journey by the aid of radio.

Three principal reasons why radio was vital to the flight are: The length of the jumps making instantaneous knowledge of distant weather conditions necessary the need of sending immediate assistance to a disabled machine publicity gained for the people of the United States.

Most of the radio work along the coast guard cutter Haida. The flight over these islands was perhaps the hardest of the trip and called for careful calculations and hard work. The Dutch government salmon canneries and every branch of the government service co operated.

Ensign Lee H Baker radio officer of the Haida recently told Admiral L L Ballard of the coast guard about the work he and his helpers had done.

for operator and the remains of an

[illegible] thing off the antenna and scraped the instruments free of dirt and grease. The batteries were charked and cleaned spark coil sent ashore for use as a transmitter new insullation installed and service started.

This shore station was a matter of great pride to the Haida. It was necessary as it eliminated the requirement of one of the assisting vessels staying at that station until the flight left. Instead they could be well along the course of flight and giving signals at more strattegic points.

NEW POLITICAL TIMES DAWNING

Secreteary Work Thinks Radio Will Bring Improvement.

No political contest has ever before been conducted on so stupendous a scale as the present according to Secretary of Interior Work.

"Our people are far from political apathy" said the secretary in a recent address. "Speakers are able to pierce the walls of their homes and find ready listeners there.

"Besides multiplying the speaker's voice many fold radio has given the people an insight into the workings of politics that may have a far reaching effect on the ways and means heretofore used for securing the election of the candidates.

"It is safe to assume that the experience encountered in the conventions of 1924 because of radio will revolutionize the next national conventions just as it is already changing political campaigns."

Yet the orator who talks to his unseen audience Mr Work points out is in a difficult position. He approaches an unresponsive mechanical thing that is able to embarass the most calous. He misses the stimulus of a huge audience. If he has a good 'radio voice' he is fortunate for the most famous orators often discover that when shorn of the graces which give charm to their platform addresses their speeches fall flat.

"The result is that speakers are giving more consideration to content than embellishment" Mr Work continues. "There is no place in radio for the verbose illogical type of speech. Brevity becomes paramount and denunciations of opponents which would have been met with applause in a crowd fall flat when heard in the quiet of the [illegible]

"The radio marks the beginning of a new epoch" Mr Work concluded. "Those who are destined to make a name for themselves must rewrite their speeches and recultivate their voices. Radio's influence on the reason and judgment of the listeners in will raise America to an even higher place among the nations of the world."

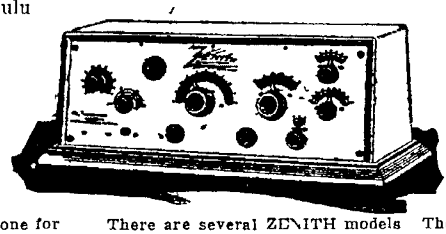
FAULTLESS RECEPTION

The ZENITH radio, regarding which so much has been said and written of recent months, is a very superior instrument. This is easily proved by placing it beside any other of similar price range and comparing appearance and performance.

Dr MacMillan, as a result of using a ZENITH while near the North Pole, says "The ZENITH has united the ends of the earth." He heard from practically every part of the United States from Europe and from Honolulu.

ZENITH



The ZENITH is unexcelled not alone for great distance reception—but also for its remarkable freedom from the usual howling and tone distortion. With a ZENITH you don't have to wait for those occasional 'clear' nights. Every night is ZENITH night.

There are several ZENITH models. The one shown here is Model 3R. It is a regenerative type, specially designed distortionless three stage amplifier with the super-efficient ZENITH three circuit regenerative tuner. All binding posts in the rear.

ART OF COOKERY TAUGHT BY RADIO

Mrs. Anna J. Peterson at KYW Conducts Huge Morning Classes.

"Of all the arts, cookery is by far the most intimate," said a great man once. Wouldn't it be surprising then if one woman managed to conduct classes in this art over an expanse of 3,000 miles every day, and became so intimate with her pupils that they are able to call her name, though they have never met?

Mrs. Anna J. Peterson is the woman, and her teacher's desk is in the KYW Westinghouse station at Chicago. The class room extends over the middle west. In two years she has talked almost every morning at 11:30 o'clock to thousands of students in the intimate art.

For ten years before she began her radio courses, Mrs. Peterson was an expert with the Corn Products company, and before that she had graduated with degrees in this subject and had taken post graduate courses along the same line.

Gifts are constantly being received by Mrs. Peterson from her "radio pals." At graduation time, heaps of flowers are sent. She has come to know her students so well by voice that some of them have recognized her and claimed acquaintance.

Of course Mrs. Peterson is a good cook. She tells thousands of others how to do it every morning, and even plans their menus for them, so that a whole neighborhood is liable to have the same dishes for breakfast—at the suggestion of the radio. But telling how and what to cook are small parts of the activities which have been begun by Mrs. Peterson's talks.

A letter sent to the Westinghouse station, a stamp or even a telephone call, will elicit a reply by mail immediately. These questoins come on every sort of a home topic—home budgeting, clothes buying, money investing or garden making.

The school proper begins October 25. Two series of twelve lessons each were given last season, and nearly 3,000 diplomas delivered. Eight of these were to men—some to those with invalid wives, and some who had a curiosity for the thing itself.

Each radio cooking lesson was delivered to the pupil, then tried. If successful, the report was mailed in. If not, the report was made with equal interest and corrected, the difficulty remedied, and a satisfactory result achieved. This done, the second lesson would be undertaken.

"Original Radio Girl" Still Has A Wireless Job

Vaughn de Leath, the "original radio girl" at WDAR who claims that she has more stage Johnnies persuing her and notes rolling in than ever a Follies beauty, is still singing and chatting at the microphone.

"Veathy," as she calls herself, and as she is called by hundreds of fans, stopped her entertainments for a while last winter while appearing in David Belasco's production of "Laugh, Fool, Laugh." Both she and her managers feared at first that her old wireless friends would forget the voice. Nothing of the kind. Someone who tried to immitate her during the winter was hissed out of the ether. Her return was greeted as joyfully as that of a movie beauty.

Like many another popular announcer or singer, Miss de Leath has been recognized on the streets by the sound of her voice. For when standing at the business end of "mike," as she says herself, there's "something in those old pipes of mine that opens up a flood of understanding and appreciation from the listeners."

Radio Digest

Range of Receiving Set.

The receiving range of a set is determined by testing for signals between 11 o'clock in the morning and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Stations that can be picked up regularly between these hours are the ones upon which the receiving range should be based.

An Indoor Antenna.

Sometimes an indoor antenna can be successfully operated by erecting the wires on ordinary doors in the house. It provides a good soluution for the indoor antenna problem, since the swinging door alters the directional effect and acts as a regular loop antenna.

The Required Number of Tubes.

Never use more tubes than are sufficient for the results desired. It frequently happens that inexperienced operators will have more tubes burning than are necessary, and then detune to lessen the volume of sound. For local stations, for instance, the first audio stage is amply sufficient.

Non-Corrosive Flux.

Celluloid dissolved in acetone makes a very good binder for radio work. It should be used in place of shellac, collodion, etc. Rosin dissolved in rubbing alcohol, with a couple of drops of glycerin, makes an absolutely non-corrosive flux. A drop on a piece of wire suffices for most joints and makes a neat and noiseless job.

Placement of the Receiver.

Noises in a set are often picked up as a result of placing the receiver in the magnetic field surrounding lighting wires running behind the wall, and the receiver should therefore be moved to another part of the room to make sure that the iron cores of the inter-valve transformers are not picking 'up interference from this source.

Inspection of Aerial and Ground.

Because winter storms mean heavy strains on terial and ground installations, now is hte time to make a thorough inspection of the outdoor wiring system. See if the guy-wires holding the aerial masts and the aerial wires in place are all taut and tight. Look over all soldered connections and try to determine if they have become corroded during the hot summer months.

Old "B" Batteries Cause Noises.

An old "B" battery makes a receiving set noisy. As the battery becomes run down its resistance increases and gives rise to noises that are annoying, to say the least. When the voltage of the plate battery has dropped 20 per cent, it is advisable to replace it; thus a 22½-volt battery becomes useless when it has dropped to 17 volts. Larger batteries can be figured in the same proportion.

Requisite Radio Tools.

For the Notebook.

A vernier condenser is necessary for sharp tuning.

Radio sets now range in price from $14 to $5,000.

When a storage battery fails to take a charge, it is an indication that it needs to be overhauled at a battery service station.

Wire for the antenna should be a good conductor of electricity. Some good conductors are copper, phosphor bronze and aluminum.

Joints of an antenna should be first soldered and then wrapped with several layers of tinfoil and then a layer of water-proof tape.

Radiograms.

Farmers throughout the United States own 364,800 radio sets.

California, with 44 stations, leads the states in number of broadcasting stations in operation. New York city, with 12 stations, is first among the cities.

Radio "spongers" are so numerous in Germany that he policet threaten a general raid on houses suspected of having unlicensed sets. Owners must pay a license fee of 50 cents a month.

As the result of a long series of observations made in England, it was learned that radio reception is best during the full moon period. When the moon changes from full to new moon reception is poorest.

Edward H. R. Greene of South Dartmouth, Mass., son of the famous Hetty Green, is said to have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on the development of radio during the past few years. He is building the largest private wireless station in the United States.

An international broadcasting test is scheduled for November 24 to 30. On these dates stations in the United States will send from 10 to 11 P. M., Eastern Standard time, and the foreign stations will transmit from 11 o'clock to midnight. Stations not participating in the test will be silenced, so that broadcast listeners will all have an opportunity to test the sensitiveness and range of their receivers without interference.

RADIO HELPED WORLD FLIERS

Without Its Aid Airmen Would Have Been Unable to Undertake Trip.

The glory of the world circling flight belongs of course to the three heroes who made it, but they could never have finished the job had it not been for the ever-present help of radio.

Four planes started out March 17, 1924. Everyone was lost at some time or other, as well as the machines of foreign aviators who accompanied the American officers for short distances, but all were found again, with the exception of Captain Martin's, and enabled to continue their journey by the aid of radio.

Three principal reasons why radio was vital to the flight are: The length of the jumps, making instantaneous knowledge of distant weather conditions necessary; the need of sending immediate assistance to a disabled machine; publicity gained for the people of the United States.

Most of the radio work along the coast guard cutter Haida. The flight over these islands was perhaps the hardest of the trip, and called for careful calculations and hard work. The Dutch government salmon canneries and every branch of the government service co-operated.

Ensign Lee H. Baker, radio officer of the Haida, recently told Admiral F. E. Ballard of the coast guard about the work he and his helpers had done.

In addition to keeping their own set in working order under adverse conditions, they set up a shore sta- [illegible] for operator, and the remains of an [illegible]

for a workable outfit.

They cleaned fish and old clothing off the antenna, and scraped the instruments free of dirt and grease. The batteries were charked and cleaned, spark coil sent ashore for use as a transmitter, new insullation installed, and service started.

This shore station was a matter of great pride to the Haida. It was necessary as it eliminated the requirement of one of the assisting vessels staying at that station until the flight left. Instead, they could be well along the course of flight and giving signals at more strattegic points.

Secreteary Work Thinks Radio Will Bring Improvement.

No political contest has ever before been conducted on so stupendous a scale as the present, according to Secretary of Interior Work.

"Our people are far from political apathy," said the secretary in a recent address. "Speakers are able to pierce the walls of their homes, and find ready listeners there.

"Besides multiplying the speaker's voice many fold, radio has given the people an insight into the workings of politics that may have a far reaching effect on the ways and means heretofore used for securing the election of the candidates.

"It is safe to assume that the experience encountered in the conventions of 1924 because of radio will revolutionize the next national conventions, just as it is already changing political campaigns."

Yet the orator who talks to his unseen audience, Mr. Work points out, is in a difficult position. He approaches an unresponsive mechanical thing that is able to embarass the most calous. He misses the stimulus of a huge audience. If he has a good "radio voice," he is fortunate, for the most famous orators often discover that when shorn of the graces which give charm t their platform addresses, their speeches fall flat.

"The result is that speakers are giving more consideration to content than embellishment," Mr. Work continues. "There is no place in radio for the verbose, illogical type of speech. Brevity becomes paramount, and denunciations of opponents which would have been met with applause in a crowd fall flat when heard in the quiet of the home.

"The radio marks the beginning of a new epoch," Mr. Work concluded. "Those who are destined to make a name for themselves must rewrite their speeches and recultivate their voices. Radio's influence on the reason and judgment of the 'listeners-in' will raise America to an even higher place among the nations of the world."

FAULTLESS RECEPTION

The ZENITH radio, regarding which so much has been said and written of recent months, is a very superior instrument. This is easily proved by placing it beside any other of similar price range and comparing appearance and performance.
Dr. MacMillan, as a result of using a ZENITH while near the North Pole, says "The ZENITH has united the ends of the earth." He heard from practically every part of the United States, from Europe and from Honolulu.

The ZENITH is unexcelled, not alone for great distance reception—but also for its remarkable freedom from the usual howling and tone-distortion. With a ZENITH you don't have to wait for those occasional "clear" nights. Every night is ZENITH night.

There are several ZENITH models. The one shown here is Model 3R. It is a regenerative type, specially designed distortionless three stage amplifier with the super-efficient ZENITH three circuit regenerative tuner. All binding posts in the rear.

Wesleyan Notes

Prof. Grace McConnell, supervisor of the teaching of the fifth and sixth grades in the Wesleyan training school, is in charge of a very interesting exhibit at the teachers' college. The pupils of the sixth grade have worked out a sand pile representation of the town of Bellview, the oldest town in Nebraska. The map shows the Missouri river, the log forts, the log and mud homes of the villagers, and the Pawnee Indian teepees nearby. A small representation of the first state capitol building is in the miniature town. This is accompanied by a number of posters which depict the early life of the settlers of our state. The work was all done by the students themselves.

Rev. Frank I. Finch, associate pastor of the University Place M. E. church, addressed the students at the Thursday morning chapel session. His talk was on the limitations of present laws, the loosness which allows clever lawyers to free their clients who are often morally guilty as charged. He emphasized the need of laws that are just, truthful and practical. "Society must undergo a change," he said, "society must see the whole truth for itself. Politicians will not tell it to you, nor will the law. Western civilization has missed the way of Christianity. The problem of government is yet unsolved. When Christianity becomes greater and more real to us, the demand for law will of necessity be less. The old method has failed. Let us two the way of good will, fellowship, sympathy and co-operation. That will bring the desired results."

Pi Kappa Delta, the national debating fraternity, has announced that the inter-class debates will take place in the near future. The separate class tryouts must be held before November 7. On November 24, the juniors will meet the freshmen. On the following day, the seniors and sophomores will clash. Two weeks later, December 2, the winners of the two previous frays will settle the question between themselves.

The question debated will be the national Pi Kappa Delta question, "Resolved that congress should be empowered to over ride, by a two thirds vote, the decisions of the supreme court which declares congressional action unconstitutional."

Miss Beulah G. Champ, head of the expression department of the college of fine arts, read before the south side circle of the First M. E. Ladies' Aid at the home of Mrs. Thompson, Tuesday afternoon.

The first year food study class of the home economics department, directed by Miss Leta Linch, assistant professor in that department, entertained all home economics department students and some friends at an afternoon tea Wednesday. Hallowe'en ideas were carried out in the room and table decorations and in the refreshments.

Rev. G. C. Gorman, Methodist pastor at Albion and an alumnus of Wesleyan, was a campus visitor during the week. Rev. Gorman is now secretary of the Methodist conference of the state, and was in University Place in connection with the publishing of the minutes of the session of the conference held in Omaha last month.

The Nebraska Wesleyan Sunday school team, composed of Professors Gregg, Lewis and Churchill, will hold a Sunday school institute at Elm Park Methodist church in Lincoln on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of next week.

Professor Bishop's class in geology drove to Louisville Saturday, to study the rock formations there. They visited the national stone quarry, the Cedar creek gravel pits, the Murphy quarry, and the clay deposits nearby. The trip was made by three carloads of people, and took the whole day.

E. M. Furman, pastor of the Methodist church at Fairbury, visited his daughter, Hazel at the Alpha Kappa Delta house last week

SO WARM, COMFORTABLE AND CHIC—

Are those new King Frost gloves. Just the thing to wear with the mannish sports jacquette which the smart women of today chooses. They are made of suede or cape-skin, are lined with soft wool, and have deep knitted cuffs which will keep out the cold and prevent chapped wrists. Oh, yes, they have lots and lots of dress gloves at Mayer Bros.—both leather and fabric styles in all the latest shades and lengths. The gauntlet glove is most popular when it has a petal-like, ruffled or richly embroidered cuff.

TULIP BULBS SHOULD BE PLANTED NOW

And well watered, says E. S. Gunn of the Gunn Seed company, 127 South Tenth, if you want lovely blooming plants in the spring. Their imported Holland bulbs are among the choicest on the market. Get yours today.

A FOOTBALL GAME, GUESTS—

And no place to take them for dinner. Isn't it discouraging? But, wait a minute—have you ever taken your guests to Herpolsheimer's Teae Room? Everyone enjoys Mrs. Massey's chicken dinners. Next Saturday, either before the game or after, take your friends to this charming, home-like place and let Mrs. Massey take care of the rest. Her meals are a real treat.

ONE ASSESSORY EVERY WOMAN NEEDS.

And that's hosiery. She can't have too many. I know where you can get the finest full-fashioned pure thread and chiffon silk hosiery at $1.39 a pair or $4.00 a box of three pairs. Turn to Gold's big ad on page three and read about their semi-annual sale of box hosiery which takes place during the Expansion Sale.

EARLY FLOWERING TULIPS.

Single and double varieties, may be purchased at Griswold Seed and Nursery company for only $2.00 per hundred mixed bulbs—much less than regular price. They also have paper white narcissus to plant in chipped sea shells.

PEP, VITALITY ARE SO IMPORTANT

To the women of today—they must be doing something all the time. As you know, the proper care of the body has much to do with the amount of pep you have, and such care includes the frequent taking of electric baths, Swedish massages or similar vitality-giving treatments. In connection with the Beauty Parlor at Mayer Bros., Mrs. Elizabeth Richards, a trained nurse, is in charge of treatment rooms where Turkish, electric, reducing and steam baths, salt glows, cold fomentations and Swedish massages may be had. The popularity of such treatments prove their benefits. Make an appointment today for a treatment. Call B6546. Regain and hold your vitality. It is important.

AND NOW THE CHOKER CHANGES.

During the past few years we have had many types of wide and narrow chokers, but the newest style is indeed very unique. The pattern I saw the other day is of one animal sable, without head or tail, and ties on the side with a wide brown faille ribbon.

ALREADY, THE SATIN HAT

And it is making an early appearance in many local shops. Satin is an old favorite, so it is welcome at any season.

MANY TAILORED DRESSES

Show tiered skirts in hairline striped materials a striking effect may be obtained by running the stripes in the tiers around instead of up and down.

THE SLEEVE AND NECKLINE

Frequently reveal important secrets. Long sleeves and high collars attached to tailored dresses bespeak the latest mode.

LEATHER COLLARS AND CUFFS.

Add such a finished touch to the simple school or office dress. They may be had in colors.

THE OPERA PUMP IS LEADING.

Come the reports from the east. Simple, delicately cut lines are prime requisite, but there's no objection to adding small but gorgeously jeweled buckles.

125 Different Occupations Represented By Men Serving Time In Nebraska Prison

BY LULU MAE COE.

From a business point of view, the men in the Nebraska penitentiary could still "carry on," even though the workers of Lincoln were to follow some Pied Piper to a distant fastness.

Most of the positions and jobs of the world are listed as occupations by the men who are spending a few years at Lancaster.

They could provide things to eat and wear and use They could provide amusement and house furnishings and automobile repairs and instruction and photographs and clean laundry and harness and highways and coal and telegrams and hospital care and houses and legal advice and pressed clothes

Among the six hundred twenty-seven men now at Lancaster there are about one hundred twenty-five varieties of occupation, varying from the skilled to the unskilled and from the least exacting forms of manual labor to the highest types of professions. Lancaster doesn't choose its residents according to occupation and there's scarcely one that hasn't been on the register some time or another

Some of the men turn their skill to the benefit of the prison—others do not because it might be necessary to post a large A W O L after their name The two roofers aren't encouraged to follow their occupation—the sight of the great open spaces might prove to be too great a temptation. The only elevator operator doesn't have much work. The brick layers, three in number don't repair the walls.

Many Follow Same Trade.

Many of the prisoners follow the same profession within prison walls that they did in the days of freedom. Possibly the ninety-six men that were farmers before they were prisoners can't till the penitentiary acres at one time, but some of them always are given work in the fields. There are four ranchers, five farm hands, and three ranch laborers to help them.

The twenty nine cooks, four bakers, and one who styles himself both a baker and a cook are used three, times a day The painters, the plasterers, waiters, and laundrymen all have their niches within the prison life, even as they did in freer days The carpenters, mechanics, teamsters, and the one tractor man are used daily in their regular occupations. Quite a number of stenographic and clerical workers are numbered among the penitentiary inmates who labor while they wait.

The penitentiary has more common laborers among its men than any other line of work There are one hundred fifteen of them The farmers rank second and after that the others trail along by half dozens or less. There are twelve teamsters in the penitentiary, nine truck drivers one farmer who had a side line as an auto mechanic and another who dabbled in electricity

Two coal miners find themselves out of work as do the pool hall proprietors, photographers — who now know how it seems to "have your picture taken" — the stock broker, the photo engraver, and the highway constructor. The prison does not have much work in their line for the two locomotive engineers registered there, or for the other railroad men, the two firemen, one switchman, the one switchman who was a barber as well as a railroad man, the baggage clerk, the two brakemen, the railroad clerk, track man, and railroad porter. Eight others are railroad workers in general.

There is prison business for the dairyman, the six chauffeurs, the four shoe makers, five electricians, six musicians, nine carpenters, two plumbers, one kitchen man, one laundry worker, fifteen painters, and twelve waiters

Crime is not always conceived in the minds of those of low mentality as shown by some of the professions formerly practiced by Lancaster inmates. Included among the involuntary guests are one civil engineer, an electrical engineer, a mechanical engineer, and a civil and mining engineer, a nurse, eight bakers, a druggist, a lawyer, and an accountant

Three physicians and surgeons are housed at the prison, one veterinary surgeon, one sport writer, and a school teacher Two actors are temporarily missing from their profession and one missionary has not been seen in his field recently and an artist is not painting for a time.

Thirteen housewives, tired of their ordinary professions, are boarding at the penitentiary and another housewife and nurse in one is living there for a time The women also number a nurse and an assistant nurse The building houses two hospital attendants, four clerks, one of them a hotel clerk, one business man, a man formerly in the horse and mule business, a grocer, and a merchant.

Wrestler and Typist Included.

There are three stenographers there, one clerical worker, a typist, two bookkeepers, four former packing house employes, two sailors, one wrestler, one pugilist, and eleven butchers The carpenters are added to by one lather and there are six barbers, one automobile salesman and six automobile mechanics A dray line proprietor has no use for his trade at present and one once interested in public works is now working in private

Those formerly connected with the automobile business are two auto painters, a car washer, as well as the salesman. A livery man is at the prison, two ball players, an oil worker, a stationary engineer, an iron worker, a former bell hop, a cabinet maker, a wood worker, and a window washer. A garage proprietor has closed his garage in favor of Lancaster and five tailors and the same number of boilermakers have joined him there

Of similar work and of the same residence are two sheet metal workers, a pipe fitter, two tinners, and a foundry worker. Lancaster has little use for the pump and windmill worker who is its guest and not much more for the nine firemen. A telegrapher is of little use in the prison, but an oiler, a welder, and a steam fitter now and again are called to their labors There is one student at the penitentiary, a harness maker, a presser, an upholsterer, three blacksmiths, a stone cutter, two janitors, two lumbermen and a lumberjack, thirteen porters, three printers, a sign maker, a molder and three plasterers.

One chair weaver is useful in the furniture factory, although the work there is not so prominent as it once was. Thirty-two mechanics are of daily value to the prison, and the fourteen machinists and one engine mechanic are often called to the fore The inmates also number among themselves a cement finisher and mechanic, a cement worker, and shipbuilder—far from his seas.

Probably the most telling words under that line in the register marked occupation are these—"no occupation"—perhaps the story behind the reason that these three are there.

Speed and Carelessness To Blame For Most Auto Accidents Here Since June

BY MAJORIE WYMAN.

Mr. Pedestrain, watch your step! Mr. Autoist, watch your car!

For speed, carelessness, and defective machinery are responsible for the large percentage of the accidents in Lincoln since the first of June

Some of the Lincoln casualties are ludicrous in the extreme, others are not so funny. A speed officer, running at full tilt after an automobilist who did not seem to have the proper respect for speed regulations, hit a safety-zone marker tipped over, and was spilled — on the "safe" side of the white line. When another officer went to bring back the hat, badge, and gun of his brother-worker, the weapon was not to be found

The autoist who tried to crank his car, forgetting that he had left it in gear, must have felt funny indeed to the people who stood around to watch the affair. The car ran over its would-be driver, and went on down the street, damaging a truck in its path. The victim of the accident probably did not appreciate the humor of the situation, for he recuperated in a local hospital

Other accident have no funny side they approach rather the pathetic Two children have been killed in Lincoln in the last few months. David Dorn, 8 years old, was killed June 26 when he ran in front of a coming automobile; and three-and-one-half-year-old Wilfred Colvert's death on September 12 has been traced to defective brakes of the car which ran into him Two boys who ran out from an alley in front of a moving automobile were uninjured only through good fortune

Most Accidents Preventable.

Six stitches were necessary to close the scalp wound inflicted when a Lincoln boy riding his bicycle, collided with a truck which was backing from the curb A broken leg was the penalty another bicyclist suffered for swerving to the left side of the street Internal injuries which necessitated a major operation followed a collision at an intersection when one driver attempted to pass another car.

Results of speed and carelessness, automobile accidents are to a large extent preventable

Parker cars are a common cause of automobile casualties in Lincoln. Backing out is a dangerous proceeding at best, but even driving along a street is dangerous when these people who have parked are not careful in coming out of the stalls into which they have driven their automobiles. One man caught his front wheel and bumper in the wheel and fender of the automobile parked next to his, and caused considerable damage, the common story of "fender dent" is caused ordinarily by close quarters in parking at the curb.

Automobiles going around parked cars are in danger of running into street cars or other vehicles—a fact readily proven by the number of times this particular reason is given in mentioning automobile accidents A bicyclist was thrown on the path of another car when he collided with a truck just coming from the curb. Another driver, who did not stop to give his name after the accident, struck a parked car, breaking off its wheel and bending the fender, besides removing the rear light.

Bicycle-riders seem to be particularly poor accident-insurance risks in Lincoln, according to records since June first. One boy, sitting on his bicycle which he had pulled up to the curb, when an automobile ran into him and broke his wheel of the bicycle Another bicyclist learned by experience that it is necessary to "keep to the right"

Odd accidents are always happening: the automobile which turned turtle on O street just as its driver tried to swerve from the path of a coming street car, the car which skidded around a corner and whirled around three times, with another automobile approaching from each direction, these and any number of others.

Some mishaps are due, admittedly to defective machinery of the cars in question. Defective brakes caused one fatality in Lincoln during the past summer, a broken automobile wheel sent a car reeling into a ditch, a locked steering-gear was responsible for a driver losing control of his machine and sending it into another automobile.

Adherents of Volstead will be interested perhaps in the fact that only once in the police tabulation of accidents is it recorded that one of the drivers was drunk.

Freak Driving Dangerous.

Freak driving unsafe driving, and lack of care in observation of the traffic laws are responsible in no small degree for the mishaps on the streets of the capital city An automobilist who was driving down O street in the middle of the street car tracks was surprised no doubt when the irate motorman, after having ineffectually rung his bell again and again, finally bumped the car in front just a little. The accident report at the police station shows "back of car bent" and on the similar accident which occurred about a half-hour later, "slight damage."

Repairing his car was dangerous for another man, whom circumstances compelled to do minor repair work in the middle of the street one day. He was standing at the right side of his machine when another car, trying to pass, ran into him He was knocked down, but not seriously injured.

A truck driver somewhere had the idea of speed clearly written on his mind, but he changed his ideas of relative importance when he recovered from the bruises and scratches he received when a train beat him over the crossing by a few seconds.

To the pedestrain, the autoist is some kind of an irresponsible gargoyle whose principal thought is to get where he is going, and get there quick. To the automobilist, perhaps, the thought is firmly embedded that the pedestrain is trying desperately to annoy him. Think back, Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln, and remember the various times when you have thought both of these things intermittently

The record-book at the station is singularly reticent about circumstances surrounding some of the accidents involving pedestrains and drivers. One man who was walking down the center of the street was forcibly placed on the sidewalk by a fast-driven car; a ten-year-old boy who started to cross the street, and changed his mind to dart back, was fortunately not badly hurt

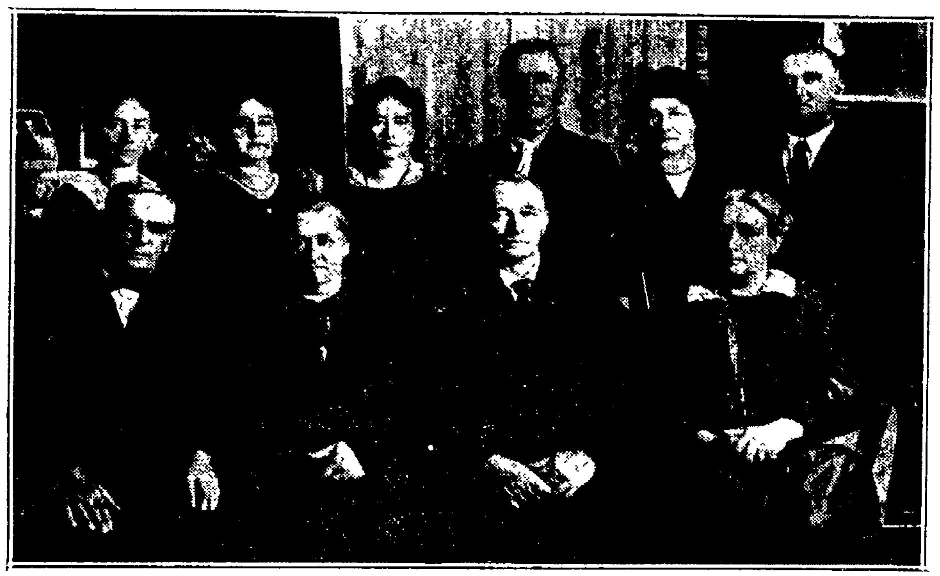
GORR FAMILY HOLDS REUNION



A reunion of the Gorr family which included a gathering of ten brothers and sisters, some of them accompanied by their families, was held in the early fall in Springfield, Neb., at the home of William Cahoon. Some members of the family had not seen each other for thirty years and a number of the brothers and sisters-in-law had never met. On the last day of the reunion a picnic including all relatives, seventy in number, brought the gathering to a happy ending

MRS. A. McANDLESS
1709 S. MORGAN ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

EVERY young woman like Mrs. McAndless before her marriage dreams dreams and has visions of her ideal home with her husband, and healthy, happy children to make her joy complete.

But as time goes on her dreams are not realized, she has no children, her life is embittered and it is hard for her to be reconciled to the conditions as they exist.

To every young woman who is in this condition the following letter should bring hope and encouragement, as we know of numberless homes that have been blessed with children, just as this home was, after all hope had been abandoned.

Here Follows Mrs. McAndless's Personal Letter:

"Just a few lines to let you know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was married going on three years without having any children and finally I went to a doctor and was taking treatments twice a week for pains every month. I used to lie in bed three or four days with them and the doctor would call and inject something into my arm to put me asleep so I would not feel the pains. At last she said I would have to be operated on if I wanted any children. Well, I just happened to go to see a friend with her first baby and I told her I was going to the hospital, and she said, 'Don't do it! You go and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you won't need any operation.' So my husband got me a bottle right away. Now I have two lovely children. Believe me, I recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman I know has any kind of female trouble. It has helped me and a lot of my friends."—Mrs. A. McANDLESS, 1709 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Ill.

FRENCH SCIENTIST DISCOVERY FOR REDUCING FAT

DR. J. J. RUDOLPH, Former Health Commissioner Considers "SAN-GRI-NA" a Remarkable and Safe Help for FAT PEOPLE.

Up to now, reducing had been an almost unsolvable problem. It was either a question of losing a few pounds and ruin your health with dangerous drugs or remain fat. To-day a French physician of unquestionable reputation has to his credit a discovery called "SAN-GRI-NA," which quickly does away with most obstinate cases of obesity and at the same time improves the health and appearance and rejuvenates the entire system. "I consider 'SAN-GRI-NA' not only a remarkable fat reducer," says Dr. Rudolph, former health commissioner, but I advise it as a general tonic and health-builder for fat people." Physicians have used "SAN-GRI-NA" themselves, and have prescribed it to their immediate family and patients, thus proving that it is absolutely harmless and effective. "SAN-GRI-NA" is a small tablet which should be taken three times a day. It does not contain any dangerous drugs, and has been used by the discoverer in his own practice with most remarkable success. It is now recommended and sold in America, by reliable druggists only, with guarantee of satisfaction or money refunded. "SAN-GRI-NA" does not reduce fat people over night. There is no miracle about it. It is a safe, gradual loss of flesh which varies from 4 to 6 pounds a week, leaving the patient stronger and healthier with every pound of fat lost. No flabby tissues or wrinkles will follow the use of "SAN-GRI-NA."

NOTE—Since "SAN-GRI-NA" has been introduced in America, it has created such a sensation that imitations cannot be avoided. If you want results, make sure that YOU ASK AND GET "SAN-GRI-NA." On sale at

Doane Notes

The men's council of Doane managed an all Doane men's dinner at Gaylord hall Tuesday evening. A fine dinner was enjoyed, with songs, toasts, and speeches afterwards. The object of the gathering was to promote acquaintance and fellowship among students and faculty. At the same time the women of the college were entertained at a picnic supper on the Bennett lawn, by the Faculty Women's club. All adjourned in time for orchestra practice.

W J Bryan spoke at convocation Monday morning to an enthusiastic audience of students and townspeople It was not a partisan talk and was particularly well suited to inspire a body of young people to right living and high ideals.

Rev. Hybert C. Herring, secretary of social service of the Congregational Education society will visit the college November 16 and 17. Mr. Herring was a Doane student in 1905-07, is well know in the state, and is the son of the late Dr. H. C. Herring, general secretary of the national council of Congregational churches.

The football team went to Peru Thursday afternoon for the game Friday. Peru won over Kearney last week.

Homecoming day is fixed for November 15, when Kearney will come for football on the Doane field

Word has just come of the death of Minnie Jeffers Clinton of Idaho Falls on October 15. Minnie Jeffers was a graduate of Doane, class of 1904, coming to us from Chadron. She has been ill for more than a year. Her most recent letters, written while making a mighty fight for life, were cheerful and full of those little plays upon words for which she was noted. She taught after graduation in Nebraska and Wyoming very successfully, and took more than just the school room interest in her pupils.

Wesleyan Affairs

At the regular meeting of the Agassiz club of Nebraska Wesleyan held on Tuesday evening of last week, the following members were initiated into the membership of the organization: Ethel Farabee, Doniphan, Neb.; Elisabeth Franey, Hickman, Neb.; Helen Quimby, University Place, Neb., Evelyn Bell, Beatrice, Neb.; Frances Stewart, Chicago, Ill.; Wilma Scott, Shelby, Neb.; Lillian Wiesman, Osceola, Neb.; and Anna Winsor, Fairmont, Neb.

These members were admitted after having passed the tests given to a number of applicants earlier in the fall. The organization is a group of nature students, banded together for the promotion of scientific education, the advancement of science, collection in museums of scientific specimens, and the em- [illegible] ers. The organization installed its Nebraska Wesleyan chapter in 1917

In addition to the initiation of the members, Miss Evelyn Bell gave a report on Goldfish culture and Miss Elizabeth Franey read a paper on the habits of beavers, and their methods of building

125 Different Occupations Represented By Men Serving Time In Nebraska Prison

BY LULU MAE COE.

From a business point of view, the men in the Nebraska penitentiary could still "carry on," even though the workers of Lincoln were to follow some Pied Piper to a distant fastness.

Most of the positions and jobs of the world are listed as occupations by the men who are spending a few years at Lancaster.

They could provide things to eat and wear and use. They could provide amusement and house furnishings and automobile repairs and instruction and photographs and clean laundry and harness and highways and coal and telegrams and hospital care and houses and legal advice and pressed clothes.

Among the six hundred twenty-seven men now at Lancaster there are about one hundred twenty-five varieties of occupation, varying from the skilled to the unskilled and from the least exacting forms of manual labor to the highest types of professions. Lancaster doesn't choose its residents according to occupation and there's scarcely one that hasn't been on the register some time or another.

Some of the men turn their skill to the benefit of the prison—others do not because it might be necessary to post a large A. W. O. L. after their name. The two roofers aren't encouraged to follow their occupation—the sight of the great open spaces might prove to be too great a temptation. The only elevator operator doesn't have much work. The brick layers, three in number don't repair the walls.

Many Follow Same Trade.

Many of the prisoners follow the same profession within prison walls that they did in the days of freedom. Possibly the ninety-six men that were farmers before they were prisoners can't till the penitentiary acres at one time, but some of them always are given work in the fields. There are four ranchers, five farm hands, and three ranch laborers to help them.

The twenty-nine cooks, four bakers, and one who styles himself both a baker and a cook are used three times a day. The painters, the plasterers, waiters, and laundrymen all have their niches within the prison life, even as they did in freer days. The carpenters, mechanics, teamsters, and the one tractor man are used daily in their regular occupations. Quite a number of stenographic and clerical workers are numbered among the penitentiary inmates who labor while they wait.

The penitentiary has more common laborers among its men than any other line of work. There are one hundred fifteen of them. The farmers rank second and after that the others trail along by half dozens or less. There are twelve teamsters in the penitentiary, nine truck drivers one farmer who had a side line as an auto mechanic and another who dabbled in electricity.

Two coal miners find themselves out of work as do the pool hall proprietors, photographers — who now know how it seems to "have your picture taken" — the stock broker, the photo engraver, and the highway constructor. The prison does not have much work in their line for the two locomotive engineers registered there, or, for the other railroad men, the two firemen, one switchman, the one switchman who was a barber as well as a railroad man, the baggage clerk, the two brakemen, the railroad clerk, track man, and railroad porter. Eight others are railroad workers in general.

There is prison business for the dairyman, the six chauffeurs, the four shoe makers, five electricians, six musicians, nine carpenters, two plumbers, one kitchen man, one laundry worker, fifteen painters, and twelve waiters.

Crime is not always conceived in the minds of those of low mentality as shown by some of the professions formerly practiced by Lancaster inmates. Included among the involuntary guests are one civil engineer, an electrical engineer, a mechanical engineer, and a civil and mining engineer, a nurse, eight bakers, a druggist, a lawyer, and an accountant.

Three physicians and surgeons are housed at the prison, one veterinary surgeon, one sport writer, and a school teacher. Two actors are temporarily missing from their profession and one missionary has not been seen in his field recently and an artist is not painting for a time.

Thirteen housewives, tired of their ordinary professions, are boarding at the penitentiary and another housewife and nurse in one is living there for a time. The women also number a nurse and an assistant nurse. The building houses two hospital attendants, four clerks, one of them a hotel clerk, one business man, a man formerly in the horse and mule business, a grocer, and a merchant.

Wrestler and Typist Included.

There are three stenographers there, one clerical worker, a typist, two bookkeepers, four former packing house employes, two sailors, one wrestler, one pugilist, and eleven butchers. The carpenters are added to by one lather and there are six barbers, one automobile salesman, and six automobile mechanics. A dray line proprietor has no use for his trade at present and one once interested in public works is now working in private.

Those formerly connected with the automobile business are two auto painters, a car washer, as well as the salesman. A livery man is at the prison, two ball players, an oil worker, a stationary engineer, an iron worker, a former bell hop, a cabinet maker, a wood worker, and a window washer. A garage proprietor has closed his garage in favor of Lancaster and five tailors and the same number of boilermakers have joined him there.

Of similar work and of the same residence are two sheet metal workers, a pipe fitter, two tinners, and a foundry worker. Lancaster has little use for the pump and windmill worker who is its guest and not much more for the nine firemen. A telegrapher is of little use in the prison, but an oiler, a welder, and a steam fitter now and again are called to their labors. There is one student at the penitentiary, a harness maker, a presser, an upholsterer, three blacksmiths, a stone cutter, two janitors, two lumbermen and a lumberjack, thirteen porters, three printers, a sign maker, a molder and three plasterers.

One chair weaver is useful in the furniture factory, although the work there is not so prominent as it once was. Thirty-two mechanics are of daily value to the prison, and the fourteen machinists and one engine mechanic are often called to the fore. The inmates also number among themselves a cement finisher and mechanic, a cement worker, and shipbuilder—far from his seas.

Probably the most telling words under that line in the register marked occupation are these—"no occupation"—perhaps the story behind the reason that these three are there.

TAKE YOUR TROUBLES TO MINERVA

The Home Talent.

Dear Minerva: We have a dramatic club in our high school, in which we this year have some admirable talent. At the last meeting we decided to look into the possibility of giving an outdoor play in the spring. There is an ideal setting for such a play in our park here, and we think we have the talent for it. Would you suggest some plays for us which would be appropriate for outdoor acting, also tell us where we could secure them. We would be very grateful for the help. Committe Chairman.

A. The fanociful, allegorical play or that of historical or patriotic significance is most suitable for outdoor production. The choice of play depends partly upon the abilities of your players, also their number.

Some of the plays which might interest you are as follows:

"The Chinese Lantern," by Lawrence Housman, published by Sedgwick, London; "Alice in Wonderland," Lewis Carroll's classic, dramatized by Mrs. Burton Harrison. This play calls for seventeen principals, also extras. Dramatic Publishing House, Chicago.

"Beauty and the Beast," Caroline Wassen Thomason, an adaptation of the familiar fairy tale. This is a charming play for children to give. Penn. Publishing House, Philadelphia.

"Hiawatha" Plays are good. One by Florence Holbrook calls for twelve juveniles and twenty-five extras. Houghton, Mifflin and Co. The Indian settings and costumes are effective and popular.

"The Piper," by Josephine Preston Peabody, with twenty-four in the cast, is very good. Houghton, Mifflin and Co.

"Rip Van Winkle," by Charles Burke, requires seventeen men and three women and many more girls and children to play the parts of Dutch merrymakers

"Robin Hood" plays (Frederick A. Stokes and Co.), providing parts for ten to fifteen persons are good.

"Sanctuary," a bird masque by Percy Mackaye, is charming. Two women and four men take the principal parts in this and many children may be utilized to impersonate the birds. Frederick A. Stokes and Co.

These various publishing companies and others publishing plays will send you a list of plays upon request.

A Temporary Separation.

Dear Minerva: I have never written to you before although I've often wanted to. This is my trouble and I hope you'll not sling my letter in the waste basket. I'm a girl wife and mother, age twenty years, and have two children. A few days ago my husband got the notion in his restless head that we separate. I begged, I pleaded, but nothing else would do. So we agreed to separate for a matter of quite a few days.

Now Minerva I'm so lonesome, blue and heartbroken that I simply must tell my troubles to someone. I have asked him back but get the same answer at all times. I feel as if I had better not ask him again. We live under the same roof but in different rooms and I very seldom see my husband as he is a railroad man and when he is in town he never stays here but is gone from morning until evening. I don't know how I am going to stand this as long as we agreed upon. The children think the world of their daddy and call for him and talk of him all day and every day. Now, Minerva, what would you advise me to do, ask him to come back once more or just move to another place away from him and leave him alone until he decides for himself whether he ought to come back or not. We have both made mistakes but I'm willing to take all the blame and start over but he won't listen to that. Please advise me soon. Blue and Heart-broken.

A. I feel you must have left part of your story untold. There must have been some provocation to cause your husband to propose the plan of temporary separation. He must have felt that you had wronged him in some particular. I think the separation a severe trial, or punishment, for whatevere cause it is supposed to serve. But if you agreed to it I believe if I were you I would try to stick it out. Then when the period is over, each pledge to start anew and strive anew to make a success of your home life and marriage relation.

The husband must do his part by staying home with his family instead of roving out at night with his men friends. And you do your part in making the home and yourself attractive to him, likewise in being willing to seek social gayety with him when he feels so inspired.

It just doesn't do one bit of good to try to co-erce, or force a man of that type into sentiment. It is far better to leave him alone until he becomes lonely and is ready to appreciate a good wife, and his children.

At the conference by W. E. Wickendon, director of investigations for the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, Dean O. J. Ferguson of the College of Engineering would participate in the national study of engineering education to determine its needs and how they may be met. One hundred and fifty engineering schools will participate in the divided program. Dean Ferguson is chairman of the committee of engineering faculty members, with Professors G. R. Chatburn, W. L. DeBaufre, H. J. Kesner, E. E. Brackett, O. E. Edison and J. Smay on the committee. This committee conferred with Mr. Wickendon as to the details of the general program that would be undertaken locally. Vital questions are coming to the front relative to the past experiences and present practices of colleges. Projects are under way for the study of the entering students and their preparation for taking up engineering. Other studies relate to the teachers of engineering, the scope and field of work of the colleges, both in education and industry; the educational requirements and standards of engineering schools, the value of placement examinations and general intelligence tests, and opportunities for vocational guidance. At a faculty meeting more detailed information was given to assist in the selection of a limited number of definite projects to be undertaken. The faculty committee will prepare a report for faculty consideration next week, recommending a definite plan of work with committee organization to carry out the project.

A collection of facsimile reproductions of old and rare books and manuscripts is being exhibited in the main hall of the University library. The collection includes facsimiles of two pre-Columbian manuscripts, the Codex Fejerarvy-Mayer and Codex Borbonicus, and El Lapidario del Rei Alfonso X, a Spanish manuscript of the thirteenth century. Another interesting book is a facsimile of The Dictes and Sayings of the Philosophers, the first book printed by William Caxton in England in 1477. At the time of the Dante sextennial the library acquired two facsimiles of the Divine Comedy, one of the Landiano Manuscripts dated 1336, the Trevuziano manuscript of 1337. The library also has a reproduction of the Ellesmere manuscript of Chaucer's Canterbury Tales.

Col. R. I. Rees, vice-president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., who is charged with the administration of the personnel division, visited the College of Engineering last week as a part of his tour of the engineering colleges of the country, in a study of the outlook for electrical engineering recruits and the status of electrical engineering education in the United States. He was accompanied by H. V. Dodson, acting chief engineer; Richard H. Fair, general superintendent of the plant; M. T. Taylor and P. M. McCullough, division plant engineers, all of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company of Omaha. An inspection of the electrical engineering laboratories was made and the party visited Chancellor Avery. Colonel Rees, a former staff officer at Washington during the war, was until last spring actively engaged in that part of the general staff's activities connected with the training of officers at schools. He was closely connected with presidents of universities, serving on committees with Chancellor Avery.

Prof. Paul H. Grummann, director of School of Fine Arts, is conducting a course Tuesday afternoons in continental drama for the Omaha Forum, the organization of Omaha public school teachers. The course will run throughout the year. It is given under the extension division of the University of Nebraska.

Paul Blanshard, field secretary for the League for Industrial Democracy, will visit the University from November 5 to 9 under the auspices of the University Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. He will hold industrial conferences with students and will speak at the World Forum on industrial questions. Mr. Blanshard was one of the main speakers at the Student Volunteer convention at Indianapolis. He is the author of "Liberalism in the Colleges," in a recent issue of the Nation.

Eldred Larson, '28, Oakland, state chairman of the Hi-Y clubs in Nebraska, was elected acting president and Irvin Weber, '28, Norfolk, acting secretary of the newly organized freshman council at its first meeting last week. Members of the Y. M. C. A. cabinet under the leadership of Monroe Gleason, '25, helped to organize the council. It will function similarly to the freshman commission. organization for first-year women. A Hallowe'en stag will be held at the Temple October 31 in order to get the freshmen better acquainted.

"Adapting Education to the Individual" was the subject of a lecture by Dr. Charles Fordyce of the Teachers college to teachers of Central City Thursday evening. Professor Fordyce gave the standardization test to pupils of the public schools there Friday. He also lectured Saturday morning to the teachers on the use of scientific tests in teaching and on school administration.

Night classes conducted by the extension division now have a total enrollment of 220, not including the students in the courses in fine arts. The classes which range in size from eight to sixty-two, are: beginning French, beginning Spanish, calculus, mechanical drawing, drawing and painting, juvenile art, juvenile elocution, investments, life insurance, modern economic problems, the contemporary novel, and history of the foreign relations of the United States.

Prof. Darrick N. Lehmer, '95, editor of the Chronicle, illustrated quarterly magazine of the University of California, published a cycle of poems in the latest issue of that publication. He has written a number of poems and recently published in co-operation with a local society at the University of California some of his work with the Miwock Indians under the title "Seven Songs from Yosemite." In the editor's note, he promised still further publication of Indian songs in the near future.

Dean William E. Sealock of the Teachers College attended an institute at Clay Center Thursday and Friday.

Cadets practiced squad competition on the University rifle range at Bennet, Saturday. Cadets are shooting on the range several times a week now, using the regular service rifles. Squad competitions will be held every Saturday for the remainder of the year. One of the military department's trucks takes the men to the range.

Col. H. A. Eaton of Omaha, chief of staff of the Seventh Corps Area, and Major Wm. F. Morrison, general staff officer, who was commandant at the University in 1919, visited the University last week on an inspection trip. They conferred with local military authorities.

Presentation of University, regimental and national colors to freshmen, the oath of allegiance to the flag, and awarding decorations to the winning company of last year, is the program for the University military unit for Armistice Day, November 11. The regiment will also participate in the regular Armistice Day parade.

Dr. George E. Condra, director of the conservation and survey division, has returned from an extended trip through the state, during which he visited northern Garden county, in which a survey is being made, addressed two community meetings at Stuart, visited sugar factories in the western part of the state, and called on prospective oil drillers in Scottsbluff and Bayard.

The Nehawka drilling by the Amerado Oil Co of Tulsa, Okla, may be stopped. The drill has struck some rocks older than any known to have produced oil.

BE AS CAREFUL AS YOUR DOCTOR

Do Not Buy Mentally Blindfolded

That is exactly what you do many times when you buy preparations from stores other than Registered by Law Drug Stores. Face creams, powders, hair lotions, in fact all preparations for the skin and hair, for internal or external use are medicines. Your health or appearance should surely mean more than a few pennies saved. Many articles are sold for human use with no other recommendation than the printed one on the package. This is buying blindfolded.

When You Buy from Your Druggest

You know that the law has passed upon his chemical knowledge—he knows what he is selling you, and is the only one really qualified to recommend any preparation for human use.

The law insists that the druggist study for years and then pass a strict examination. This guarantee of knowledge and experience surely should be worth something to you and your family.

Buy from your druggist and you can rely with full confidence that the utmost will be gained from the preparation for what it is intended.
